2 Die in Tug Fire Off Island Coast

Rescue Vessels Assist 4

BAMFIELD (Special to The Times) — Two men died when a flash fire swept a coastal tugboat off Cape Beale Thursday night.

Four others survived. They were brought to Bamfield Life Boat Station after rescue operations which involved navy, fisheries and coast guard vessels.

Dead are John Oberg, 50, and Raymond Howard, 53, both of Vancouver and both married. Captain Keith Hawthorne of Vancouver, and three other crewmen of the Straits Towing tug, Charlotte Straits, were awaiting air transport from here to Vancouver this morning. They were in good condition.

The fire erupted from unknown causes in the engine room at 10:30 p.m. while Charlotte Straits was towing an empty log barge north past Cape Beale, about four miles offshore.

ASPHYXIATED

The survivors said the two dead men were quickly asphyxiated in smoke from the fast burning, hot outburst of fire.

Three of the crew fought the blaze with CO2 extinguishers and with water buckets while the radio operator sent a distress signal.

(It was later reported that the distraught operator called his ship by the wrong name, identifying it as the Magellan Straits, which was tied up in Vancouver at the time.)

("The mixup cost us a lot of time," said a spokesman for Search and Rescue centre at Vancouver.)

(This was later denied by Charlotte Strait's captain. He said a Tofino operator relaying the distress call, made the mistake, but corrected it immediately and assistance was on the way within four minutes.)

The Bamfield Life Boat, coast guard ship Cammell, and the destroyer-escort HMCS Yukon were all sent to the area, about 40 miles north of Tofino.

The tug crew had extinguished the blaze by the time help arrived. A doctor was transferred from HMCS Yukon. He pronounced the two victims dead. He was identified as Surgeon Lieut. J. C. Bruyere.

COMPANY VESSEL

Laurier put a line aboard and towed the tug to Bamfield. Charlotte Straits was to be towed to Vancouver later today. Fire damage was confined to the interior of the vessel. She is a wooden tug, about 90 feet in length, and a veteran of many trips through Island waters.

BATTLE NEAR SAIGON KILLS 4 AMERICANS

SAIGON (CP) — Four U.S. Army men were killed and six others were wounded in hard fighting 20 miles west of Saigon, a U.S. military spokesman reported today. Two U.S. Army helicopters were shot down.

Thirty-three U.S. jet fighters and bombers made strikes against suspected Viet Cong concentrations within South Viet Nam today. Military sources said they damaged or destroyed a number of structures.

Two of the American dead and some of the wounded were helicopter men.

House Ending Session After More Than Year

OTTAWA (UPI) — The Commons today continued down the home stretch towards the end of the longest parliamentary session in Canadian history.

Following an unusually short question period in this 248th day, the House continued debate on the final supplementary estimates for the 1964-65 fiscal year that ended March 31.

The session was expected to

GOVERNMENT SOUGHT $100,000

Johnson Borrows to Pay Own Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson casually announced Thursday that he recently borrowed the money to pay $100,000 in taxes to the government.

The president didn't disclose where or how or why he borrowed the funds. And there was a bit of confusion about whether he borrowed the whole amount or part.

Then a transcript of his remarks at a White House ceremony on the first day of issue of a Crusade Against Cancer commemorative stamp showed that what he said was this:

"This year I borrowed the money the other day to pay the government a tax of $100,000."

There was no amplification from either the president or his aides.

The presidential salary is $100,000 a year, but an expense allowance increases that to $150,000. Much of Johnson's taxes are levied on non-official income received from his private investments now in trusteeship.

Johnson joked that the government has a procedure of paying the president with one hand and taking it away with the other.

During the election campaign, Johnson made public a detailed accounting which showed his family's fortune at $3,484,098.

The government's withholding system, Johnson said, took care of part of the $100,000. He had some additional money, but borrowed some. He did not specify how much he borrowed.

The president's salary is subject to tax deductions at source.

British, French Views 'Sharply Opposed'

PARIS (Reuters) — British and French views on the Viet Nam crisis were "diametrically opposed" today as Prime Minister Wilson, President de Gaulle and their foreign ministers conferred here.

An informed source described the de Gaulle-Wilson meeting as relaxed and friendly while a British source reported that a separate conference of their two foreign ministers showed the sharp differences over Viet Nam of the London and Paris governments.

Wilson and his foreign secretary, Michael Stewart, flew here this morning for the first top-level Anglo-French meeting since de Gaulle blocked Britain's

Common Market in January, 1963.

Stewart held talks with

French Foreign Minister Maurice

Couve de Murville at the foreign

Wilson conferred at Elysee Palace.

Wilson has been supporting United States policy in Viet Nam.

Britain holds that South Viet

Nam's Viet Cong guerrillas, helped from North Viet Nam, must stop their attacks in the south before there can be a basis for negotiating a peaceful settlement.

Couve de Murville, however, would like to see negotiations take place without preconditions.

The British source said the French government believed North

Viet Nam and China would like to negotiate on Viet Nam—but could give no evidence to support this

Stewart and Couve de Murville talked for two hours on Viet Nam and other topics while de Gaulle

and Wilson spent two hours and 20 minutes on East-West relations, NATO, the Middle East, Africa and other subjects.

The informed source said de

Gaulle and Wilson concentrated on matters where there were

ordination and joint action while not glossing over the fundamental differences of opinion on other questions.

SYDNEY, Australia—Samuel Douglas, 67, helped his invalid wife kill herself with an overdose of tablets. Then he took an overdose himself and tried to jump off the top of a 25-storey building.

Bystanders restrained him and he was taken to hospital. He lapsed into a coma and died clinically, but massage of his heart revived him.

Today, five months later, the janitor pleaded guilty to the manslaughter of his wife, Elsie, 55. Tears ran down Judge Wilfred H. Collins' face as he said:

"This is a case where the prisoner had a wife of whom he was very fond and who suffered from very bad health. The community cannot tolerate what I would call mercy killings. This decent man must be punished and the least sentence I can give him is three years' imprisonment."

Police said Douglas told them: "My wife had been in terrible ill health and I could not bear to see her suffer any longer."

The tablets weren't identified.

MUNICH, West Germany—The same 28 Germans who fell for the April Fool's joke about beer being served free Thursday at city hall turned out to be the smart ones after all.

The morning newspaper carried a report that beer would be given away at city hall as part of the economic planning board program. For hygienic reasons, it added, each person should bring his own beer mug.

Most readers of the paper took it all for an April Fool's joke, which it was.

But directors of the West German state-owned Hofbrau brewery also read the story and decided that even an April Fool deserved a thirst-quenching drink. So they sent around a big barrel.

The 28 or more men who showed up at the city hall with beer mugs in hand got their fill.

HAGERSTOWN, Md.—Mrs. Mary Bowman is going to get her living room painted free—all because she left her house key in her mailbox.

Painters arrived at her home Thursday while she was working in a nearby school as a teacher's aide. They found the key in the mailbox, just where they had been told to look for it.

They had taken down the living room draperies and painted most of the ceiling when a neighbor stopped by to walk Mrs. Bowman's dog. It was then the painters realized they were in the wrong house. The one they were supposed to paint was across the street. Its key was in the mailbox, too.

Mrs. Bowman has been promised her living room will be completely painted free of charge.

CHARLOTTE, N.C.—Manager Jack Horton of the Eastwood Golf Club discovered that four trees between the tee and the green on the fifth hole had been cut down, providing a clear shot to the flag.

While the culprit is unknown, Horton suspects the axe-wielder must have been "some golfer in the habit of winding up behind those trees off the tee." Horton said he would transplant a large magnolia tree to close the gap.

CHICAGO—About two-thirds of potential suicides are women, the supervisors of a unique "suicide service" reported today.

The median age is 35, the worst night of the week is Wednesday, about 40 per cent have tried suicide before and many turn between a wish to die and a wish to be rescued—issue a call for help.

Writing in the journal of the American Medical Association, the five authors said their Los Angeles suicide prevention centre received 1,607 calls during its first year of operation. The article said about 20 per cent of the callers were considered "in grave suicidal danger."

The centre is manned at night by graduate students who try to soothe the caller and convince him someone is interested in saving his life, the article said. The service supplements a daytime therapy clinic for potential suicides.

HOUSTON—In 1962, Leonardine Finerman, 42, was voted Houston's "Secretary of the Year."

Thursday she pleaded guilty to stealing more than $20,000 from her company and was assessed a five-year jail term.

VIET TERMS CHANGED, MP SAYS

LONDON (AP)—North Viet Nam is not demanding withdrawal of U.S. troops from the south as a condition for a cease-fire, says a left-wing Labor member of Parliament.

William Warbey told of a meeting with North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh and Premier Pham Van Dong in Hanoi 10 weeks ago in a letter to today's Times of London.

He said they spelled out peace conditions to him. He said he had passed them on to Washington.

Withdrawal of U.S. troops will be discussed at a peace conference, Warbey said. The North Vietnamese told him:

"The only pre-condition is a cease-fire."

SEEKS TALK, NOT PARADES

Camden Mayor to Prevent New March on Courthouse

CAMDEN, Ala. (AP)—Civil rights demonstrators were determined today to attempt another march on the courthouse of this small southwest Alabama town and the mayor was equally determined to prevent it.

Mayor Reg Albritton, 42, personally stopped three of the four marches staged here this week, once with smoke bombs. There were no injuries.

The mayor said Thursday he was willing to meet with any of the Negroes to discuss their problems. But, he said, "they shouldn't just come down here for the hell of it."

At Birmingham, Gov-

nor George C. Wallace posted a $5,000 reward for the criminal or criminals responsible for a dynamite bomb which exploded in a Negro neighborhood.

Soon after the dynamite wrecked a garage behind T. L. Crowell's house, time bombs were found and disarmed at the homes of Mayor Albert Boutwell and Miss Nina Miglionico, a member of the city council.

BOMB A DECEIT?

Police said the first bomb might have been a decoy to draw them to the Negro area across the city away from the locations of the other two bombs.

Boutwell was opposed in his campaign for mayor by arch-segregationists and after taking office he appointed a biracial committee to help solve the city's racial problems. However, neither Crowell nor Miss Miglionico were active in the racial campaigns.

At Camden, Rev. Daniel Harrell, a Camden Negro and a member of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, was directing the marches as part of a protest over voter registration procedures.

Two attempts were made to march during the day and both were turned back by the mayor.

There were these other developments on the racial scene:

1. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., president of SCLC, the organization spearheading the Negro voter registration drive in Alabama, indicated the group might carry its non-violent protest all over the United States.

2. President Johnson withheld specific comment on King's proposed boycott of Alabama products when questioned during a Washington press conference.

Britain Asks Views On Solution to War

LONDON (AP)—The British government called today for the views of 11 governments on ways of ending the war in Viet Nam. Canada was one of the governments consulted.

The foreign office announced that Britain, as co-chairman of the 1954 Indo-Chinese peace conference, had addressed messages to all countries involved.

AIR LICENCE CANCELLED

OTTAWA (CP)—The Air Transport Board today announced cancellation of the licence of Thunderbird Airlines Limited of Prince George, B.C., for operation of an irregular commercial service between Prince George and Point Hudson, Hope, the Peace River dam project.

Bilingual Troops Get Promotions?

OTTAWA (CP)—William Skrzyklo (PC Edmonton East) said today in the Commons that lower ranks in the armed forces are being told they won't be promoted unless they are bilingual.

He said he knows of one or two cases of junior officers in western Canada being informed there will be no promotions for them unless they can speak both French and English.

George McIlraith, president of the Privy Council, said he is not aware of this and will look into it immediately.

$200,000 Fire Destroys Mainland Mill

VANCOUVER (CP)—A mammoth, three-alarm fire which lit up the sky over south Vancouver's industrial area destroyed the sprawling rolling mill division of Western Canada Steel Ltd. Thursday night.

Company officials estimated the damage in excess of $200,000.

The blaze, which attracted hundreds of spectators and caused a traffic jam in the area, was punctuated by explosions as flames reached tanks of oxygen and acetylene in the rolling mills building.

About 30 workmen on shift when the fire started, fled the building. There were no injuries.

Fire officials said it apparently started when a white-hot steel bar fell off a conveyor and touched a wooden wall. It spread quickly through most of the sprawling, T-shaped building.

Western Canada Steel was taken over by Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company in July of last year.

IMMEDIATE BOYCOTT KING PLEA

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. called today for an immediate three-stage economic boycott against the state of Alabama in protest of the racial situation there.

He said the move should culminate, if necessary, in "a boycott of specific consumer products."

U.S. Patrol Planes Watch Tonkin Ships

WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy patrol planes are keeping tabs on Soviet ships and vessels of other countries heading through the Gulf of Tonkin toward North Viet Nam, sources said today.

They said these patrol aircraft sometimes fly as low as a few hundred feet to get clear identification of such ships, to photograph them, and to check on whether they are carrying deck cargo such as airplane fuselages, missile bodies or tanks.

These sources deny navy planes do any buzzing, which means a low and harassing pass.

The Soviet Union has been claiming repeated U.S. buzzing of its ships off Viet Nam, in the east China Sea, and the Sea of Japan.

TAYLOR TESTIFIES

Outlook Better For Viet Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Johnson administration strategists neared the end of their current Viet Nam review today amid some cautious optimism that the situation is taking a turn for the better.

Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor was due to brief congressional committees before meeting with the national security council and President Johnson.

This will about wind up Taylor's one-week round of consultations here. He is scheduled to head back to Saigon Saturday.

Johnson held a press conference Thursday just before a two-hour session with Taylor and the administration's diplomatic, defence and intelligence chiefs.

The president said the talks are focusing on boosting efficiency of the Viet Nam campaign, but he declined to disclose any military plans. "I know of no far-reaching strategy that is being suggested or promulgated," he added.

As for the future over use of non-lethal gas against Viet Cong guerrillas, Johnson said "somebody made a mountain out of a molehill" with the allegations that the U.S. was engaging in poison-gas warfare.

Concerning any Communist willingness to talk peace, he said:

"I have no indication and no evidence that they are ready and willing to negotiate under conditions that would be productive and I know of no information we have received that would indicate any conference at this time would be productive or would hold out hopes of achieving what we all desire so much—peace in the world."

Washington has kept the door open for possible negotiations—provided the Communists show intent to end the assault on the south.

The continued military pressure, including the air attacks on North Viet Nam, was believed to be making an impact.

In London, British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart told the House of Commons without further elaboration:

"As difficult and impossible as the Communist attitude has so far been... there are now signs of more ground for hope than even a day ago."

RECEIVES APPEAL

State Secretary Dean Rusk Thursday received an appeal from 17 neutral nations for no-conditions - attached negotiations on Viet Nam. He told representatives of the 17 non-aligned nations that America wants peace, and this would come to Southeast Asia quickly if the Communists abandon aggression there.

A state department spokesman said the United States was not endorsing or opposing a possible peace-seeking trip by UN Secretary-General U. Thant to Peking and Hanoi. The spokesman took the same position on travels planned by former British foreign secretary

NEW TURN IN ASIAN CONFLICT

Suddenly Peace Hints Fly

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Something new—perhaps dramatic—may be in store for the Viet Nam crisis.

Non-aligned nations are taking an initiative to seek peace negotiations "without strings." Moscow seems anxious to snuff out the smoldering fuse in Southeast Asia. North Viet Nam hints vaguely it might listen. The big stumbling block appears to be China.

Talks may be possible, but they could require something like diplomatic isolation of China.

Southeast Asia's future may lie with the answer to questions like these:

—How much control has China over the North Vietnamese regime in Hanoi?

—Why did the Soviet Communist party virtually humiliate itself in adopting the soft answer to Peking's harsh attacks in the world Communist dispute?

—What was the meaning of official hints from Washington that the United Nations might have a role in easing the Viet Nam peril?

From time to time there have been indications that the Hanoi regime wriggles uncomfortably in China's grip. Ho Chi Minh was a Moscow-trained agent for the Communist international organization for much of his life. Ho's heart probably is with Moscow, but his border is with China, and his Communists cautiously supported the Chinese in the Moscow-Peking quarrel.

Yet Ho must fear to see North Viet Nam laid waste as a sacrifice to Chinese ambitions.

Through cautious hints dropped in the right places, Hanoi has managed to spread the word that it would not insist on withdrawal of U.S. troops from the south as a condition for a cease-fire and negotiations.

BEHAVIOR INTRIGUING

Soviet behavior toward the Viet Nam issue has been intriguing against the background of the Moscow-Peking battle.

Moscow has sought to be seen as a reasonable party in the dispute, the one willing to go more than half way toward peace and unity, even to failing to reply in kind to Chinese propaganda attacks.

It is unlike Moscow, representing a mighty world power, to humiliate itself before Peking. There may be a motive.

By adopting this attitude, the Kremlin can say in the future that it went more than half way to patch up the dispute, and that if the gap cannot be closed, the fault in the eyes of world Communists must lie with the Chinese. This would leave the Kremlin free to adopt whatever diplomatic course it deemed best suited to Soviet national interests.

The Moscow-Peking clash is pronounced in Africa and Asia, where Chinese delegations are busily engaged in undermining the Russians' claim to representation in an Afro-Asian meeting in Algiers this June. But there seeps more to it than just that.

The Chinese probably would like to parry just such a development as the non-aligned nations' initiative for no-strings negotiations in South Viet Nam. The situation as it is can continue for years without costing the Chinese much, and can promise eventual effective domination of all Southeast Asia for Peking.

China will react angrily to the idea of a UN role in South Viet Nam. Peking already suspects

HOME GARDEN

Now Is The Time To Sow

By JACK BEASTALL

Have you noticed the horsechestnut trees lately?

Maybe not, but during the past week they have been leafing out with reckless abandon.

This donning of a new spring outfit is significant to old-time gardeners in this vicinity, for it is their signal that the seed-sowing season has started.

They will tell you that the horsechestnut is the most reliable indicator of spring. While other trees may show flower or leaf in any mild spell, this chestnut bides its time.

Once it becomes active, it provides the green light to gardeners. Seeds of hardy vegetables can be sown, planting and transplanting can be speeded up with the assurance of spring weather in the weeks to come.

Thus the old-timers contributed to my gardening education when I adopted this area some 35 years ago, and through the years the horsechestnuts have been as reliable as any harbinger of spring.

Having received their nod of approval the rest is up to us. If we dilly-dally our chances will be lost for this year.

No longer can we afford to look out the window, comment distastefully on the wind, the rain, or the brilliant sunlight, and yawningly decide that tomorrow will be soon enough to start.

The horsechestnuts say now is the time, and they are not fooling!

Problems of Size

QUITE APART FROM THE details of the report, the Capital Region Transportation Study released yesterday will startle Greater Victorians with a vision of the large and complex community which is rapidly being created here. The report is one of the most important to have been made in this area and should receive the immediate careful attention of the civic, municipal and senior governments concerned. The Capital Region Planning Board deserves commendation for commissioning this vital undertaking.

Those who read even the highlights of the study cannot fail to gain an impression of the difficult problems caused by mere size—the problem of moving thousands of persons and their cars into and out of the urban area, of conveying them from point to point within the city, of providing space for temporary car storage, and of coping with the special congestions caused by peak use during rush hours.

With the predicted population of some 250,000 by 1981, the Greater Victoria area will experience more than a taste of the traffic problems that afflict metropolitan centres around the world. The transportation needs of human beings who are concentrated in relatively small areas become more and more expensive to meet.

The Transportation Study attempts to forestall some of the more serious future traffic jams by urging drastic relocations and additions to our system of main thoroughfares leading to the city, to the lesser roads which siphon off this traffic, and to the local streets which serve the traveller who has arrived. The magnitude of the job may be seen in the estimate of $44 millions which must be spent over the next 16 years.

Few motorists would disbelieve

the assertion of the traffic report that many of our thoroughfares are already being used at or near capacity. Many of the recommendations of the report cannot be long delayed if we are to avoid dangerous congestion on our main highways with a consequent toll in lost time and higher accident rates.

The provision of better east-west traffic arteries is particularly needed and has, indeed, already begun in a tentative way. The north-south arteries require early expansion to cope with the increasing up-island flow and the almost explosive growth of traffic to and from the Swartz Bay-Sidney-Airport area.

Two points should be noted in connection with the proposed development of the Patricia Bay and Trans-Canada freeway systems. It is essential, if the great expenditure for these is not to be largely wasted, that the principle of limited access be rigidly enforced. Almost all our attempts to provide speedy entry and exit for the Greater Victoria district have been hampered by the growth of building development along the thoroughfares and the constant pressure on governments for "just one more" connecting roadway. The inevitable result of this is that speeds must be reduced on section after section, traffic lights make their appearance, accident hazards are increased and the purpose of the highway is nullified.

Secondly, the freeways should not be created only as utilitarian devices to move traffic quickly. They should be designed as landscaped assets with treed borders and attractive medians. Plantings along the length of the latter serve the extra purpose of diminishing the hazard of oncoming lights at night. These freeways after all will be Greater Victoria's front door. Let us not construct them in the manner of delivery entrances to this city of gardens.

Pressure on the Pound

INCREASING INTERVENTION by the Bank of England to support the pound in money markets has been noted in recent weeks. At the same time reports from Washington say officials there are becoming concerned that Britain, despite Prime Minister Wilson's pledge not to do so, will have to devalue sterling.

Since devaluation of sterling would have a marked effect on United States monetary policy—and in turn on Canadian—these hints that the pound is once again under attack have a disturbing implication for this country. Monetary policy in Canada and the United States today must hold a delicate balance. Steady economic growth is desired without an inflationary boom. But measures must also be taken to ease balance of payments problems, and controls of this nature are difficult to impose without disrupting economic expansion.

There is little doubt where the pressure on the British pound and the American dollar is coming from. The European central banks are making no secret of their belief that eventually both the pound and the dollar must be devalued. Since the pound is more immediately vulnerable, it is currently under the heaviest pressure.

The British government is expected to bring in a mildly deflationary budget next Tuesday. This would have the effect of slowing the economy to a degree with the intention of holding down rising costs in order to give the country a better break in world markets.

Washington's reaction to this course is likely to be some tightening of the money supply and an increase in interest rates. Canada would, perforce, have to follow suit even at the risk of some retardation of the economy.

Altogether, the prospect is growing dimmer that Canada this year will attain the rate of growth set out by the Economic Council of Canada as necessary to provide the job opportunities which will soon be needed. Stimulation of the economy through some means other than low interest rates and a strong money supply—tax cuts, for instance—seems to be indicated.

General H. D. G. Crerar

FOR THE CANADIAN GENERATION of the Second World War years it is difficult to think of General H. D. G. Crerar as having been 76 years of age. It is still more difficult to think of Canada without him.

The quiet but vigorous and very able man who became the first Canadian general to command an army in the field, and in doing so established a reputation as Canada's most distinguished military leader, has passed into history. His death closes a chapter in the military story of this country, for he was an integral part of the problems and the successes of those momentous war years. Our relations with the British military command, the conscription issue at home, the thorny political problems that beset the path of the military commanders—all these were survived by General Crerar as he guided the Canadian land forces to achievement of their exemplary record.

Canadians will not be alone in remembering General Crerar. His worth was recognized by ally and enemy alike and he well earned his honored place in our history.

For Mutual Benefit

ALDERMAN ROBERT BAIRD offers the useful suggestion that students of Grade 12, or those about to leave school, should be encouraged to attend sessions of the city council. The experience, he believes, would be educational and might inspire the young people to use their votes a year or two later. The idea has merit, and it could be mutually beneficial. Aldermen, faced with a group of sharp-eyed, critical youngsters, would be moved to maintain the highest standards of civic statesmanship, and this could not fail to reward all concerned.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

Futility of Ascending Violence

THE WAR in Viet Nam has reached the point where the President is wrestling with momentous and fateful decisions. For what has happened is that the official theory of the war, as propounded by Gen. Maxwell Taylor to President Kennedy and by Defence Secretary Robert McNamara to President Johnson, has proved to be unworkable. The government in Saigon has not been able to pacify South Viet Nam even with the help of American munitions, money and 25,000 military advisers. The crucial fact today is that for all practical purposes the Saigon government has lost control of the countryside and its followers are increasingly holed-up in the cities.

Roads Cut

The roads and the railroads connecting the cities have been cut by the Viet Cong. The cities now have to be supplied in great measure by air and by sea. This condition of affairs has been well reported by Richard Dudman in a series of reports to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and his findings are confirmed in all essentials, though not yet publicly, in the well-informed quarters in Washington.

The surest evidence that Dudman's reports are substantially correct is that the Pentagon and the State Department there is mounting pressure for the commitment to Southeast Asia of American infantry. The current estimate is that the President should be prepared to send 350,000 American soldiers, even though this would compel him to order a mobilization of reservists and draftees. This call for American ground forces is the logical and inevitable consequence of the virtual collapse of the Saigon government in the villages. Having lost the countryside, Saigon has lost the sources of military manpower. This deprives it of the means for winning the war. The official estimates today are that the Saigon government commands forces superior to the Viet Cong by a ratio of not quite five to one. Experience shows that no guerrilla war has ever been subdued with such a low ratio of superiority.

Need More Troops

It is estimated that in Malaya the British and the Malaysians, who were fighting the indigenous Chinese guerrillas, reached a superiority of 50 to one. In Cyprus, which they gave up, the British had an overwhelming force. In Algeria, though the French army had unmistakable superiority, the country became untenable. It is the deficiency in South Vietnamese military manpower which explains why the pressure is now on to put in Americans to fill it.

After two months of bombing North Viet Nam, it has become manifest also that the bombing has not changed the course of the war. As a result of this disappointment, the President is now under pressure to extend the bombing to the populated centres around Hanoi and Haiphong.

There is no doubt that American air power can devastate North Viet Nam and, if China intervened, could do great damage in China. But if we had an American army of 350,000 men in South Viet Nam, and extended the war in the air, we would have on our hands an interminable war without the prospect of a solution: To talk about freedom and national independence amid such violence and chaos would be to talk nonsense.

In order to rationalize, that is to sell, the wider war, we are being told by Secretary McNamara and others that this war is a decisive test for the future. It will decide the future of "wars of liberation." This is a profoundly and dangerously false notion, and it shows a lamentable lack of knowledge and understanding of the revolutionary upheavals of the epoch in which we live. It assumes that revolutionary uprisings against established authority are manufactured in Peking or in Moscow and that they would not happen if they were not instigated, supported and directed from one of the capitals of communism.

If this were true, the revolutionary movements could be suppressed once and for all by knocking out Peking or Moscow. They little know the Hydra who think that the Hydra has only one head and that it can be cut off.

Experience shows that there is no single central source of the revolutionary upheavals of our epoch. What is there that is common to the Irish rebellion, to the Jewish uprising in Palestine, to the civil war in Cuba, to the Arab rebellion in Algeria, to the Huk revolt in the Philippines? What is common to them all is violent discontent with the established order and a willingness of a minority of the discontented to die in the attempt to overthrow it.

What has confused many well-meaning Americans is that in some of these rebellions, though not by any means in all of them, Communists have become the leaders of the rebellion. But that does not mean that they have owned the rebellion. The resistance to the Nazis in France and Italy contained a high proportion of Communists among the active partisans. But 20 years later it is Gen. Charles de Gaulle who presides over France.

It would be well to abandon the half-baked notion that the war in Southeast Asia will be decisive for the future of revolutionary upheavals in the world. Revolution is a home-grown product, and it could not be stamped out decisively and once for all—supposing we had such delusions of grandeur—by stamping out Red China. In Southeast Asia we have entangled ourselves in one of the many upheavals against the old regime, and we shall not make things any better by thrashing around with ascending violence.

Gas, However It's Spelled

RING-OUT a welcome for two new terms in the American military lexicon. One is "benevolent incapacitator"; the other is "riot-control agent." Both are euphemisms for "gas," and were hastily pressed into service by government spokesmen after it was learned South Vietnamese forces had used American-supplied non-lethal gas in the war against the Communist Viet Cong.

Purser

The news was as much of a revelation to President Johnson, Defence Secretary McNamara and State Secretary Rusk as to the public.

Mr. McNamara spent two hours getting through by telephone to appropriate sources in South Viet Nam to confirm the story after the first press reports appeared.

Worried about possible international reaction, he then quickly called a press conference which was notable mainly for his studious avoidance of the word "gas." If the gas involved in the South Viet Nam affair wasn't poisonous, the word certainly was.

The uproar has not only been international. Six Republican congressmen demanded that the use of gas be barred as "abhorrent to all people" and because by allowing its use the United States risks such international support as it may have for its Viet Nam policy. Leading American newspapers were unimpressed by Mr. McNamara's explanation.

"The reaction to this blunder could have been forecast easily and precisely," said the Baltimore Sun. "It is possible to argue that in war it is more humane, if that is the word, to sicken people with a non-lethal gas than to burn them with napalm or to kill them with high explosives. But in the context of the war in Viet Nam it should not be necessary for the United States to have to explain such action with such an argument. It simply seems incredible that the American government has got itself involved in the use of gas."

The Washington Post said that while it is difficult to find out how much damage gas and napalm are doing the enemy, "it is not hard to find out how much damage they are doing us." The paper said, regarding even non-lethal gas, that "all the propaganda resources in the world cannot explain away its employment as an act of Christian charity and humanitarian mercy."

The New York Times noted that "in Viet Nam, gas was supplied and sanctioned by white men against Asians. This is something that no Asian, Communist or not, will forget—it is stupid to lay the United States open to a moral condemnation that is not confined to the Communist world."

All of this has slightly baffled the administration, which purports to view the use of nausea-producing gases as a routine matter hardly worthy of high-level consultation. In practice, further use of gas is expected to be restricted at least until the furore dies down, as officials hope it will.

Limited Use

Mr. Rusk, in a public policy pronouncement, kept the way open for further use of gas. He said that while it would continue to be used if situations warranted it, its usefulness was extremely limited and he doubted it would be used much. The initiative remains with U.S. commanders in the field, but "the anticipation is that these weapons will be used only in riot control or situations analogous to riot control." Mr. Rusk appeared to consider the flushing out of Viet Cong from villages to be a situation analogous to riot control.

The U.S. does not regard as gas warfare the use of gases of the type commonly possessed by civil police forces. But there is the danger that the other side may disagree if their use inflicts military setbacks. Even the mildest beginning of chemical warfare may escalate.

The U.S. could most easily justify use of a non-lethal gas in a situation where such action could mean the difference between overall defeat and victory. But the three gas incidents this winter were exceedingly trivial and the use of gas failed anyway.

There remains the standard Viet Nam question: Is the administration properly aware of what is really going on across the Pacific? The latest gas incident was on January 27 but Washington knew nothing until informed by the press last month. There is a continual failure of information in the Viet Nam war. In this case the U.S. was put at a propaganda disadvantage while gaining no compensating material advantage.

Voices Of Quebec

Montreal Le Devoir

Daniel Johnson's book, Equality or Independence, published on the eve of his Union Nationale party's convention... diagnoses a constitutional sickness as the key to the "Canadian crisis."

With reservations, we must agree with Mr. Johnson that the British North America Act does not now fit the demands of a sovereign people. It does not give the French group, from one end of the country to the other, the minimum of legal recognition it has a right to...

Mr. Johnson draws the logical conclusion—we must get rid of the old document and open a new page.

Three solutions are possible: Independence, a confederal arrangement, or a renewed federalism. But Mr. Johnson's propositions are disarmingly vague.

We must, he says, "find a formula in which English-Canadians and French-Canadians, as well as New Canadians, feel equally at home."

One would like to go along with his rhetoric, but the simplest intellectual rigor forbids it. We would reject Mr. Johnson's ideas out of hand... if he were not a party leader.

Mr. Johnson has just performed the uncommon tour de force of being unanimously accepted as his party's chief without presenting any new ideas. The Union Nationale has regained confidence in itself.

Trois Rivières Le Nouvelliste

Federal legislation allows the provinces to contract out of joint federal-provincial programs. Quebec policy on this matter is well known. In the eyes of the rest of the country, that policy has seemed astonishing and anti-federal. But already there are signs that going it alone in this respect is not repugnant to all the provinces and that some are considering imitating Quebec.

Premier Thatcher of Saskatchewan is acting like a good provincial chief in taking a close look at the federal law authorizing withdrawals from joint schemes. Now Saskatchewan is contemplating possible withdrawal from five federal-provincial programs. The premiers of Nova Scotia, Ontario and Manitoba have advised the federal government that they are reviewing their positions as regards the withdrawal law.

Montreal La Presse

More modest than the Union Nationale's, another political convention has taken place in Montreal. Both conventions had a common aim: preparing their parties to meet the electorate.

The NDP had first to adopt a constitution... which created an autonomous party on the federal level, and not just a "Quebec wing."

What will be the NDP's orientation? The convention gave a fairly good idea. Already in 1961 it clearly established its doctrine on a federalism designed to promote two nations, distinct in culture but bound by political objectives—freedom, security, economic development, social justice, international solidarity.

"The crisis in Quebec," said Mr. Robert Cliche, the new Quebec NDP leader, "is more than a wave of nationalism; it is a human crisis."

The NDP, of course, is still a very small splinter group in our province. But if it keeps on playing the sometimes harsh role of a conscience, whispering in our ear the austere language of reason, it will do Quebec and Canada a great service.

A human crisis in Quebec? Certainly. Nationalism cannot explain religious disaffection, moral reversals, youth's trying out the most diverse doctrines, the impatience of the workers. Nor can nationalism answer this quest for truth.

Perhaps the political future belongs to those who think of man before thinking of the nation.

Quebec Le Soleil

The Soviets are rejoicing over their latest space feats. They couple this with glorification of socialism and threats against "the imperialist aggressors in Viet Nam" and those behind the supposed nuclear plans of NATO. But at the same time informed circles in Moscow are saying that the Soviet Union is seriously short of funds after its massive purchases of foreign wheat in recent years.

Soviet efforts to achieve government promises of higher living standards and production have by no means been crowned with success. Soviet economists are worried over the many programs still incomplete, which suggests wastage and limited financial resources.

Most worrisome to the Soviet government is the problem of agriculture. The government has officially dropped the idea of collectivizing farms, choosing rather to proclaim its desire to harness the material motivations of the peasants.

Ottawa Le Droit

No one will dispute the calm observation that the great corrupting influence of Western democracies is the need of parties for election funds. It would be in the parties' interest to find a solution, serenely and without hypocrisy. We have none to offer, but we urge readers who have ideas to write to their MPs.

The NDP has raised the question in Parliament but its proposals have gone too far in one direction or another.

The democratic spirit doesn't seem widespread enough for party members to finance their parties. The Quebec Liberal Federation is making fun of us when it says its funds come from its militants. Daniel Johnson is franker when he admits the Union Nationale has not been able to collect even small dues from members.

It is notorious that our main political parties "live" off businessmen's or economic groups' gifts. We see nothing wrong with that if only their names and contributions were published. Then we might better understand certain legislative measures, or they'd never be presented.

Everyone knows about the commitments of our Canadian parties. It is time for them to find a way of ending them, aided by civic-spirited voters. Our history is shot through with scandals stretching back to election funds. A non-partisan committee like the one now studying the electoral map might well take up the matter of financing parties.

Looking Back

From The Times of April 2, 1890:

London: An hypnotic experiment in Berlin described as "very remarkable" was reported in the British medical journal, Lancet. The experiment, by 60 eminent physicians and dental surgeons in Berlin, involved a girl whose tonsils were removed painlessly while she obeyed the slightest suggestions of the hypnotist. Other experiments in hypnosis by letter not present were also described.

The CPP—Filial Responsibility

OTTAWA—Everybody from left wing socialists to right wing Social Crediters has had a whack at the Canada Pension Plan, to say nothing of the provinces and all those who made representations to the government and Parliament.

Out of this conflict and maelstrom of ideas has come legislation that is some respects is an improvement over the original 1963 plan, as by the addition of disability and survivors' benefits. In some respects it is not as good, as by its higher cost—3.6% of income instead of 2%—and its lower pension levels.

But when you consider that compromise was necessary to reconcile conflicting views and interests, and when you consider the vastly important role of the pension fund in economic development—a role not contemplated in the original non-funded, pay-as-we-go plan—then it is clear that despite imperfections the pension plan is a measure of great social and economic import.

The plan is foremost a recognition that in an industrialized society the filial responsibility to support aged parents no longer suffices. Except in the diminishing rural environment, our society is not geared for this kind of provision for the old.

The state long since recognized its obligation to supplement filial care, first by the municipal poorhouse and other charitable aid, next by means tested old age pensions, then by pensions to all oldsters as of right. Now the last are to be supplemented by contributory, wage-related pensions so that, hopefully, all will have a basic level of security.

Under the Canada Pension Plan the state assumes the burden of filial responsibility and apportions it among all working citizens, so that everybody contributes to support every over-65 dad and granddad. The state gives assurance that today's contributors will be tomorrow's recipients of pensions from the contributions of the next generation of workers.

The critics bemoan the "cost." Sacred leader Thompson says "We are tying a weight of taxation around our necks... which will be difficult to bear." Quebec Sacred Raymond Langlois sees the plan as "a plaster that sucks the Canada economy dry." They overlook the fact that the plan is basically the reapportionment of the burden of filial and governmental charity, and that contributions surplus to immediate needs are simply a deferment of purchasing power, not confiscation.

It's estimated that contributions will build up a fund of $5 billions by 1975. This money will be invested in provincial securities, at interest. It will provide money for roads, schools, universities and economic development programs that otherwise would have to be raised by taxes or sale of bond issues in the market.

Contributors will have less money to spend, but against this must be balanced the money they no longer have to contribute for parental maintenance. On the other hand, the oldsters and the governments will have more money to spend, so the economy is unlikely to suffer by the transfer of purchasing power.

How long ago was it—5,000 years? 10,000 years?—when we stopped turning the old folks out to die, or conking them on the head for the stew pot, when they got too old to work? That was a great social advance. So similarly is the Canada Pension Plan.

De Gaulle Was the Fatal Blank Spot In Kennedy's Map of the Future

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

WASHINGTON—When the late President Kennedy proposed a Grand Design of transatlantic partnership, his map of the future contained a fatal blank spot. He had failed to study the character of Charles de Gaulle.

That remote and mysterious creature not only has smashed the Grand Design as an economic proposition, for the time being anyway; he has thereby thwarted subsidiary designs equally important and stretching far beyond central Europe.

He has done all this for sincere but purely political reasons, in defiance of economics or, as the American government believes, of plain sanity. His purpose is to obstruct and humiliate the United States—and thus magnify the grandeur of France. In this mystical strategy the decline of American power must automatically elevate his own, as if the Western alliance were a kind of see-saw.

Not Satisfied

So far he has done a good job of demolition, but he is by no means satisfied yet. Having frustrated "an interdependent North Atlantic community of maximum trade and co-operative foreign policies," he now intends to deflate the American economy and hence, American strength.

That is the real meaning of his attempt to revive the gold standard which obviously he does not understand. His motives are still sincere and still political, not economic. He is determined to rid Europe of the "Anglo-Saxon" presence, though Europe would be helpless without it.

The American government has no illusions on this score. It knows that the "Anglo-Saxon" presence cannot be excluded. It knows, or thinks it knows, precisely what de Gaulle is doing, and knows also what it will do itself in the contest among allies now beginning.

Real Attitude

Before one can understand the many-sided crisis surrounding the so-called problem of gold it is necessary to grasp the real attitude of the United States toward France in particular and Europe in general. That attitude, as drastically altered during recent months, is quite different from its public image.

In the first place, the United States has made a new measurement of the French leader. "De Gaulle," says an American statesman who knows him well, "is a great genius but his greatness is out of date. He stands like Canute beside the wave of history and tells it to retreat. It won't."

We can't tell, of course, exactly where the wave is going but we can rely on one thing for sure—history is constantly pushing all nations together in spite of their quarrels. Old-fashioned nationalism is just impossible if we're to avoid ruin or war but de Gaulle is reviving nationalism at the worst possible moment.

"It was to be expected in the new, primitive countries. They're naturally feeling their oats. The tragedy is that the head of the most civilized state in Europe has decided to make that doctrine respectable."

"He's giving nationalism a habitation and a name. He introduces it as a new invention when it's the oldest thing in the world and, in our time, the most dangerous. He's re-infecting Europe with the same disease that almost destroyed it twice in our time. And even if Gaullism falls to pieces after he's gone, the infection will remain, not only in Europe but everywhere else."

De Gaulle is such a complicated enigma that assessments of his work vary widely in detail. One school of Washington thinkers regards him as no more than a temporary obstruction in the tide of events, soon to disappear, leaving no permanent results.

In this view he is a tragic, or perhaps a comic figure, with all his greatness, and the United States takes him too seriously. He has tried to keep Europe divided in neat packages of national sovereignty for his own motives of French supremacy but already he has failed.

The Common Market, which he inherited from his predecessors and always distrusted, is integrating the continent quietly, irresistibly, organically, cell by cell and this process has passed the point of no return.

Internal free trade, a common external tariff, the free movement of people soon to be followed by common financial and currency arrangements—these elements of an embryonic federal system are growing all the time and cannot be repressed. Later on, the prosperous Common Market will suck in the European Free Trade Area, led by Britain. The current attempt of Austria, an EFTA member, to join the six is a significant straw in the wind.

De Gaulle unilaterally vetoed Britain's admission to Europe but the veto will not outlast many years. Then a unified Europe and an eager North America will be reconciled, trans-Atlantic trade will expand massively and the Grand Design will rise from the ashes.

The Optimists

Such is the faith of the Washington optimist who persuaded President Kennedy to sponsor their Atlantic vision in the first place. The pessimists do not share that faith or, at best, consider it a far-off possibility. They fear that before he is finished, de Gaulle may demoralize the entire world economy.

At any rate, three formidable facts shine clearly through the Atlantic haze.

The first is that the United States will not quarrel openly with de Gaulle if a quarrel can be avoided. President Johnson will not demean what he regards as the highest office in the world by struggling with the dictator of France, an incomparably weaker nation.

Instead, de Gaulle will be allowed to go his own way, since he cannot be stopped by outsiders anyhow, and when he reaches a dead end, when the folly of his adventure has been fully demonstrated, France cannot blame the United States. It can blame no one but itself.

Then, hopefully, France will return to sensible policies under a new generation of leaders after the great man has departed. Meanwhile, it is bootless to rail against a passing misfortune of history that history alone can cure.

There is no hostility to France in this reasoning. On the contrary, there is a warm affection dating back to Lafayette's time. Besides, the United States accepts the undeniable premise that a co-operative France, because of its geography, if nothing else, is an essential part of the Western alliance. Without it the alliance cannot possibly succeed in the long run.

The second fact is that the earlier American assessment of West Germany has sharply altered.

In the days of President Kennedy, the vigorous German state was generally regarded in Washington as the great hope of Europe. Whether Kennedy was fully convinced of this assumption in his peculiarly secretive mind is unknown but certainly some powerful men around him believed that American policy must be based primarily on German power.

Sure of Germany

In the pinch, it was said, the United States could be sure of German support and soldiers who knew how to fight. It could not be sure of its other European allies, even of Britain.

The present American government is very dubious, to say the least, of such advice. It has been unpleasantly surprised by Germany's ostentatious failure to back the United States in the test of Viet-Nam. It is further shocked by the clumsy blunders of German policy in the Middle East. It wonders increasingly whether the Erhard government has any coherent policy at all.

The United States will continue to nourish and unquestionably will defend Germany as an indispensable bastion of American power, a key factor in the free world's safety. Unquestionably, too, German military and economic power are still considered a major factor in the tortured alliance; an asset to be fostered at great cost to the American treasury.

Grave Doubt

But outside its own boundaries and particular sphere of usefulness, Germany has not lived up to American expectations. Fully occupied with its own internal problems and divided by a fierce partisan struggle as it approaches next autumn's election, it seems to lack a sense of world politics and its proper place in them. Its future and, indeed, the future of the democratic process itself among a people who have yet to master it, are in grave doubt.

These doubts about France and Germany have produced the third fact, the most hopeful of all, as a Canadian must see it.

For reasons of joint interest in southeast Asia, and for more lasting reasons of history, language and instinct, the United States and Britain have recently achieved a far closer unity of purpose than the world public yet realizes.

Same Lifeboat

Deeper forces melt the ideological differences between an American government of private enterprise and a British government of theoretical socialism, both of them occupying the same leaky lifeboat.

When Bismarck said that the common English language of the United States and Britain was the largest fact in the world, his prophecy did not err. His dictum, often forgotten in the family squabbles after his time, remains true today. Once the chips are down, the United States can count on Britain and Britain's English-speaking partners as it can count on no other allies. And no American seems to understand that better than President Johnson.

As one of his congressional lieutenants told me: "We used to scream about Britain's colonialism. Now we can see, in Asia and Africa, what a superb job she actually did there. Look what happened when she left! We're all wallowing in a vacuum. I wish to God Britain was still a great power to carry part of our load."

The theory once popular in Washington that Britain was exhausted as an important world influence, that it would gradually shrink into a cosy, neutral retreat for a soft people assuredly is not the view of the Johnson government.

It believes that Britain must face a wrenching time of economic troubles, that conditions will grow worse before they start to improve. But the Johnson government does not doubt Britain's recovery, once it has plumbed the bottom and is finally compelled to deal with basic problems too long evaded and disguised.

Before then, however, a dangerous period is opening not only for Britain but for the United States and the entire world; as the next article will try to explain.

Healing the Wounds Of the Stalin Terror

By STEPHEN S. ROSENFELD, The Washington Post

MOSCOW—Pioneering again, the literary monthly Novy Mir has raised the politically and socially sensitive question of the fate of the families of men accused of crime.

A story titled "Rookie" tells of a new policeman who balks at his superior's coldness to the daughter and grandmother of an accused speculator. The author is Israel Metter of Leningrad, a relative unknown.

The story brings to mind the broad discrimination and neglect suffered by families of Stalin's victims as well as the lesser hardships still undergone now by relatives of non-political criminals. It suggests that a whole "class" of Soviet citizens has been wounded in the wake of terror.

Into Reality

Metter pushes considerably further into Soviet reality than the orthodox "socialist realism" allows. He implies that not only legality but sympathy is required to bury Stalinism and that the interests of state and people do not always automatically coincide. He ends his story with an ambiguity—not with the usual clear lesson. Reversing the customary pattern of "fathers" advising "sons," Metter has the "son," the rookie policeman unspoiled by Stalinist habits, instructing the "fathers," the older officers.

The rookie Sasha mentions the innocent daughter and grandmother of the accused speculator. "They are not guilty," he says.

"What of it?" asks the old police man Gulyayev. "We didn't touch them." He asks if Sasha pities them.

"Of course," Sasha replies. "But do you not pity the state?" Gulyayev asks. "Does not the state consist of people?"

"I didn't say that," says Sasha. "But here we sit, drinking and eating. And there is the old woman and the girl."

"I have no right to think of them," says Gulyayev. "I don't want to. I don't have enough heart for the likes of them."

"But there's still something wrong," says Sasha. "And can you tell me what?" asks Gulyayev. "I cannot," answers Sasha.

INSIDE POLITICS

With Douglas Fisher, M.P.

(Mr. Fisher is the member for Port Arthur riding for the New Democratic Party.)

OTTAWA—For an hour Guy Favreau was jaunty after he came back to the House last Friday. He had appeared before the Dorion Inquiry. His aura of confidence seemed to indicate that he felt the worst was now over, that he had acquitted himself well.

Gordon Churchill soon knocked the halo off with questions about the contradiction in evidence given to the Dorion inquiry by the Justice Minister and senior RCMP officials. The challenge was raised that such questions were out of order with the inquiry still underway. Perhaps they were; certainly they were nasty.

It is my argument that both Mr. Pearson and Mr. Favreau have misjudged the dangers to the Liberal Party in the Rivard affair and that Mr. Churchill's kind of questions will haunt this Government for a long time, long after Raymond Denis and Guy Rouleau are judged by Chief Justice Dorion.

While the Canadian experience suggests that scandals in office do little harm to a government at election time, the possibilities for satire, for making fun, are so apparent to a campaigner like John Diefenbaker that they should be obvious to the government which may be his victim.

It is amusing to note the reiteration, especially by those who want to believe well of the Pearson government, that the personal integrity of Mr. Pearson and Mr. Favreau is above reproach. Essentially, this is what is serious about the Dorion inquiry. What Raymond Denis or Guy Rouleau may have done is not as important as the character of the response made by the PM and the minister of Justice when information came to them.

The PM seems to have forgotten a certain vote in the House of Commons just before Christmas. This division was technically over a Speaker's ruling, which was sustained by 122 votes to 105, with Social Credit support saving the day.

BETWEEN OURSELVES

By Elizabeth Forbes

Yesterday, at Harewood House in England, where she lived her married life and her widowhood, the Princess Royal was buried.

It was a quiet ceremony, in keeping with the gentle, self-effacing aunt of the present Queen.

Brought up in the early days of this century, by a mother who believed that duty transcended every other tenet, the Princess Royal accepted this ideal as her own.

In her youth she had little freedom as her grand-niece, the young Princess Anne, knows freedom.

She was trained by governesses, educated by tutors and chaperoned wherever she walked. From this mold, the grown-up princess emerged, quiet, shy and dedicated to accept the tasks that must be done by the Royal Family.

In 1922, the princess married the sixth Earl of Harewood, a man many years older than herself. For the next decade she devoted her life to being wife and mother of two sons.

After her husband's death in 1947, she again appeared in public life, to take over public duties as aunt of the Queen.

She came to Canada on several occasions and twice to this city, once in 1955 and again in 1962.

There are many in Victoria who have recollections of these visits, which they cherish.

My own memories include three occasions on which I talked to the Princess Royal, once at a local food market, then at an informal coffee party in Government House and finally at a reception in an officer's mess at the Bay Street Armoury.

It was on the 1955 visit that the princess expressed a desire to shop in a super-market. (At that time there were no stores of this kind in England.)

Government House made the necessary arrangements and one morning the royal lady "went shopping."

Accompanied by Mrs. Frank Mackenzie Ross, then chateleine at Government House, and her secretary, Miss Ruth Maclean, she wheeled a grocery cart up and down the aisles, looked at the different food products and made her choice for a picnic luncheon planned for the following day at Cameron Lake on the Alberni Highway.

It was all done very quietly. Few in the store realized royalty was in their midst. Relaxed and smiling, the princess made her purchases, took the cart to the cashier, paid the bill herself with Canadian money and was out of the store before the manager could don a clean apron.

The second time I talked to the princess was in Government House, the morning she received a group of ex-service women and some members of the press.

I remember she wore a classically styled dress of fine blue wool. Her grey hair was arranged in soft waves. Her cheeks were flushed and pink.

But it was her eyes that drew and held us. They were not as large or as pansy blue as are the eyes of her niece, Princess Margaret, but they were filled with quiet knowledge of sorrows and joys experienced over the years.

Only as she talked to the ex-servicewoman of their children and grandchildren and as she exchanged small anecdotes with them of her grandchildren, did her face soften and the lines of dedication disappear.

The third time I talked to the Princess Royal was at a reception arranged in honor of their colonel-in-chief by the commanding officer and officers of the Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) Regiment.

Her expression was pleasant but the look of duty was very evident in the faint lines indelibly etched around her mouth.

This was an official function and the Princess Royal approached it as she must have approached many other functions during her lifetime, in the way she had been trained.

I prefer to remember her smiling and relaxed and walking almost unknown amongst us, in a super-market store.

Clinic Looks For New Home Near Jubilee

The Handicapped Children's Clinic, formerly known as the Cerebral Palsy Clinic, is looking for a new home.

The one-storey building, adjacent to Royal Jubilee Hospital, which has housed the clinic since 1953, has been condemned by the fire department and the senior medical health officer.

"We are now looking for a site for a new building, as close to the hospital as possible," secretary-manager Mrs. Margaret McClung said Thursday.

The clinic provides treatment for 75 handicapped children from Victoria and different parts of Vancouver Island.

Founded in 1952, it has operated in the hospital annex building since 1953 and now occupies 14 rooms. The working staff includes two physiotherapists, two occupational therapists, a speech therapist, a social worker, a pre-school superintendent and three part-time school teachers.

Gordon Empey, president of the Cerebral Palsy Association, said a building committee headed by David Hall has started negotiations to obtain a site for a new building.

"Over the past 12 years the clinic has offered comprehensive rehabilitative therapy and school training to hundreds of handicapped children."

EXPANDING

"The work is expanding and proper accommodation is urgently needed."

At the annual meeting of the Cerebral Palsy Association Wednesday night, the clinic reported an operating deficit of $678.

Mr. Empey said the public has generously supported the clinic with donations exceeding $15,000, and recent gifts of equipment have included a Guthrie Smith sling suspension, a tapestry loom and new wheel chairs.

The following directors were elected for a two-year period: N. Tanner, K. G. Smith, N. Stewardson, J. G. Glenwright, A. Rowbotham, Ian Campbell.

They will serve with the present board members: R. D. Bennett, A. C. Carter, Mrs. L. F. Dunn, Gordon Empey, Mrs. E. W. Finch-Noyes, David A. Hall, R. F. Hassen, Norman Loomer, E. Lowther, Mrs. H. Barnes and J. N. Stone.

Three-quarters of the physically handicapped children treated at the clinic are cerebral palsy cases.

HOWARD:

Bank of B.C. 'Or Nothing'

Times Ottawa Bureau
OTTAWA — Frank Howard (New Democratic Party-Skeena) made it clear in the Commons Thursday that the two private bills to incorporate banks in western Canada will not be dealt with until the bank of British Columbia is before the Commons.

The B.C. member blocked consideration of the private bill to incorporate the Bank of Western Canada and the private bill to incorporate the Laurentide Bank during private members' hour in the House Thursday night.

So long as the Senate was holding up the private bill to get up the Bank of British Columbia, Mr. Howard said, the Commons would not be allowed to deal with the other two western bank bills.

INTRANSIGENT POSITION
"We cannot consider the bills to incorporate the Bank of Western Canada or the Laurentide Bank because of the intransigent position taken by the Senate with respect to the Bank of British Columbia," he said.

"We feel we cannot give a price position to the incorporation of one bank when another bank in a similar position is denied equal consideration. I think we have to treat these banks as a unit as we have stated on a number of occasions," Mr. Howard told the House.

Mrs. Margaret Konantz (L-Winnipeg South) sponsor of the Bank of Western Canada bill pointed out it had been before parliament now for 14 months. She had hoped it would be considered before the end of this session.

Ron Basford (L-Vancouver-Burrard), sponsor of the Laurentide bank bill, said he had hoped it could be dealt with Thursday otherwise the whole procedure would have to be started over again in a new session.

'ARE WE ANY DIFFERENT?'

Maffeo to Quiz Doctors About Forced Marriages

'deserve publicity'

NANAIMO—Mayor Pete Maffeo will ask doctors if local teen-agers are "off-base" when it comes to sex and marriage.

He decided to pose the question today after hearing the latest report on Nanaimo district problems.

On Thursday Dr. Sven Jensen, a psychiatrist and director of the Central Vancouver Island Mental Health Centre, said two-thirds of weddings in the area are of the forced variety.

Speaking at a PTA meeting, he said he had interviewed clergymen and found that two out of three teen-age brides are pregnant when they walk down the aisle.

In the last few months several Nanaimo doctors have criticized promiscuity among teen-agers.

Today Mayor Maffeo said: "You can take it from me I'm going to look into this problem."

"Are we any different to any other areas in B.C.?"

"I wouldn't like to feel that our newweds are worse than any others."

"Do we deserve the publicity, or are we singled out? Is it just that our medical men are more outspoken than doctors in other areas?"

"These medical men should be asking others 'Are we off base?'"

"There's nothing we can do. We can't interfere with the private lives of citizens."

"However, I wouldn't really like to think our teen-agers here are different to teen-agers anywhere else."

Commenting on the subject, Dr. Gerald Bonham, director of the Central Vancouver Island Health Unit, said venereal disease figures for 1964 are double those for 1963.

He said: "It makes us worry about what will happen in 1965."

A large number of VD victims are teen-agers, according to Dr. Bonham.

NEW PRESIDENT of Duncan and District Credit Union is Everett H. Bates. He was elected at the 14th annual meeting which reported a surplus last year of $81,956. Membership voted a 5 per cent dividend on shares and a 10 per cent rebate of interest paid on personal loans. The balance sheet showed assets totalling $2,134,417. Loans totalling $1,392,360 were made to members in 1964.

ISLAND DIGEST

HE GOT HIS MAN—A MOUNTIE

LAKE COWICHAN—It was a fair cop.

Driving through the village here at 3 this morning, Ed Mohns of Duncan, spotted a suspicious character lurking outside the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

Asked what he was doing, the man replied: "There's been a bit of trouble with the alarm bell and the manager's inside fixing it."

Mr. Mohns believed the man and went on his way.

DOUBTS

But as he continued to drive home from work he began to have doubts.

After all he'd not actually seen the manager inside the bank.

With rising suspicion he called on Duncan RCMP headquarters and voiced his fears.

Duncan phoned the home of RCMP Corporal Gordon Irvine in Lake Cowichan.

They couldn't raise him.

HE WAS THERE

The reason they weren't able to raise him was that he was standing guard outside the Toronto-Dominion Bank in civvy clothes.

Inside the bank was manager Ed McBride fixing the faulty alarm-bell.

But all's well that ends well and there are no hard feelings.

RCMP thanked Mr. Mohns for his presence of mind—after all, it might have been a different story.

Three Islanders Get Fellowships

Three Vancouver Islanders are among 99 winners of scholarships and fellowships in economics, sociology and political science announced in Ottawa today by the Canada Council.

They are Edward F. B. Harvey and Derek George Smith of Victoria and Louis John Schulson of Ladysmith.

The awards average $2,000 plus travel allowances where applicable. The outlay by the council runs to almost $560,000 plus $60,000 for travel.

There were 728 applicants from all Canadian provinces.

'FESTIVAL HIGHLIGHTS' SATURDAY

Five Grand for the Grand Piano... Paid Up

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN—Phyllis Schultdt can now rest easy.

The Vancouver musician prodded and goaded Cowichan Music Festival committee into buying a concert grand piano—and now it's paid for.

At least it will be when the committee counts receipts from a "Festival Highlights" concert in Quamichan Junior Secondary School this Saturday at 8 p.m.

The Steinway piano cost $5,000. Cowichan school board paid half. The rest was raised by concerts, plays and private donation.

The fund-raising campaign was launched 18 months ago when Phyllis Schultdt and Boris Roubakine of Vancouver (both of whom have adjudicated at the local festival) donated their talents in a piano recital.

The committee's endeavors in raising money were sparked by Mrs. Stan Robertson.

She said today: "Mrs. Schultdt said at a festival three years ago: 'It's such a shame not to have a concert piano when you have so much fine young talent,' and we were shamed into the campaign."

Check Those Trees, You Might Have a Fir-st

By TERRY IZZARD

Is there a tree growing at the bottom of your garden?

Does it tower to a height of 367.9 feet?

It does? ... Congratulations. You've just broken a world record.

If you're not sure take a tape measure and start climbing.

According to the latest information from B.C. Forest Service there are potential winners everywhere.

They appeal for information on any interesting statistics of trees still standing or felled.

PAST, PRESENT

Not wishing to take without giving, in the same release they offer some interesting tidbits of information about trees past and present.

For instance, the tallest living tree ever recorded is the giant redwood found on the slopes of the coast range in California. One of these monsters towers to 367.8 feet.

Closer to home the mighty Douglas fir holds the record for the oldest and tallest living tree in B.C.

AT KOKSILAH

Oldest of this species ever recorded was found in the Koksilah watershed on Vancouver Island.

Historian Gerry Wellburn of Duncan puts the age of these trees at about 1,300 years, give or take a few years.

Tallest Douglas fir on record stands at 305 feet and was located near Woss Lake, north-west of Campbell River.

A giant fir measuring 14 feet 4 inches in diameter was felled in 1886 near the corner of Granville and Georgia in Vancouver.

CONTROVERSIAL

Most controversial record for a large tree in B.C. is the so-called Lynn Valley or Carey Fir.

A man called George Carey claimed he felled the tree in the late 1800s. He said it was 417 feet high, 300 feet to the first limb, 25 feet through the butt, with bark 16 inches thick, circumference was 77 feet and diameter 207 feet above the ground was 9 feet.

While historians and many leading foresters question the existence of such a tree, believers have kept the legend alive.

Western Red Cedars in B.C. have been found towering to a height of over 230 feet.

Oldest Yellow Cedar ever found dated back more than 1,000 years.

Largest Sitka Spruce ever recorded in B.C. was felled in the Queen Charlotte Islands.

This tree scaled 51,004 board feet, or enough lumber to build five average-sized homes. Estimated height was between 250 and 275 feet.

Tallest living Sitka Spruce is one measuring 286 feet growing near Port McNeil on Northern Vancouver Island.

At least it's the tallest one reported.

So don't forget that tape the next time you're off on a picnic just for good measure.

Sports Scheduled For May 15, 16

DUNCAN—The annual Corpus Christi sports of the Cowichan Indians will be held Saturday and Sunday, May 15 and 16.

Field sports will be held on Somenos Reserve Saturday.

The war canoe races will take place on Quamichan Lake Sunday.

Once again the sports are being organized by Father Joseph Rossiter, assisted by Abel Joe, Norman Joe and Shirley Alphonse.

Victorians Off To Explore Horne Lake Caves

A party of six Victorians left today to explore the limestone caves at Horne Lake 15 miles west of Qualicum.

In charge of the group is Clarence L. Hronek, president of the B.C. Cave Hunters.

There are several caves in the area, the largest 350 feet long and more than 60 feet high. It contains galleries with stalactites and stalagmites. Water flows out of the entrance.

The party also hopes to investigate a smaller cave discovered in 1963 by Mr. Hronek and J. S. Ford of Lake Cowichan.

Man Jailed 3 Months For Theft of Tools

Automation Featured At Counselling Night

DUNCAN—Duncan's fourth annual career counselling night will be held in Cowichan High School Friday, April 9.

Forty-seven different professions and vocations will be counselled.

Same Keeble, chairman of the Kiwanis-sponsoring committee, said today: "Our type of counselling is for parents too. If father thinks Johnny would make a fine dentist he can come to our career night and find out exactly how much Johnny's education is going to cost."

MACHINES SHOWN

Automation will be featured for the first time.

The Victoria office of International Business Machines will send two counsellors with a variety of machines to demonstrate.

And it won't be all a man's world.

Girls can be counselled on anything from office management to home economics.

School trustees Will Dobson of Duncan and Don Hammond of Lake Cowichan will quiz students on their reaction to the possible establishment of a regional college at Nanaimo.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Western Jumps 45 Cents

Active trading of mining shares was recorded on the Vancouver Stock Exchange this morning with several issues showing gains.

Western Mines recorded the largest jump, up 45 to $5.75. Silver Standard rose .08 to $1.47 and was the morning's most active trader with 98,000 shares changing hands.

Peso advanced .08 to $1.60 and North Cal went up the same amount to $1.41.

In oils, Peace River Pete increased .03 to .50 on 67,000 shares. Massey Ferguson headed industrials, increasing $1 to $33.

AT NEW YORK volume for the day was estimated at 5,100,000 shares compared with 4,910,000 Thursday.

A generally higher trend prevailed among metals, steels, chemicals, oils, tobaccos, office equipments and aerospace issues.

Oils, drugs, farm implements and electrical equipments were mixed or unevenly lower.

Up a point or better were Time-Inc., Campbell Soup and Canadian Pacific.

Walker-Gooderham was off 3/4 among Canadians.

AT MONTREAL industrial volume at 2 p.m. was 107,300 and nines and oils 1,677,500.

Utilities were up with CPR adding one point. Bell Telephone was up 1/4.

Banks were higher. Royal added 3/4.

Paper issues were also up, with Price Bros. adding 1/4.

Metals were higher. In the base section, International Nickel was up 1/2 and in the primaries, Steel of Canada added 1/2. Aluminum was off 1/4.

Industrials and other sections were steady.

In speculative issues, Equity Explorations jumped 9/16 cents to 53 cents and Chemalloy was up 3/16 cents to $2.48. Fox Lake added four cents to 28 1/2 cents. Dolsan was off four cents at 50 cents.

AT LONDON the stock market was quietly firm today. Company announcements played an encouraging role in industrials.

Leading Canadian issues which gained a fraction included B-A Oil, Consolidated Paper, Consolidated Mining, Hollinger, International Nickel and Brazilian CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures market developed a generally steady to firm tone today with wheat posting the broadest gains most of the time on the Board of Trade.

All wheat contracts moved up major fractions to a cent on buying credited largely to commercial accounts which dealers said probably included lifting of hedges on about 3,000,000 bushels of soft red wheats by Yugoslavians. The new crop months derived some strength, perhaps, from a report that Australia had sold 2,000,000 tons to Russia and China.

Soybeans ranged both ways from previous closes in mixed transactions which included rather liberal profit cashing.

$2 Million Kraft Dryer Ordered

VANCOUVER (CP)—Columbia Cellulose has ordered a big new pulp dryer from SF Products Canada Ltd. for its new $20,000,000 Skeena-Kraft Ltd. mill at Prince Rupert. The company would not disclose the price but it has been unofficially estimated at $2,000,000.

New Paper in 16 Months Warren Tells Edmonton

VANCOUVER (CP)—William Val Warren, president of the Vancouver Times, announced today that a new newspaper will be in operation in Edmonton within 16 months and feasibility studies are under way for establishing dailies in three other Canadian cities.

He said the locations for the latter three newspapers already have been chosen and will be made known later this year. All of the new dailies, using the offset printing process inaugurated in Canada by the Vancouver Times, would be owned and operated by the communities they serve but will be associated with each other as a trans-Canada chain, Mr. Warren said.

Mr. Warren's disclosures came on the heels of financial difficulties experienced by the Vancouver Times which prompted a front-page editorial appeal for public and advertising support. The newspaper has since announced that it got the support it sought.

The new Alberta paper, to be called the Edmonton Times, will be a community development, financed and operated by Edmontonians, Warren said.

'PROCESS A SUCCESS'

He said it was just two years ago that publishers across Canada, on hearing the news a new offset daily was planned for Vancouver using the photo process of reproduction, declared it was 10 years too soon to handle the high speed required for large-circulation dailies.

After six months in operation the Vancouver Times, started Sept. 3, 1964, had proved that offset newspapers have arrived, Warren said. However, the newspaper's circulation which began at 62,000 has dropped to 45,000 since entering the evening field.

"Full color reproduction can be achieved on ordinary newsprint," he said. "And costs per

He said the principals behind the Edmonton project would be made known shortly.

Warren said Edmonton was chosen as a likely market for a new newspaper because it is probably the fastest-growing city in Canada and has substantial secondary industry and high potential population increase.

The Edmonton Journal now is the only daily publishing in Edmonton, a city of about 350,000. The Edmonton Bulletin ceased publication there in 1951. The Journal now has a circulation of about 132,000.

New and Used Car Sales In B.C. Hits New Peak

VANCOUVER (CP)—B.C. auto dealers are confident this month will be the best April yet and 1965 will be the fifth straight year of increased car sales. W. S. Hill, president of the B.C. Automobile Dealers Association said Thursday.

Indications are that March was one of the best in history," Mr. Hill said. He said business has been good, new cars are not plentiful and there is a shortage of good used cars.

Some 35,000 new cars valued at $137,000,000 and twice as many used cars valued at approximately the same total. "Car sales have doubled since 1960, both in dollar volume and number of cars, and I think this applies to all the dealers," said Mr. Hill.

European Bank Wants Interest In Trust Firm

VANCOUVER (CP)—A European banking house has made an offer for 35 per cent of the stock of Commonwealth Trust Company, it was disclosed on Thursday.

A. G. Duncan Crux, president of Commonwealth, said the offer was first made Wednesday but the identity of the principal was not learned until today. He said a meeting is to be held in eastern Canada on the proposal in May. The name of the principal was not disclosed.

"This is a European organization with investment in Canada and it might be a good connection for us," Mr. Crux said. "They don't want control although they would want a good voice on our board. It is not a takeover."

He said that such a European connection for Commonwealth could channel investment into British Columbia.

Japan Drops Bank Rate

TOKYO (Reuters)—Japan today cut its bank rate for the second time this year, bringing it down to the level before the introduction of last March's credit squeeze.

The rate was cut to 5.840 per cent from 6.205 per cent effective Saturday. It was lowered from 5.570 per cent in January.

The cut was taken in local financial circles as signalling a clear go-ahead for the Japanese economy to resume active but steady expansion.

They said the Bank of Japan now seemed not only willing to put an end to the credit squeeze, but also anxious to dispel pessimism noted in the stock market and elsewhere over the prospects of Japan's economic expansion.

'Busy-car' women trust compound power Chevron Gasolines

In today's stop-and-go traffic, the housewife-chauffeur has good reason to trust Chevron gasolines.

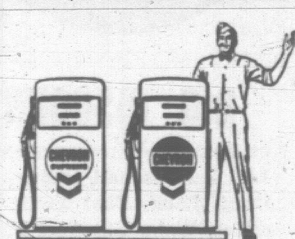

So many important little people to be delivered safely to the right place at the right time! For over a generation continual advances in the quality of Chevron Gasolines have been helping her with dependable power for smooth get-aways, with purring power that banishes stalling, with more and more miles per gallon.

Why are Chevron Gasolines superior? Housewife-chauffeurs would probably be bored if we told them about our Methyl, the biggest breakthrough in anti-knock additives since Ethyl, 36 years earlier; about Chevron's special additive to banish carburetor-icing; about Chevron's famous Detergent-Action formula that keeps your carburetor as clean as the day it was installed; about improved Chevron refining processes that assure the best possible octane values for new and older engines alike.

"Busy-car" women are only interested in what it all adds up to. It all adds up to COMPOUND POWER — and with COMPOUND POWER the miles cost you less. Drive into your nearest Standard Station or Chevron Dealer this week and try a tankful for yourself...

COMING SOON — EXCITING BIG-PRIZE CONTEST FOR CHEVRON CUSTOMERS!

Fierce-new fastback—with a backbone.

...man-size!

Here's one car you'll never catch with the other fastbacks. Marlin—the mighty one, meant for a man! This one's got too much sweet luxury...too much bone-deep value...too much muscle through and through to be just another fastback or sports car. Marlin's fitted out to go places—for the man who's got what it takes to get there. Start out with Double Safety Power Disc Brakes, individually-adjustable reclining seats, wheel discs, room for six and door-to-door broadloom—all standard. Plus the 155 h.p. Torque Command 232—smoothest swift of all the sixes. Or go with powerful V8's—287 or mighty 327 cu.-in. options. Then add bucket seats, light pack, wire wheels. Console-mounted stick on the floor 'Shift-Command' (you shift it or it shifts itself). Got more options in mind? Marlin has enough to go your dreams one better.

And don't forget all the extra-value features that made Rambler famous: Deep-Dip Rustproofing, Ceramic-Armoured Muffler, Double Safety Brakes, Curved-Glass Side Windows and safe, strong, rattle-free Single Unit Construction with Uniside. Make no mistake—Marlin moves in a world all its own. Wouldn't you like to call it your own?

Council Pares Down Mill Rate

SELL-OUT SALE
EVERY OFFER CONSIDERED
SMALL CARS

By AB KENT
Two days of cropping has reduced 1965 spending estimates at city hall by 1.63 mills. Aldermen considering estimates in committee have a long way to go to trim a half million dollars—roughly five mills—as suggested by Mayor R. B. Wilson.

Total spending estimates are up by $865,000 this year, or 7.4 mills not including the school tax rate which is unknown but likely to be about 2 mills.

Sets of estimates covering parks and sundry expenditures were considered Thursday, resulting in a net day's paring of $151,820.

Net decrease from proposed additional spending examined by aldermen over the two days comes to $167,840.

Items totalling $192,340 were cut and others worth $24,500 were added.

EVIC GRANT

The additions include $11,000 grant to University of Victoria and an unexpected $5,000 for maintenance of Centennial Fountain, which is costing about that much for water and power.

Earlier the committee agreed to an item for $1,350 to install a light timer and automatic wind valve for the fountain that will cut operating cost considerably.

This will turn lights off during the daytime and shut off the main fountain jets during high winds—hat blow spray away from the pool.

Biggest single reduction in estimated spending was a blanket $131,470 chopped from a parks plan to spend $200,070 on extraordinary items.

SMALL PARKS

This will mean reduction in new work at Beacon Hill Park, small parks, nursery, Royal Athletic Park, Centennial Square and other places, and less new equipment, to be worked out in detail by the parks administrator.

Another large item is $7,000 cut from boulevard maintenance and watering, which may mean dry boulevards from August onward.

Public works estimates were slated for consideration today. This is the last major set of items for preliminary review in committee.

Regional System Urged for Parks

Victoria-owned parks in Saanich should be gradually worked into a system of regional parks, Mayor R. B. Wilson said Thursday as aldermen considered 1965 parks estimates.

Aldermen in committee held the line on the basic allocation to joint support of Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks, of which the city's share remains $13,000.

But it was decided to add certain revenues earned by the parks totalling $2,550, bringing the total item to $15,550 for 1965.

The beaches and parks committee had submitted a budget for $34,000, or $17,000 each from Victoria and Saanich.

Gradually, over a period of years, the park areas could be worked into a regional concept, the mayor said.

This would lift part of the burden on Victoria and Saanich in providing for recreational areas used by the whole capital region.

MORE MONEY

It could encourage more money to be spent on parks by areas other than Victoria.

Ald. A. W. Toone suggested the mayor's reasoning is that "Victoria merely encourages the status quo by equal sharing of costs."

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow suggested Saanich might consider a new sharing formula, perhaps one third from the city and two thirds from Saanich.

He noted at the annual meeting Saanich delegates seemed interested in spending more on parks, perhaps even in purchasing the Victoria areas.

Saanich will be asked to bring up its 1965 share to the city estimate.

Save-a-Life Demonstrations Slated for June

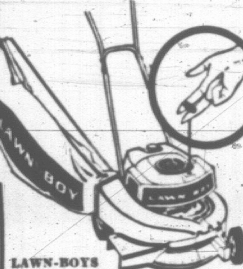

Demonstrations of artificial respiration will be given June 7, 14, 21 and 28 at St. John House, 941 Pandora.

The demonstrations, part of St. John Ambulance Save-a-Life program, will be given by trained survival specialists.

The evenings will include lectures and practical demonstrations. The Resuscitator, a life-size doll, will be used to explain oral resuscitation and the Silvester and Holger-Nielsen methods of artificial respiration. Reservations can be made by writing or telephoning the office at 388-5505.

Increases In Parking Cuts Fees

Increased use of Victoria Parking Commission's off-street facilities last year has brought a 1.5-mill cut in the levy to businesses supporting their operation.

City comptroller James Bramley said Thursday the levy on downtown properties included in the area most benefiting from the facilities will be two mills this year, which will raise $22,087 to ward costs.

Parking revenues in 1964 brought in $95,890 and expenditures came to $133,711. The 3.5-mill levy last year raised $37,680.

The commission has announced a new policy for evening use—lighting at the central View Street carpark will remain on until midnight.

Mexican Worker Ban Upheld by Secretary

WASHINGTON (CP)—A bold stand against farm pressures by U.S. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz, cutting off the annual import of 200,000 Mexican field hands, has direct and indirect Canadian implications.

Canada will ask for clarification of the U.S. policy on importing migrant farm workers in season because Canadians are involved.

Wirtz also has indicated that he intends to work toward two measures which have been proposed in Canada: A national minimum wage for farm hands and extension of unemployment insurance to them.

Wirtz has just returned from a first-hand investigation of conditions in the rich vegetable fields and fruit groves of California. He faced strong representations to end the ban on the import of Mexican braceros or "strong-armed ones" that went into effect last Dec. 31.

The braceros program had been sharply criticised as a means used by growers to pay sub-standard wages and provide inadequate living standards at a time of substantial American unemployment. The grower's retort is that American labor isn't available for back-breaking field chores.

Canada both imports and exports seasonal farm help to the U.S. and has its own miniature braceros program, notably in southern Ontario and Quebec for tobacco and other crops. Canadian living conditions and wages paid under those circumstances have not escaped criticism.

FBI AGENT R. J. Abbaticchio Jr., who helped end crime careers of John Dillinger and Pretty Boy Floyd, died Sunday at 58 of a heart attack in Nevada where he was supervising gambling law enforcement. He was in FBI 25 years.

$55,000 Target For Cancer Fund

The local objective for this year's Conquer Cancer Campaign has been set at $55,000.

Dugald Gillespie, chairman for the month-long campaign, said today that all donations would be of immediate benefit to local citizens.

"Last year $2,035,540—or 90 per cent of the cost of cancer research in Canada—came from the Conquer Cancer Campaign," Mr. Gillespie said.

"Too many of our friends and relatives succumb to this disease for us to relax our efforts," he added. "We must continue our cancer research, and the only way we can do that is to provide funds to make that research possible."

Mr. Gillespie stressed that in

Rotary Aids Two Groups In Victoria

The Rotary Club of Victoria presented two cheques totalling $5,500 to Victoria organizations Thursday.

George Gray, president and manager of Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped received a cheque for $5,000 as a Rotary contribution towards the Goodwill building fund.

Mr. Gray said that "when completed the new building will provide a first rate assessment and job training centre, unique in Canada and comparable to any in the United States."

A cheque for $500 was presented to Bernie Van Aggelen. Mr. Van Aggelen is the newly-elected president of the Boys' Club of Victoria. The cheque will assist in boys' club activities.

Rotary president, Dr. Robert Stark said he understood the cheque will be matched dollar for dollar by an anonymous citizen of Victoria.

The meeting was addressed by Rotarian Lloyd Detwiler, consultant administrator of the UBC Health and Science Centre. Mr. Detwiler spoke on Health, Science and the Social Conscience.

Saanich Site For School Under Study

Saanich municipality is working closely with the provincial government toward location of a proposed area vocational school there.

Reeve Hugh Curtis today said, "We've had contact with the public works department on two or three occasions."

"There has been quite a bit of information exchanged and we are moving along fine."

The reeve said the exploration for a site has been made in a quiet manner because where lands and locations are concerned, publicity could affect land prices.

"We have outlined several sites and the government has checked them out, sometimes casually and sometimes in a very detailed manner," he added.

He said a proposed site near the intersection of Burnside and Trans-Canada Highway appears satisfactory but "we are not ruling out others at this point."

Meanwhile, it was learned that chairmen of the three capital region school boards are agreed that the Burnside site would be best.

They believe this area would be the best to serve Sooke, Esquimalt, Oak Bay, the Saanich Peninsula and the Malahat.

'AREA IDEAL'

The area is ideal because it would lead easily to expansion and would be more readily available to the areas it would serve," said E. J. Bartanus, chairman of Sooke school board.

John Porteous of Greater Victoria and Gordon Campbell of Saanich were in agreement.

Saanich MLA John Tisdalle said Tuesday the school should be built on the Lansdowne campus.

"We don't agree," said Mr. Bartanus. "We don't want it on the Lansdowne campus because it would confine courses and would not serve the purpose."

Mr. Porteous said his board had always favored the Burnside area.

Nobody cheered when Joseph Seagram brought his whisky to town.

Worse than that, hardly anybody bought it. That was back in 1883 when he first brought out "83." His sense of timing was terrible. People wanted whisky that burned all the way down.

And along came Mr. Seagram with 83, an easy tasting whisky with a civilized, understanding flavor. Our glorious founder might have been in for an inglorious fate, excepting that a strange thing happened. Time passed, and people started clamoring for whisky that was smoother, more gentle. And a lot of unsold 83 was around to meet the demand.

So 83, the unwanted, became 83, the very much wanted. Cheers.

Lad Improves on Telstar

CHICAGO (AP) Fifteen-year-old David Belkin said he spotted some shortcomings in Telstar, so he built Star Dust, his own 'communications' satellite, with some extra features.

David exhibited his model satellite at the Chicago Students Science Fair.

Although Telstar was "a great achievement," he said Thursday, "it had no provision for a Laser communication channel."

Star Dust has such a channel, he said, enabling it to "transmit voices on a coherent beam of light."

Star Dust also has a "weapons Laser" so if another nation sent up a satellite that threatened it, mine could knock the other one out.

A spokesman for American Telephone and Telegraph, which built Telstar, said the satellite had no Laser.

David won an award at the fair last year with a group of machines that measured heart beat, respiration and brain waves. He said he plans "a Laser that will work as a television camera" for next year.

Trail Riders Moving To Metchosin Home

Colwood Trail Riders will have a new home next month.

The club is moving from its rented facilities at the Luxton Fair Grounds in the Glen Lake area to acreage on the Good Shepherd animal shelter property, 3842 Duke Street, Metchosin.

Construction is under way on a 250 by 120 foot ring, concession stands and a parking lot for up to 100 cars. Stables and other accommodations are planned. A grandstand will accommodate up to 300 spectators for the horse shows.

Heather Rimmer, chairman of the club's horse show committee says "an arrangement with shelter officials provides for unlimited renewal option of an annual lease."

Mrs. Rimmer says "the Sisters at the shelter have been most co-operative in helping us to secure a permanent home for our activities."

Rathie, Emmott Meet District Chiefs In City

Leaders of four Greater Victoria municipalities and two Greater Vancouver councils met in Mayor R. B. Wilson's office Wednesday to map plans for their next meeting on metro transit.

The two metropolitan areas have a joint committee on public transportation that is endeavoring to set a policy for the future of bus services in co-operation with B.C. Hydro and the provincial government.

With Mayor Wilson were Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox, Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis, Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele, Vancouver Mayor William Rathie and Burnaby Reeve Allan Emmott. Municipalities expect to be faced with local operation of transit facilities when Hydro franchises expire within five years.

CHARITY SHOW

The July show will be a charity show with proceeds going equally to the Good Samaritan Fund and to the Queen Alexandra Solarium.

The club has 40 riders both senior and junior. They are preparing their parade drill for Victoria Day, May 24.

The club sponsors trail rides throughout the area during most of the year.

More than 30 entries are registered for an endurance ride which will trail through John Dean Park starting at noon Sunday.

The riders will have to overcome at least 10 natural obstacles such as logs, heavy brush and creek beds. They will also ride up a flight of stairs normally used by pedestrians.

Judges will award points for horsemanship and the performance of the horse.

The ride will start from Harrop Ranch, 8325 West Saanich Road. The contestants will depart at three minute intervals.

Non-club members may join the ride by phoning Heather Rimmer at 478-1143.

PRIME MINISTER WILSON IN HOT WATER

U.K. Tories Incensed Over Plane Cancellation

By JOSEPH MACSWEEEN

LONDON (CP)—Leaving Tories in a future over-reported plans for cancellation of the super-aircraft TSR-2, Prime Minister Wilson was in Paris today for talks with President de Gaulle.

The Conservative opposition was reported incensed over the tactics being employed by Wilson and his Labor government over the controversial aircraft, two of which are at present being tested.

"By stealth, the Great British aircraft industry may be dealt a devastating perhaps a fatal blow," says the Tory Daily Express in an editorial.

Reports of the planned cancellation spread following a cabinet meeting that ended at 12:30 a.m. today, after Wilson postponed overnight his trip to Paris.

There was speculation that Wilson was determined to have reached a decision on the TSR-2 before his meeting today with de Gaulle, with whom he hopes to work out new co-operation on aircraft projects.

The British and French already are engaged in a joint project—threatened for a time by the Labor government for production of the first super-sonic Concorde airliner.

There also are plans for joint production of a jet strike trainer and, further in the future, hopes for a swing-wing advanced aircraft.

An industry informant said today he knew of no cancellation notice so far for the TSR-2, the 1,400-miles-an-hour plane which is the most expensive ever built in Britain and could fulfil both a tactical and strategic role—carrying nuclear bombs.

The belief is widely reported, however, that a decision in principle to cancel the aircraft and buy instead the rival United States F-111 has been taken and may be announced in Tuesday's budget speech by James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer.

The government, commentators surmised, wanted to soften the blow by making known at the same time plans for finding alternative work for the manufacturers. Some 20,000 men are employed on the TSR-2, being built by the British Aircraft Corporation.

Wilson has made no secret of his dismay at the cost of the project. He estimated that 150 TSR-2s would cost £750,000,000 ($2,250,000,000). About £250,000,000 has already been spent.

Aviation Minister Roy Jenkins has said the day of the all-British advanced military plane is over because of soaring costs and the government was seeking co-operation with Europe and the United States. The government has already announced purchase of the U.S. Phantom fighter plane and the Hercules freighter over British competitors.

The TSR-2 reports hit the British industry like a dash of cold water on the day following a happier event—inauguration of the new super VC-1 service to New York. The British regard the 137-passenger VC-10 as a potential winner on world air lines.

Punch at Fuming Best After Losing Gang War

Ullman Gives Red Wings Triumph In 4-3 Thriller

DETROIT (CP)—Norm Ullman, whose 42 goals helped Detroit Red Wings to the National Hockey championship this season, is at it again.

He thrilled a crowd of 14,927 here Thursday night by scoring the winning goal in Detroit's 4-3 Stanley Cup semifinal victory over Chicago Black Hawks.

The triumph enabled the Wings to take a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven series with the second game scheduled for here Sunday night.

Ullman's marker followed a pair by Detroit captain Alex Delvecchio and a single effort by Floyd Smith.

The loss for the Hawks had one highlight, however, in the return to form by left winger Bobby Hull. The Chicago bomber, who had missed several games because of knee injuries and was a question mark until game time, registered one goal and set up Chicago's other two.

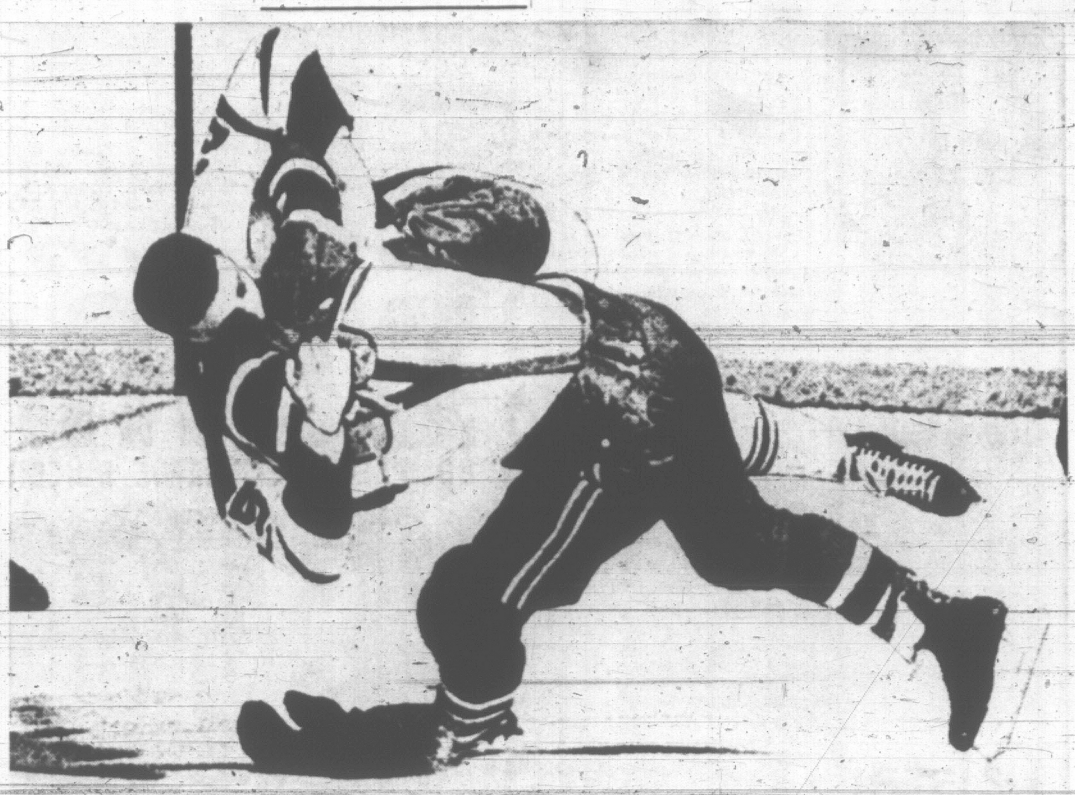

Hull's line-mates, Phil Esposito and Chico Maki, scored the others.

The game was a see-saw battle all the way with the clubs trading the lead on four separate occasions. The count was tied 1-1 after the first period and 2-2 going into the third.

The match was rugged and fast skating throughout.

"It's good to come out of a game like that with a win," said Detroit coach Sid Abel in the dressing room.

Opposing coach Billy Reay said: "I thought we played a good game, but we just didn't have enough to win. We still have to score more goals for a victory, and I have no all-

Canadiens Nip Maple Leafs In Brawling Opening Game

MONTREAL (CP)—Call it a "miscarriage of justice" or a "well-deserved victory," but however you slice it, Montreal Canadiens hold a one-game lead in their Stanley Cup semifinal series with the defending champion Toronto Maple Leafs.

Both teams were applied Thursday night following the best-of-seven opener which more than lived up to the advance bone-rattling predictions before Canadiens emerged with a 3-2 victory. The series resumes here Saturday night.

As might be expected, the conflicting judgments came from the rival National Hockey League coaches.

Toronto's Punch Imlach was in his best playoff rage, fuming at everyone from referee Vern Buffey to former Canadiens great Maurice Richard, now a non-playing executive of the Montreal hockey club.

"These guys (the Leafs) are out there breaking their hearts to play and you get jobbed," said Imlach. "When everybody in the building is against you, it's pretty hard to win."

To which he added quickly: "But we're still going to beat them."

Montreal coach Toe Blake not surprisingly saw things in another light.

In his considered judgment, Canadiens definitely deserved to win a game which, also in his considered judgment, reflected poorly on Imlach's give-'em-hell coaching tactics.

"Punch should get out there and trade some punches himself and maybe he'll see the difference," said Blake.

Strength of Knee Pleased Bobby

Hull said: "Things just didn't go all the way I wanted, and I'm pleased the way my knee stood up."

The blond left winger, who skated hard, shot often and handed out some hefty checks, needed four stitches to close a cut on his upper lip.

Smith opened the scoring at 12:51 of the first period, jamming in a loose puck. The lead lasted only briefly as Detroit goaltender Roger Crozier made three great saves on close-in shots before Hull banged in a rebound on a power play.

GOALIES BRILLIANT

Eric Nesterenko was off for elbowing when Delvecchio took his position at the point and again beat Chicago goaltender Glenn Hall with a long drive.

Ullman counted the winner seconds after leaving the penalty box where he had served a minor for roughing. He cruised in front of the net and whacked in a pass from Parker MacDonald.

Both netminders were brilliant at times as Hall kicked out 32 shots while Crozier stopped 29.

While hard-checking throughout, the game was cleanly played and referee John Ashley called only 13 minor penalties.

PARDON ME, YOUR SLIP IS SHOWING

Opening game of Stanley Cup semifinal between Toronto and Montreal Thursday night produced some violent moments. One of them came when

Leafs Had Only One Good Flurry

Both men were addressing themselves to a contest which saw Canadiens hold a 2-0 lead through 40 minutes of near-gang war, give up two quick goals to a brief Leaf resurgence and then pull out the win with the odd goal of the evening.

Hero of the piece was Bobby Rousseau, a 24-year-old right-winger who managed only 12 goals during an indifferent regular schedule but sent 14,007 Forum fans home happy this time with a masterful winning goal.

With Toronto's Tim Horton in the penalty box, the quick-darting Rousseau took Jean Beliveau's pass at the Leaf blueline, cut through the defence and shovelled the puck over a sprawling Johnny Bower

Cool Finish Prevented New Record

The 2-0 Montreal margin was at least representative of an opening 40 minutes, during which the Canadiens outshot their opponents 27 to 11. During his period, however, play with the puck seemed almost a sidelight to personal mayhem.

Buffey handed out 24 penalties during the first two periods, including four majors, one misconduct and a match penalty for a total of 71 minutes. Each team got 12 penalties with the Leafs taking 36 of the minutes.

It seemed a record-setting rate, but things cooled down during the final 20 minutes and the game ended with 26 penalties and 75 minutes, well below the playoff records of 31 and 102 respectively.

The match penalty went to Leaf defenceman Kent Douglas after the most vicious exchange of the night, a stick-swinging duel with Canadiens' Dave Balon immediately following Richard's opening goal.

It ended with Balon felled by a blow from Douglas' stick and the Leaf rearguard on his way to the dressing room, a trip which Imlach charged included a fist-throw by Richard who was sitting in the crowd behind the Leaf bench.

The penalty, assessed Douglas under the NHL's "deliberate attempt to injure" rule, will cost him an automatic $100 fine. His case also will be reviewed by NHL President Clarence Campbell to see whether further punishment is in order.

The league coffers also will be enriched by $25 from Montreal's Jim Roberts for his second-period misconduct. It was one of a bevy of penalties levied after three Leafs and three Canadiens squared off in a would-be brawl that produced little more than hot words and a bit of sweater-pulling.

Foreigners Ever Bemused By Annual Race on Thames

LONDON (UPI)—As far as the ancient Greeks were concerned rowing was strictly for slaves, but there'll be nothing slavish about the 16 young oarsmen who will paddle a marathon for fun on Saturday with half of Britain watching them do it.

It's boat race time again—the "greatest free show on earth" they call it—with Oxford an overwhelming 4-1 favorite to beat Cambridge over four miles, 374 yards of the River Thames in the 11th meeting between the two universities.

About a million spectators will line the towpath from Putney to Mortlake. Another 20,000,000 are expected to watch it on British television, and yet another 100,000,000 will be viewing in Europe on the Eurovision network.

NO NEUTRALS

In Britain, only a handful of watchers will have been to either university. Most will never have even seen the towns of Oxford and Cambridge.

But there will be no neutrals. Cockney or Scouse, Gordie or Scot, they'll be for one or the other. Oxford supporters will wear huge dark blue rosettes while Cambridge's followers will sport the light blue colors.

The boat race is unique as a sporting event in that the crews are formed for one purpose only—to beat the other in this solitary race. It is one of the last truly amateur events, untouched by commercialism, left to the British public. The spectators take to it feverishly, as they have done since 1829 when Oxford won the first race.

ONE DEAD HEAT

Of the 110 races rowed, Cambridge has won 61, Oxford 48, and there's been one dead heat. Each crew has one sinking to its discredit.

Medics Report Yanks' Ford In Top Shape

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Following two days of blood tests and x-rays, Whitey Ford of New York Yankees was pronounced healthy Thursday.

The medical report ended speculation that Ford might have a stomach ulcer or infection that could hamper his future with the Yankees.

The veteran southpaw underwent the tests after he had been bothered by stomach problems. Two physicians who conducted the extensive examination said they found no clues to what had ailed Ford.

Who Does He Think He Is?

MONTREAL (UPI)—"Who the hell does Imlach think he is sending men out to play hockey that way?" That was the immediate reaction of winning coach Toe Blake whose Montreal Canadiens edged the Toronto Maple Leafs, 3-2, in the opening game of the best-of-seven semi-final Stanley Cup game here last night.

Blake was referring to the rough-house tactics Imlach's Leafs used in the early going of the game which resulted in defenceman Kent Douglas being thrown out of the game for clubbing down Dave Balon in a high-sticking duel.

"If the Leafs want to play it that rough," Blake went on, "I've got some pretty rough boys I haven't even let go yet."

John Ferguson and Ted Harris, two of Montreal's bigger and more willing combatants, were singled out by Blake as his answer to rough play.

Provincial Pin Final On Tap This Weekend

Derek Leonard and Keith Snelling will carry Victoria's hopes when the annual B.C. ten-pin bowling championship is staged this weekend at Mayfair Lanes.

Leonard and Snelling, who finished one-two in the Victoria zone playoffs, will be battling for the provincial crown against six other trundling experts.

Winner of the title will advance to the Canadian masters' tournament in Montreal on April 16-17.

SHORES HERE SATURDAY

United will tackle a Sunday date again... Columbus is scheduled to play in Athletic Park April 11... Cup finals will highlight other weekend activity on local pitches... Hotspur and Rangers play off at Heywood Avenue Park Saturday at 10 a.m. for the Combination League's Trafalgar Cup... Canadian Scottish and Hourigan's Kickers tangle Sunday at Athletic Park in the Jackson Cup final... Another Sunday tussle will match Oak Bay Marina and Wanderers in the second division's Commission Cup semifinal.

Colt League Lads Must Re-Register

Officials of the Victoria Colt League baseball organization have been assured that the new diamond at Topaz Park will be ready for the new season.

Colt Leaguers begin registering tonight at Royal Athletic Park between 6:30 and 8. Registrations of potential players will continue Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Sunday, 1 to 4 p.m.

Despite an earlier announcement to the contrary, former Colt League players are required to re-register for this season.

'ANOTHER NORMIE McLEOD'

Little men seem to have acquired a happy knack of riding tall in the Pacific Coast Soccer League saddle.

Among the more prominent are Bobby Smith, the slick Columbus winger, whose 12 goals make him the glant of the PCSL's individual scoring race;

Normie McLeod, the diminutive Canadian star, who has been the big spark of the league's second-place team;

Peter Gooding, the Victoria-United discovery, who continues to impress with each game.

Gooding is Good for United Morale

Certainly, United manager Fred Magee doesn't mind putting himself down as No. 1 on the "Good for Gooding Club."

"He's another McLeod," Magee ventured.

That would, of course, cause some debate. Less argumentative is the observation that the presence of the peppery inside has been a vital factor in United's drive along the PCSL trail this season.

Magee, drumming up interest in Saturday's United-North Shore match at Royal Athletic Park, thinks Peter would be a shoo-in if the league offered a trophy to the "Find-of-the-Year."

"Peter's become something of a take-charge guy on the field," noted Magee.

"It's difficult to come to a new team and be 'accepted' right away. Peter was. The other players took to him right away. Maybe it is coincidence, but the morale has never been better."

It's like the man says, good things come in small packages.

Military, Civil Leaders Pay Tribute to Crerar

OTTAWA—As plans were made for a full military funeral for Gen. Crerar, Ottawa's military forces headquarters in Ottawa's Christ Church Cathedral today will take part in the service, along with all senior military officers in Ottawa. The Petawawa contingent will include 200 men each from the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery and the 8th Hussars, along with the Canadian Guards band.

Burial will be at Beechwood Cemetery here.

"He served Canada... in war and in peace with quiet efficiency, with sincerity and with great devotion," Prime Minister Pearson told the House of Commons.

Gordon Churchill, Conservative MP for Winnipeg South Centre who commanded a regiment under Gen. Crerar during the war, NDP leader Douglas, Social Credit leader Thompson and Real Caouette of the Creditistes, also paid tribute to the Hamilton native who has lived quietly in Ottawa since the war.

Lt-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, another of his former staff officers, called him "one of Canada's most distinguished soldiers."

Governor-General Vanier, who attended the staff college at Camberley, England, with him more than 40 years ago, said in a message of sympathy to his wife, "his military career has been an outstanding one of which all Canadians are proud."

In London, Field Marshal Earl Alexander, former Governor-General of Canada and long-time friend of Gen. Crerar, said he was "a great Canadian and a great wartime figure," whose death was a "very great loss to me and Canada."

EASTER SEALS WEEK in Victoria has been proclaimed for April 12 to 18 by Mayor R. B. Wilson when he met Thursday with Tammy. She is Earline Campbell, 13, of 460 Kingston. She represents the Greater Victoria crippled children who will receive much needed help from 60,000 Easter Seals envelopes mailed to households by the Lions Clubs in the area.

City Halves Outlay For Trip to Quebec

Cost-conscious Victoria aldermen Thursday cut in half a proposed $6,400 outlay to send city council and two senior officers to Quebec next month.

The decision could mean a four or five-man delegation to Montreal, Quebec City and the Laurentians, instead of nine as hoped by Mayor R. B. Wilson.

Plans were shaping up to send some 30 Greater Victoria aldermen and their wives on the goodwill-reciprocal visit on the eve of the annual meeting of mayors and municipalities in Windsor.

But dramatically higher 1965 spending estimates have altered council's thinking and caution was voiced by the mayor.

"WORTHWHILE"

"We still feel this is a worthwhile project and we should try to make it, but in view of the high budget, we will have to decide whether fewer aldermen go," the mayor said.

It was hoped that up to 200 municipal delegates from many parts of B.C. would fly to Quebec at the invitation of the Quebec Union of Municipalities, which sent 300 people to Victoria and Vancouver last fall.

Wells Nationalized

RANGOON (Reuters)—The Burmese revolutionary government Thursday announced the nationalization of all privately owned oil wells in central Burma and 129 missionary and private schools throughout the country.

The government has been carrying out a gradual nationalization of private property since it came to power three years ago. All stores, most newspapers and several foreign firms have been nationalized in the last year.

HIGHER LEVY

Taxes Prove Nothing Comes Without Price

No one gets something for nothing and even Victorians must pay for the privilege in annual taxes.

Mayor R. B. Wilson referred Thursday to "massive improvements to this city in the past year or so, and of course they have to be paid for."

The possibility of a higher tax levy in 1965 looms strong at city hall at the moment, as aldermen and department heads struggle with budget spending estimates in an effort to keep the total within reason.

The mayor said he hoped the mill rate would not have to be raised "too drastically."

"When you take into account such million-dollar programs as the capital budget plan, the construction of Centennial Square and the other big things that are happening in our city, the cost in increased taxes is surely not excessive," the mayor said.

It also happens that this year is an extraordinary one for payments to retire many unrecruiting costs, such as for completion of the square.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, APRIL 2, 1965—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

This is a month for the little streams, the brooks that slither and slide past the alder roots or burrow through the tangles, with a surprise pool here, and around the next bend, a run that makes furtive music.

The creeks of spring are narrow enough for a boy to jump, shallow enough in their miniature riffles for a man to wade casually.

Rarely do they hold trout of any size, although the wise angler is prepared for surprises when he drifts a worm under a cedar bough canopy to the scoured hollow it shelters.

Something big just might be lurking there, to latch on with a hard pull—and more likely than not, to break loose in one heart-stopping surge and flurry.

Such encounters, however, are infrequent enough to give the creek where they happen a new legend. Man and boy are far more likely to go home well-content with a catch of eight-inch troutlings, to gizzled communally with a garnish of bacon and a dusting of cornmeal in the frying pan.

Man and boy, I said, if the man is lucky enough to have a son. If not, perhaps he can borrow a boy; for of all fishing, this of the little streams demands a young outlook.

A tiddler yanked from his lair with an enthusiasm that lands him in a thicket of dozen feet distant must generate excitement equal to that furnished by a six-pound Cowichan brownie or some great bruiser of a winter-run steelhead.

So take a boy by all means, or a girl if she doesn't object to wet feet and earthworms squirming on the hook. Be prepared, though, to have your junior companion outstretch you on the sort of creek I have in mind.

In this miniature world of the waterbrooks, where casting skill signifies less than youth's ability to slip quietly through where grownups crash and flounder, size and weight are more handicap than advantage.

Attempt a long throw and you spend a scratchy ten minutes retrieving your rig from an ocean spray jungle. Splash about in the creek and scared fish skitter off to new hidey-holes.

A boy knows better. He floats the worm down leafy tunnels... insinuates a rod tip among low-sweeping branches with stealth and cunning. Impatient elsewhere, he brings to his fishing infinite patience.

The young man at our house can't spare time from a university freshman's rugged schedule for fishing the little streams this April. We had our days together when he was of an age for that sport, and came home with the trophies that load a man-and-boy creel.

Trout, it we're lucky. Also, frogs, queer fungi, a rock flecked with what looked mighty like gold, fern leaves to keep on top of all, a noble yellow skunk cabbage bloom.

Millstream is just such a fun-creek, and from a few of its pools, we have taken cut-throat trout that needed no smallboy stretching to achieve the legal size limit.

There are other such brooks on our generous South Island, but those of my own boyhood lie farther north. Bonsul Creek in the Chemainus country, I remember so pleasantly that I will not risk an adult return.

We fished Bonsul later in the year though. For April, I best recall a streamlet a short haul south of Nanaimo. Some pioneer with a sense of humor dubbed it Chase River.

I don't know if it still holds plump freckle-backs, but it did then; and the best of its tarry black holes lured us into acres dominated by a mean hulk and what Nanaimo boys believed to be a sure-enough witch.

In honesty I never encountered either of these guardians. Still, few fishing ventures since have matched the thrill of the cautious approach, the quick flip of a barbed worm... and perhaps once in a springtime, the answering tug of a saucy April trout!

E. DAVIE FULTON
decision Saturday

PCs Huddle Tonight On Fulton

The executive councils of the B.C. federal and provincial Progressive Conservative party will meet in caucus here tonight with the prime topic the future of E. Davie Fulton.

Mr. Fulton, provincial leader of the party, is expected to resign from his position to clear the way for his re-entry into federal politics.

He will announce his decision at 10:30 Saturday morning when he addresses the general assembly of council members from all over B.C.

On his last visit to Victoria in January, Mr. Fulton was asked to accept the nomination for the Victoria riding in the next federal election.

He answered at that time that though he was honored by the request his first job lay in strengthening the party position in B.C.

CHANGED MIND?
Since then speculation has run rife that he has changed his mind and might be eyeing the leadership of the federal party.

Dr. C. J. Willoughby touched of a new spate of rumors a few weeks ago when he announced his retirement from political life. He succeeded Mr. Fulton in Ottawa as MP for the Kamloops riding.

Speculation now is that Mr. Fulton will run for the Kamloops seat in a bye-election or in the next general election.

DEFEATED
Mr. Fulton became leader of the provincial Conservatives in 1963 and ran against Highway Minister P. A. Gagliardi the same year in Kamloops but was defeated at the polls.

His party failed to capture a single seat.

NAVAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

In port are HMCS Yukon, Sussex, and Vancouver, which arrived here today from Central American cruise in company with Sea, Thetis, Qu'Appelle and Vancouver. Also in port are Stettler, Oriskany and St. Croix.

HMCS Jowansville will arrive here Saturday at 11:30 a.m. from San Francisco. HMCS Fraser is in port at Pearl Harbor.

HMCS ships Macdonald, Beaton Hill and Saskatchewan left Hong Kong today for Yokohama, Japan.

Supporters of the Keep-Tilikum-Free campaign plan to picket the Maritime Museum when it opens this fall in the old courthouse.

But the picket will only be posted if the museum proceeds with plans to charge admissions to view the famous dugout, says G. R. "Rebel" Mowat.

Mr. Mowat said today the "terrific" support given his campaign has made him determined to take every possible step toward keeping the 105-year-old vessel as a free attraction.

It has been freely enjoyed by residents and visitors for 35 years. Sailed almost around the world in the early 1900s by a Victorian, John Voss, it is a source of pride to long-time residents and newcomers alike, said Mr. Mowat.

He wants it moved to the new provincial museum to be built on Belleville at Government and protests its removal recently from Thunderbird Park by the province, without recourse to the community.

YATES AND DOUGLAS

Mr. Mowat will take names for a petition Saturday at Yates and Douglas and other supporters of his cause will work in other areas.

Here are comments from letters received by Mr. Mowat from well-wishers Thursday:

$7,500 In Loot Recovered

Kitchen Sink Listed Among Stolen Goods

City police had to call in a moving company Thursday to cart away about $7,500 worth of stolen property recovered in a raid on a Catherine Street home.

The haul included even a kitchen sink. There were several bath tubs, expensive plumbing fixtures, several mirrors, 20 large sheets of treated plywood and a large amount of power tools.

Police said the articles were stolen over the last year from numerous construction sites about the city and from homes and business premises.

ALERT CONSTABLES

Detective Sergeant Norman Bath gave credit for the recovery to two uniformed constables, Alan Archibald and William Somerville.

He said they spotted two men in a car Wednesday night and became suspicious of them. The two policemen stopped the men, checked the car and then called in detectives to continue the investigation.

Police obtained a search warrant and then carried out the raid on the Catherine Street address where the stolen property was found in the basement.

Two men have been charged with possession of stolen goods. Det-Sgt. Bath said persons who have lost tools or fixtures in the past year should visit the police station to see if their property is among the articles recovered.

Man 'Sorry' But Jailed

Cashing bad cheques totalling more than $500 resulted in a two-year penitentiary term this morning to Donald Bell, of Sidney.

Bell, who has a previous record for uttering and forgery, said he was "terribly sorry" for what he has done.

Magistrate William Ostler told him that writing bad cheques is like a disease such as alcoholism with some people.

"The longer it is done the greater hold it gets on a person."

The magistrate told Bell that unless he does something to help himself break the habit no one can help him.

The magistrate said Bell's offences, in the city, Oak Bay and Saanich, show a continuing pattern.

Pair Awarded Scholarships

Two biology students at the University of Victoria have received scholarships, the university announced today.

B. J. Crawford receives a $2,500 McConnell Fellowship to study in the department of anatomy at McGill University.

Alistair MacDonald receives a McGill University graduate studies in botany.

Mr. Crawford was recently awarded a $2,500 fellowship from the National Research Council.

GAPING HOLE IN STORY ON SCRAPMAN

A city detective told in court today how he became suspicious of a man he saw walking along Queens Avenue one night last week carrying a manhole cover.

The man was William Baker, 750 Kings Road, who pleaded guilty to stealing the manhole cover.

Detective Lyle Somers said Baker told him he found the manhole cover propped up against a wall on Store Street near the site of some city construction work.

Baker told Magistrate William Ostler today "I'm a scrap dealer, in an odd way."

He said he realized after he took the cover that "I did wrong."

The 33-year old accused said he had decided to return the manhole cover when he discovered it had rolled off the back of his truck.

He had gone back and picked it up when he was spotted by Det. Somers.

Magistrate Ostler remanded Baker to April 20 for sentence.

Survey Starts On Freighter After Mishap

An underwater survey began this morning on the Greek freighter Olympic Palm after she was freed from rocks off Oreas Island in the San Juan Group Thursday evening.

The huge 24,729-ton bulk carrier came under her own power directly to the government graving dock at Esquimalt.

John Wallace, general manager of Yarrows Ltd., which will do the work, said he suspects damage to her forward plates will warrant her entering the drydock for repairs.

GROUNDING HARD

The fully-loaded freighter, carrying 11 million board feet of lumber from Island ports, grounded hard early Thursday morning.

Her water line was 10 feet above the sea when viewed by RCAF search and rescue aircraft.

Victoria-based Tugs Island Mariner and Island Monarch pulled her off during a high-water period late Thursday afternoon. The job took two hours.

They were assisted during a nine-foot tide by the ship engines.

The ship was launched four weeks ago from a Japanese shipyard and was on her maiden voyage.

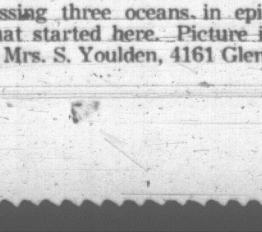

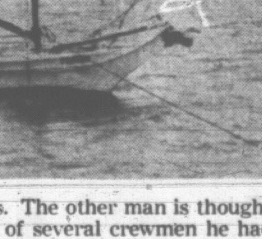

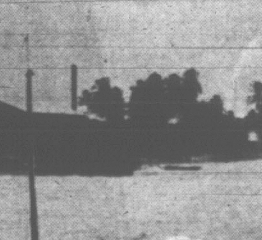

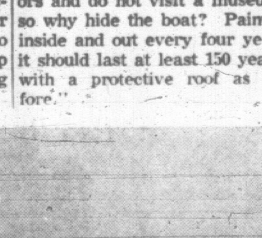

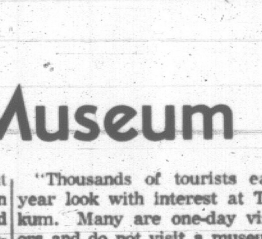

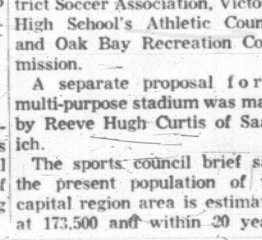

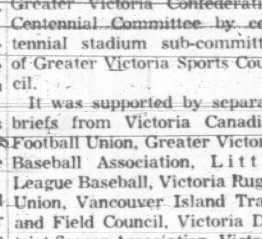

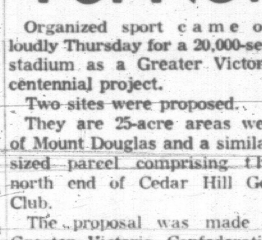

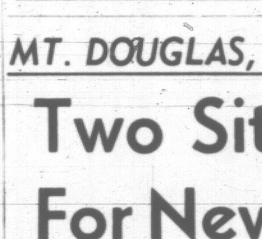

Most of her lumber was picked up 10 days ago in Victoria which she will later take to the eastern U.S.

Causeway Erosion Hinted by Engineer

New Drain Deferred As Estimates Pared

By AB KENT

Victoria aldermen ventured on to shaky ground today in trimming $162,300 from 1965 spending estimates when they decided to defer replacement of a Causeway storm drain system.

City engineer James Garnett told public works estimates committee the job valued at $70,000 should be given priority because tidal action under the Causeway into old drains presents a silting problem in the harbor.

This suggests an undermining action is taking place under the Causeway.

The drain problem also bears on a B.C. Telephone plan to place new underground cables in the area. Work has already begun. Drainage plans for the provincial government's $5 million museum-archives complex starting this summer are also involved.

UP TO YEAR
Aldermen concerned about the possibility of a major tax increase decided to delay the job for a few months or up to a year—to pay for it out of tax sale land funds.

The committee faced an $865,000 spending increase—7.4 mills on the tax rate—when estimate trimming sessions started.

"This is a terrible increase," Ald. Geoffrey Edgell remarked, suggesting the storm drain project be deferred.

Co-operation of B.C. Telephone and the provincial government will be sought, and the work could get done early in the summer.

"All I know is that it is a most unsatisfactory situation where harbor waters are coming into the drains," Mr. Garnett said.

"This bothers me," said Ald. Toone.

They are sidestepping our responsibility," he said when the mayor supported deleting the item.

"If we take it out, next year's council is stuck with it," Mr. Garnett pointed out that the item had been deferred twice previously, once from the capital budget program.

He said if the telephone work goes ahead it would mean ripping up the streets twice, and if the job is delayed till later in the spring, "then you are in the middle of the tourist season."

NO BIDS
The project was put to tender a short time ago, but no bids were received. Contractors apparently had full programs without adding to schedules, aldermen were told.

Total trimming from estimates this morning came to $330,140, or slightly more than three mills.

Major public works items were to be studied later today, which could bring substantially more off the proposed spending.

School costs, guessed at two mills increase, will not be known for about two weeks.

Estimates cut today included $117,550 from sanitation and waste removal, $32,000 from water distribution, $12,450 from building maintenance.

CAUTION
Putting in a word of caution as consideration got under way, Mayor R. B. Wilson said:

"We all get impatient, but after all, Rome wasn't built in a day and I don't think Victoria can be rebuilt in one year."

"We are making tremendous progress, with higher extraordinary expenditures as well as $700,000 a year in the capital budget."

BACK FROM SOUTH
First "open houses" ever held by Canadian warships in Costa Rica and Sacramento, Calif., resulted in stampedes.

The ocean escorts HMCS New Glasgow and HMCS Sussexville and destroyer escort HMCS Yukon arrived here this morning after an 11,000-mile, two-month Central American training cruise.

Joining them en route from San Francisco were HMCS Qu'Appelle, St. Theres and the submarine Grise.

While in port at Puntarenas, 3,340 Costa Ricans swarmed over the upper decks of HMCS Yukon. All available literature on the vessel was gone in minutes.

When in port at Sacramento, 20,000 persons lined up for a mile to tour the three vessels.

HALF MADE IT
"Only about 10,000 actually got aboard," said Capt. E. P. Earnshaw, the squadron commander.

"We just couldn't handle them."

This was the first time foreign warships had visited the new California port, opened two years ago. It is connected to San Francisco, 80 miles away by a series of canals and the Sacramento River.

While in the California capital, Capt. Earnshaw addressed the state legislature. A quarter horse race was named the Canadian Naval Officers' Stakes.

Purpose of the cruise, which extended as far south as Balboa, was to give 53 HMCS Venture cadets their first taste of sea life.

Inter-ship seamanship contests were held and the New Glasgow crew won the right to fly a red cock from its forward gun turret entering Esquimalt.

The Venture cadets are training under the navy's short service officer plan and had been acquiring classroom knowledge from September until they left in early February.

TOPICS of the DAY

Victoria Red Cross March Campaign has reached 73 per cent of its $82,000 goal. Late collection coming in brings the total contributions to $59,953.21.

Canvassers are still bringing collections and a recount will be made on Monday.

J. Dr. Wilson, volunteer campaign chairman for the B.C. Division Red Cross March drive, reports 46.74 per cent of the $632,900 quota for British Columbia already accounted for.

This sum is $50,320 more than the amount collected at this time in 1964.

Winners of the weekly game of the Allmasters Duplicate Bridge Club played Thursday at the Moose Hall were: 1. Elizabeth Warren and Les Stewart; 2. Phil Hagel and Paul Smith; 3. Jack Goldie and Mike Champion; 4. Minna Loomer and Lillian Goodwin; 5. Birdie Spotswood and Earle Dye.

Miss M. C. Melburn will lead the Victoria Natural History Society on the first field trip of the season Saturday.

The group will leave from the corner of Hillside and Douglas at 1:30 p.m. to make a tour of Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary.

Visitors will be welcome, officials said.

Battle of the Atlantic Sunday will be marked this year May 2 by ships and establishments of the RCN's Pacific Command.

Roman Catholic and Protestant services will be held in HMCS Naden. They will be open to the public.

The Sunday is set aside to pay tribute to the men lost in action in the Second World War and the Korean War.

Shops and establishments not in Victoria will arrange their own services that day.

The intermediate section of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the Monterey parking lot for a field trip to Mt. Douglas.

The Nature House at Francis Park will be open during the weekend from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

A conducted "walk" will be held at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

A 71-year-old woman is in good condition today after being in collision with a car as she crossed Cook Street Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Eileen Lemmax, 2122 Cook, suffered back injuries and is detained at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Jack McEathron, 2532 Shelbourne, today pleaded guilty to driving while impaired and making a false declaration to obtain unemployment insurance.

He was fined $300 and lost his licence on the first charge and an additional $75 on the second.

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birkett said McEathron had a blood alcohol level of .21 per cent when tested early on the morning of March 26 at the police station.

He had been arrested while sitting in a truck at Turner and Bay.

Evidence on the other charge was that McEathron told the Unemployment Insurance Commission that he had been laid off work when in fact he failed to show up and was fired.

Ask The Times
Q. Will you tell me the meaning in English of the following Indian place or tribe names: Quamichan, Cowichan, Quallicum and Malahat? D.H.T.

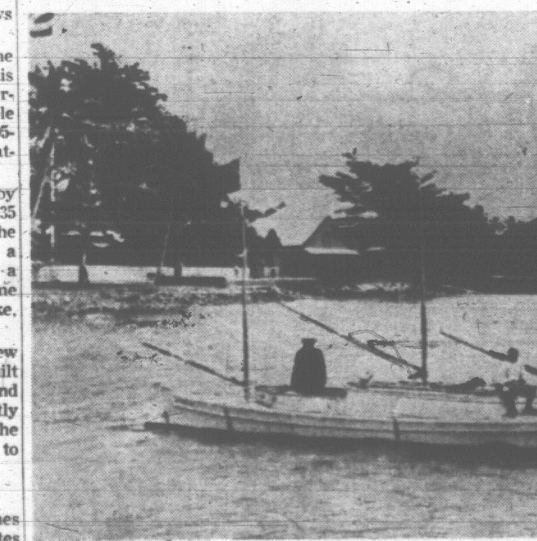

A. Quamichan means a big woman or a hunchback; Cowichan, a mountain warning its back to the sun; Quallicum, a place where the dog salmon run, and Malahat, a place of salt.

Q. Could you please tell me the length, width and tonnage of the vessel CNAV White-throat? M.G.M.

A. White-throat is 164 feet long, has a beam of 27 feet, eight inches and displaces 810 tons.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or local problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

TILIKUM controversy brought to light this ancient picture of the famous dugout during its world travels in early 1900s. Here she is at Samoa. Figure in the stern cockpit is Capt. John Voss. The other man is thought to be one of several crewmen he had while crossing three oceans in epic voyage that started here. Picture is owned by Mrs. S. Youlden, 4161 Glen-denning.

Thousands of tourists each year look with interest at Tilikum. Many are one-day visitors and do not visit a museum, so why hide the boat? Painted inside and out every four years it should last at least 150 years, with a protective roof as before.

SKI REPORT
Good skiing conditions and a sunny 28 degrees were reported from Green Mountain today by the Sno-Birds Ski Club.

Seven inches of new snow covered 75 inches of old base at the area near Nanaimo Lakes.

Club officials said two tows would be in operation for weekend skiers and one snowmobile would be running to the "halfway gulley," possibly to the "alders." The access road was clear.

SHOPPING GUIDE

'Lovely Long Green'
Isn't Always Money

By Penny Saver

Here's a saying which sums up the weather we've been having: "cool as a cucumber." There's a phrase which typifies summer and there's a food which is also a watchword for spring and summer meals.

Penny has discovered a new type of cucumber to adorn and highlight any salad or light dinner platter. There's quite a history behind these long green beauties—besides the fact that they are quite the longest I have ever seen and really juicy.

These are grown from English seed nearly all year round except when the soil used is being prepared and specially steamed and sterilized. They are grown in Victoria as well as on the mainland and, to make them grow longer and straighter, they are tied in splints bound with rubber bands.

Although they cost 49 cents each, the special care and attention given to them in growing and processing makes these cucumbers worth every penny in flavor and in extra-long size.

They can be used in a wide variety of ways including garnishing salads and in sandwiches. Or, pickles are another good idea. But, here's one that utilizes another of Penny's favorite foods—sour cream.

Thinly slice two onions and combine with two medium-sized cucumbers and salt. Let them stand for about half an hour to let the flavors mix. In the meantime, thin one cup of sour cream with a quarter cup of light cream and add one tablespoon of vinegar.

Drain the liquid from the cucumber and onion mixture and pour the sour cream over the top. Chill and serve. It's a wonderful idea for a side salad or a light snack.

If you want an accent to a meal of cold cuts and salads for the summer, slice the cucumbers very thin and chill in a pan of vinegar. Um-m-m!

Penny believes these are really wonderful, so why not give her a call at 382-3131 and find out where to shop.

TODAY'S RECIPE

SALMON PIE

One can (15½ ozs.) pink salmon, 1 cup soft bread crumbs, 1 tsp. onion, ¼ tsp. salt, 1 cup milk powder, 2 cups chopped parsley, 1 tsp. lemon juice, ½ tsp. garlic salt, 2 eggs, cup liquid (canned salmon in juice plus water for volume), 1 slightly beaten; 2 tsp. melted butter or margarine.

GIRL GUIDES

Pemberton Association—Mrs. Ivan Peetz, retiring secretary, was guest of honor when the Pemberton Girl Guide Association met in the King George Terrace home of Mrs. W. R. Bentley. Mrs. Peetz has served on the executive of the association for the past 12 years. She was presented with an overnight case.

Drain salmon, saving liquid, and flake. Mix skim milk powder with liquid, and add to salmon. Stir in ½ bread crumbs, onion, salt, parsley, lemon juice, garlic salt and eggs. Mix well. Pour into greased 8-inch pie pan. Butter remaining crumbs and sprinkle on top.

Bake at 350 deg F for 45 minutes. Makes six servings. Cost, about 45 cents per serving.

A spring tea and fashion show under the sponsorship of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Guild will be held in the Kirk Hall on Saturday at 2 p.m. Fashions will be by the Hudson's Bay Company. Among those who are arranging the affair are, left to right, Mrs. R. W. Chernoff, president; Mrs. P. S. Watt, Oak Bay group leader, and Mrs. C. E. Beirnes, tea convener.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Wonders If Exercising While
Wearing Girdle Is All Right

Q. I know other women must be wondering what I am. Is it all right to exercise with a girdle on? Please print this in your column.

A. I always advise exercise without a girdle. You have more freedom of movement this way and a girdle might be irritating. Wear loose, comfortable, non-restricting clothes when you take your daily figure molding exercises.

Lowman

Q. In a recent column you answered a 14-year-old who always looks as though she has been crying. Years ago I found that I was allergic to nail polish. For 12 years I left it off and just recently tried using it again. What happened? Red-rimmed eyes all over again!

A. I suggested in my answer that this girl might try using one of the cosmetics designed for allergic women. Nail polish is often an offender. The firms I mentioned have nail polish of their own. You might try one of those.

Q. Help! I am 5 feet 7 and I think my build is medium. I am 15 years old. A year ago I weighed 182 pounds. Now I weigh 146 pounds. I just started losing last fall. My measurements are bust 39, waist 29 and hips 47 inches. I can't seem to lose any more. How much should I weigh? My waist has always been my problem. I do exercises for my waist but continue to lose in my hips. What can I do? My losing is at a standstill. When I get depressed I eat like an elephant.

A. I don't know just how much an elephant eats, but judging by its size, it must be quite a lot. You are evidently in a vicious circle. After reducing very successfully you came to a standstill. This is to be expected but you did not know this and became depressed and discouraged and so ate "like an elephant." In any reducing trek of any length one comes to periods when the scales remain at the same place. However, this is temporary. Just continue counting calories and soon the pounds will begin to melt away again. You should not lose more than 5 pounds. I do not know what waist exercises you are doing but I will be glad to send any of my readers mine.

If you wish to have them, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for "Letter 6 to Josephine Lowman" in care of this newspaper.

Congratulations to this reader! She should not become discouraged after losing 36 pounds. The rest should be a breeze.

Group Nets $130

Tables were decorated with vases of spring blossoms, arranged by Mrs. L. Plume and Mrs. N. Powell, in the Hudson's Bay Douglas Room for the recent Ex-WICNS Association tea. Proceeds amounted to $130. In charge of a home-baking stall were Mrs. J. Boam and Mrs. P. Beere. Tea conveners were Mrs. D. Pike and Miss Peggy McDonald, and servers, Mrs. B. McNab, Mrs. E. Wade, the Misses Brenda Morley and Helen Cowbig, Miss Dorothea Brooker was in charge of tea tickets.

SEW SIMPLE
WITH Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice:

I remember you once saying in your column that double-breasted garments should only have one row of buttonholes, the second row of buttons are sewed onto the garment permanently. Lately, I have noticed several ready-made suits and also several patterns that call for a double row of buttonholes. Whose instructions should I follow?

Mrs. M. A. K.

Once again, may I repeat that "rules are made to be broken." Although there was never any hard and fast rule about the buttonholes on double-breasted garments, the buttonholes usually were made only on the outer edge of garments.

As we all know, the styles are constantly changing, as are the details of a pattern construction. I personally would go along with the current trends, as the old saying goes "when

In Rome, do as the Romans do. Knit, Too.

When the neck and shoulders of your sweaters have stretched out of shape, ease them onto a continuous piece of hem tape, beginning at the armhole of one sleeve to the armhole of the other. It's surprising how much you actually can ease onto this tape. Press with the steam iron and the sweater will probably feel better than it did when it was new. Hand whip both sides of the tape to your sweater with small invisible stitches.

Penny Fair

A variety of stalls will line St. David's church hall on Friday, April 9, when the Cordova Bay Brownies and Guides hold a penny fair at 6:30 p.m. The stalls will include home baking, Barbie doll clothes, handicrafts and "green thumb." Adding to the evening's enjoyment will be hot dog and ice cream stands and a raffle for a grocery hamper. Games will include a candle shoot, ring toss, fish pond and cake walk.

Brides 'Centre Stage' At McPherson Showing

Victoria scored two firsts recently. They came in the form of a bridal fashion show and guide for brides held in the McPherson Playhouse.

It was the first time such a show had been presented here and also the first time it has been shown in a theatre.

The showing was set against a backdrop of arches enhanced with bows and ribbons or large wedding bells. Adding a gay note were huge standards of pink blossoms edged with greenery.

The styles ran the gamut from small informal weddings to the ultra-formal evening and all-white fashions.

Setting the pace in a pastel theme for spring were styles in pale pink for the semi-formal evening wedding.

For the typical guest was a two-piece suit designed with magnified daisies in a lace diamond pattern. The all-cotton ensemble was accented with pink patent shoes and handbag and a pink and white roll-brimmed hat.

The mother of the bride modelled a slim fitting two-piece jacket and dress outfit that could double for afternoon or early evening parties.

TRAINS OF CHIFFON

Chiffon trains added back interest to the bridesmaids' gowns that were fashioned on slim formal lines. The empire-line bodices were styled with rounded necklines and encircled at the waistline with two rows of appliqued embroidery.

The bride chose a similar gown with a detachable split train that extended from her shoulders.

Simple elegance was the keynote in bridal fashions for the little wedding.

Ideal for honeymooners were mix-and-match casuals. Topping the lists for cruising vacations was a turquoise set of deck pants and hooded windbreaker. Added features of the jacket were elasticized cuffs and waistband.

'ON THE BEACH'

The "on the beach" look for the groom was black bathing trunks teamed with a black and white striped shirt that featured short sleeves and zippered front.

His bride made the scene in a casual black and white three-piece ensemble. The "little boy" shorts were paired with a white bra top and three-quarter-length sleeved jacket.

The skirted look in pants was shown in increasingly popular culottes. Modelled in shocking pink they were topped with a cotton-knit pink, blue and white striped overblouse.

The English "mod" look captured the limelight in a white eyelet over blue organdy bridal gown that was styled on the new mid-calf-length. Sleeves were short and puffed and the Empire-line bodice featured a squared neckline.

The petite attendants wore ankle-length frocks in white eyelet over pale tones of yellow, green and blue. Their headpieces were dainty kerchiefs and all the ensembles were made by Mrs. Anne Warren.

PEIGNOR SETS

For the "sleepy time gal" were peignoir sets in tones of pale pink, yellow, aqua and white. Some were knee-length and others reached to the floor.

The showing reached a climax with designs for the ultra-formal wedding party.

Mothers of the couple wore an aqua crepe floor-length gown accented with cotton lace and topped with a Canadian majestic mink jacket, and a delicate pink lace gown highlighted with a satin bow at waistline. The hats were a small crown of flowers and a satin turban.

Slim gowns of silk alpaca were the choice of the bridesmaids and maid of honor. The former wore jackets of lace and the maid of honor a self-fabric top trimmed with lace. Their headpieces were slim wedding ring bands.

CLUB CALENDAR

Fashion show, Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) Regiment, Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., home of Mrs. H. B. Weydert, 2371 Lansdowne Road. Coffee and dessert to be served after the show.

The bride was gown in re-embroidered lace designed with a rounded neckline and short sleeves. A full built-in train added back interest. Her tulle veil swept from a band of flowers into a full-length train.

The show was sponsored by the Junior Auxiliary to the Royal Jubilee Hospital. Proceeds amounted to $1,100 and will be used to further the work of the organization.

CO-CONVENERS

Conveners were Mrs. William Boorman and Mrs. Alfred Bamford. They were assisted by Mrs. Hugh Yerex and Mrs. Cyril Chapman. Mrs. Donald Fraser assisted in organizing the show and co-ordinator and commentator was Miss Gail McKenzie, Vancouver.

Fashions and cosmetics were by Woodward's, hair styles by Raymond's Salon and flower arrangements by the Posy Shop.

Nursing student models from the Royal Jubilee Hospital included the Misses Joan Gardner, Marlene Castillo, Robin Pettit, Pam Watson, Doreen Lutaack, Lea Radford and Trudy Nickels.

Also modelling were Mrs. David Longridge, Mrs. R. E. Morris, Mrs. D. W. Short, Mrs. Duncan McPhail, the Misses Linda Gower, Miss Victoria; Linda Emery, Noreen Bradshaw, Helen Sewell, Merilee Hustler, Sandra Pennington, Moira Angus, Rolinda Orchard, Jillian Boorman and Donna King.

Petite Misses Susan Wilson, Nona Lynne Auren and Laureen McLeod of the Wynne Shaw School of Ballet acted as junior bridesmaids. Taking the parts of the grooms were Lawrence Eastick and Peter Robinson.

Dr. and Mrs. L. W. Bassett were among the passengers who sailed from Vancouver in the P and O-Orient Line's Ss. Oronsay last Sunday. The Bassetts plan to spend some time in Hong Kong before returning to their Beach-Drive home in June. They will make the return trip in the line's Ss. Arcadia.

VOW Makes Warning In Brief

MUST AVOID SEPARATION

TORONTO (CP)—Canada must avoid internal separation if she is to contribute to world peace and international understanding, the Voice of Women said today before the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

The five-year-old organization, which promotes peace measures, said in a brief:

"Only if Canada can withstand present non-military but real threats to her identity from within and without, only if she can avoid an internal separation which might lead to the destruction of both French and English-Canadian cultures, can she, as a middle power, make any contribution to world peace and international understanding."

"Canada," the brief said, "must concern itself with the future. . . . It is too late to biddle in the cultural equivalents of caves. We draw strength from our diverse origins but we should not permit traditions to hobble us so that we are unable to avoid common pitfalls or make the best of present opportunities."

The organization recommended expanded services in the cultural field by the CBC; French programs to be available throughout Canada; teaching of French in all English-language schools, and vice versa, from Grade I and the teaching of "objective" history. The federal government should bear the additional costs of improving teacher standards.

BE SMART—

When wayward breezes blow, well-arranged tresses go! But not if you employ this trick: Just buy yourself a length of fish veil (or rough veiling) and tie it about your head, and even your hat if you're wearing one, ending in a crisp, artful bow under your chin.

$74 Realized At Plant Sale

A sum of $74 was realized by the Salt Spring Island Anglican Woman's Auxiliary at a recent roadside plant sale held in St. George's parish hall, at Ganges.

In charge of the sales were Mrs. Jesse Byron, Mrs. N. A. Howland and Mrs. Edward Adams. Tea conveners, Mrs. Walter Norton, was assisted by Mrs. Stewart Bannister and servitres included Mrs. William Palmer and Mrs. Joyce Parsons.

Mrs. V. H. Saunders and Mrs. H. Ashby were in charge of home-baking; Mrs. A. W. Barber and Mrs. V. L. Jackson, needlework; Mrs. G. H. Laundry, guessing contest, and Mrs. Harold Price, tickets.

DEAR ABBY...

Speak Up Quietly!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We have a 16-year-old daughter with long blonde hair. She is pretty and popular and very charming to boys and girls her own age, but for some reason she does not think it is necessary to be polite at home. When she comes home from school, she slams in and breezes past anyone who happens to be in the house without saying a word. This includes guests, grandmothers, aunts, and members of the household. I merely ask her to say hello, and then she may excuse herself and go to her room and do as she pleases. People ask, "What's wrong with Cathy?" Should I reply she is at "that rude age"? Perhaps I should overlook it? Or should I keep pecking at my one chick?

PALO ALTO MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Don't "peck" at her. But don't ignore her behavior, either. Remind her gently (when you are alone) to greet everyone pleasantly when she enters. Youth is sometimes thoughtless, hurried, preoccupied and slightly inconsiderate. What mother hasn't said to her youngster, "Can't you say hello to people when you come in?"

DEAR ABBY: My mother opens my mail so please answer this in the column. I work in a large insurance office. There is a new man there who is about 23 or 24. He is married, but I heard that he and his wife do not get along. (They had to get married.) I have been trying to get his attention. At times he seems interested in me. But he could pay more attention to me than he does. How can I find out if he is interested in me? I am 25 and have never been married. I like this guy's looks.

IMPATIENT

Of Personal Interest

House Guests

Weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ivings at their Lockhaven Drive home will be Mr. and Mrs. Buss Matthews of Nanaimo. While in Victoria, Mr. and Mrs. Matthews will be attending the quarterly meeting of the British Columbia Progressive Conservative Association to be held in the Empress Hotel on Saturday.

From Vancouver

Mr. and Mrs. Ross McAllister and their son, Mr. Ian McAllister, arrived this afternoon from Vancouver for the marriage of Mr. McAllister and Miss Pamela Gordon in St. Aidan's United Church Saturday afternoon. This evening following the wedding rehearsal, the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gordon, will entertain the wedding party at their home on Currie Road.

Southern Holiday

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Plotte will leave by car on Sunday for a three-week-long holiday in California. Their plans include a short stay in Los Angeles. The couple will return to their home on Selkirk Avenue in late April.

DEAR IMPATIENT: A man who isn't getting along with his wife is no more available than one who is happily wed. He HAS a wife. Better fish off another dock.

DEAR ABBY: In answer to the pastor's wife who was upset because she wasn't invited to parties with her husband. It's better not to be invited than to be invited and have your husband fail to tell you.

My husband was invited to several parties around holiday time. He didn't tell me that I was invited. He took a girl from his office instead. I later learned that he told the host and hostess that I had foot surgery and was unable to walk.

Don't worry, things like that don't bother me. If they did, I would have been insane years ago.

"USED TO IT"

DEAR ABBY: This girl, who is about to become a bride, says it is compulsory for the bride's mother to provide the bed pillows. I have heard of many customs, but this is a new one to me. Is this really true? Or is it just a figment of her imagination?

NOSEY

DEAR NOSEY: The bed pillows traditionally were considered the most essential items in every European girl's trousseau. That is where your friend probably got the idea. It might have been "customary" — but never compulsory.

'NAIVE' TEACHER SUSPENDED

MONTREAL (CP)—A Roman Catholic teaching brother who was suspended for the rest of the school year because of his "naive and certainly very impudent" teaching methods, two of his superiors dismissed from their positions.

Mare Jarry, president of the Montreal Roman Catholic School Commission, announced the move Thursday night.

Brother Rene Lahaie of the commission director of the district embracing the school, who will take up other duties.

Brother Lahaie placed pictures of Christ and Hitler side by side above the blackboard of a Grade 7 classroom.

He compared the two as having similar great talents used badly by Hitler and to good purpose by Christ.

He promoted pupils for good behavior by giving them ranks used in Hitler's army and promoting them to the status of SS—the Nazi elite corps designation—if they were at the top of the class.

The slogan "hell Christ" was often used in the class.

Visiting 'Stop World' Show McPherson's Best To Date

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

Best show to be seen so far on the McPherson Playhouse stage opened Thursday night, when the Playhouse Theatre Company of Vancouver presented the wild and wonderful musical, Stop the World—I Want to Get Off.

Judging by the first-night reception from a nearly full house, London-New York-Vancouver sell-outs will probably be repeated here for the subsequent three performances, tonight, and Saturday matinee and evening.

Vancouver's Playhouse Theatre Company cast, and its director, Malcolm Black, have in most respects done well by the show.

To Victorians, not so far exposed to the new trend in musicals, it will come as a surprise, perhaps even something of a puzzle at the outset.

There is one set—the inside of a circus tent; costumes remain the same throughout and emphasize the circus image, from simple clown to black leopards and Harlequin tunics.

Yet the story is only concerned with circus in that one reads "circus" as a metaphor for life.

The story concerns Littlechap (or Everyman) and his meandering route from infancy to the grave. There are many women in his life but they are essentially all one woman.

He romances, he begets; he is disappointed, happy, burdened, boastful, triumphant, and in the moment of triumph, struck down.

Littlechap's saga is expressed in bubbling, synopated music, brilliant mime, bright chorus routines.

Littlechap is played here by D. M. Hughes, who is unquestionably an actor of distinction and depth, and is, remarkably to tell, doing his first musical.

He is a sensitive and totally expressive actor, creating clear images in mime, bringing to the character, warmth and an intense human appeal.

Yet at the same time, the sole weakness of the show must be attributed to him, and perhaps, in part, to the director. Here is too much of the pure gold and too little of the dross of human nature.

LITTLE VITALITY
Too little of the satyr, too much of the romantic idealist; too little of the gamin sharpness and vitality.

Designers 'Daring, Imaginative'

An outstanding feature of the Seattle Repertory Company which brings Twelfth Night and Ah, Wilderness to the McPherson Playhouse, starting Monday, is the lavish mounting—sets, costumes, lighting.

The work of the three designers has been widely applauded.

"An imaginative and daring technical staff," exclaimed one reviewer.

Peter Wingate, the set designer has provided Shakespeare's delightful comedy with unfolding vistas of airy pavilions and graceful columns and arches, crowned by a jovial sun which gives place in night scenes to a drowsy and ancient moon.

Mr. Wingate started his theatrical career at Nottingham Repertory Theatre in England, took his master's degree at Yale and worked as set designer in New York where he is now consultant to the New York State Arts Council.

Last season he was associate art director of the Perry Como television show.

The subtle and effective lighting is the work of Richard Nelson, who has spent two years with the Seattle company after designing lighting for more than 50 off-Broadway productions.

Allan Granstrom has worked at Stratford's Shakespeare Festival, for the American Costume Company in New York and was last year, guest professor and designer at Utah State College.

Mr. Granstrom's costumes are the perfect complement to Peter Wingate's sets.

Twelfth Night plays Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and Ah, Wilderness, Eugene O'Neill's comedy, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

There will be matinee performances Wednesday and Saturday.

do not really arrest the pace of the show, and he does not make effective climaxes of his Gonna Build a Mountain and What Kind of Fool Am I numbers.

Barbara Jay plays Evie, his wife, and all the other women in his life.

This is an altogether wonderful performance; unforgettable, appealing, exceptional in style, variety, poise and charm.

Miss Jay's voice, movement, sense of timing and comedy make her almost a hypnotic figure. All her numbers, except when the orchestra dominated her—it was consistently overpowering during the first half of the show—came off superbly.

Whether she was being typically English or gloriously Russian or Typische Deutsche, she was equally enchanting, and her Meilinki Meilichik (My Little Son) duet with Littlechap provided one of the evening's highlights.

The girls' chorus was crisp, disciplined and conveyed the humor of the piece with a light, lively touch. Diane Nyland had handled the choreography well and with imagination.

Once the five-piece orchestra had lowered its volume in the second act, the over-all effect was in much better balance.

Victoria Film Festival Finished

Victoria's popular document-1965 cut $2,025 from the public ary film festival is finished. entertainment estimate, leaving City aldermen working on it at $4,200.
parks department estimates for The committee was told that films of the type desired were no longer available through the National Film Board, which co-sponsored the festival in Beacon Hill Park, and the navy's outdoor projector which had been loaned to the city was shipped to the Atlantic coast.

Travelogue-type films are still available and will be shown in co-operation with Greater Victoria school district.

"This is most unfortunate," Ald. A. W. Toone said when he learned the festival is dead.

"We spend two or three years building this up so it's known all over the continent, and now it's finished."

"It was a big thing," noted parks chairman Ald. M. H.
Mooney, referring to attendance of 10,000 persons in a summer season.

The festival drew top-quality films from many parts of the world and prizes were awarded for the best productions.

Conditional Tri-U Fund Gifts Urged

University of Victoria-Alma Mater Society president, Paul Williamson, Thursday suggested people should donate to the Three Universities Capital Fund on the condition operating grants to universities are increased by the provincial government.

"If the government doesn't provide sufficient money the ones who are penalized are the students."

"And it is the students who will be attending university in five or six years who will feel the major effect of fee increases."

"If the fees are increased again this year it will set the pattern for future increases," said Mr. Williamson.

SCORES BOOKED

Suspected Vice Ring Rounded Up

LOS ANGELES (AP) — More than 100 persons have been arrested in a widespread raid of telephone answering services that police say have been fronts for call-girl operations.

Police and sheriff's vice officers Thursday night booked scores of alleged prostitutes, male solicitors and operators of seven telephone answering services, on felony charges of conspiracy to corrupt public morals.

The raids, coming after four months of vice squad investigations, were described as the largest in Los Angeles history. They centred on Hollywood, West Hollywood and Beverly Hills, officers said.

Officers said they are convinced that the operators of the seven telephone answering services—the Los Angeles area has more than 250—knew their firms were fronts for prostitution rings and actively participated for monetary gain.

The girls arrested were described by officers as "high class" and "high priced," charging from $25 to $150 an assignment. In turn, officers said, they paid the answering services from $15 to $40 a month.

One girl, they said, was only 12 years old. She and several of her clients were arrested.

Contrast Lacking In Play

KELOWNA (CP) — A difficult play on folk morality drew a mixed response here Thursday night in the second day of the four-day British Columbia Regional Finals of the Dominion Drama Festival.

Adjudicator Walter Massey of Montreal thanked the White Rock players for presenting The Dark of the Moon, written by Howard Richardson and William Berney.

But, he said in a 45-minute adjudication, the cast could learn much from it.

The presentation, directed by Franklin Johnson, unfolds a tale of the mountain peoples of the southern United States, and included elements of witchcraft, bible-thumping and rape.

Mr. Massey told the 500 spectators that the play lacked contrast, although there were three good scenes—the revival, the birth scene and the witches scene near the end.

"These scenes showed inner life with the actors believing in themselves," he said.

"Much more could have been done with this play," which he termed "a classic in itself."

Only at times "was there full awareness of the playwright's intention."

He criticized the staging, which at times conflicted with the dialogue.

Tonight the St. Matthias Little Theatre of Victoria will present Oscar Wilde's The Importance of Being Earnest.

The final play of the regional finals, Arms and The Man, by George Bernard Shaw, will be presented Saturday night by the Dawson Creek Choral and Dramatic Society.

Court Upholds School Ban

MONTREAL (CP) — A Supreme Court justice threw out a petition Wednesday for a writ to allow five children of a doctor who opposes vaccination to attend school in suburban St. Laurent.

Mr. Justice Maurice Archambault said the admission of the children to school would expose other children to the danger of disease.

Dr. Paul-Emile Gervais told the court he regards vaccination as a superstition equivalent to jungle sorcery in Africa.

Poison Arrow Force

JAKARTA (Reuters) — A unit of Borneo natives equipped with blow pipes for shooting poisoned arrows has been stationed near the Malaysian border, Indonesia's official Antara news agency said Wednesday. Antara said the natives had expressed their determination to help Indonesia's President Sukarno crush Malaysia.

No Proof of Double Vote Druggist Informs Inquiry

VANCOUVER (CP) — Morland T. Brown, Coquitlam druggist, told an election commission inquiry Thursday that loopholes in the Federal Election Act permit the possibility of widespread irregularities.

Mr. Brown provided the bulk of material upon which Ormond Turner, columnist for the Vancouver morning daily newspaper, The Province, based articles which sparked the inquiry now being conducted by Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz.

Mr. Brown said he had no proof that individuals had cast ballots twice in some B.C. constituencies in the last federal election. Neither did he have evidence of fraudulent procedures and declared he did not allege any wrongdoing by the New Democratic Party.

But he said the NDP had won polls where he, in a previous one-man investigation, had found widespread double registration.

He told commission crown counsel Charles Locke that his personal investigation was begun after he had discovered apparent duplications in voters lists while acting as a Liberal poll captain in the 1963 general election.

He said when he went through the poll of Alvin name by name he concluded that of the 68 voters, 29 of them were registered somewhere else in B.C. The Alvin poll is in the Burnaby Coquitlam constituency of NDP leader T. C. Douglas.

He confirmed for commission counsel that he had written a letter, dated July 7 of last year, to Nelson C. Johnston, chief electoral officer, detailing his findings. This was when he was about half-way through his personal investigation.

But Mr. Brown told the commission that he had no proof of double voting, that he did not charge that any political party was putting fictitious names on the voters' list nor did he charge that double registration could be worked through unions.

The hearing continues.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD JACOBY

Tannah Hirsch of Jerusalem writes in the Johannesburg Bulletin: "Bridge players seem to have forgotten that when Milton Work introduced the 4-3-2-1 point count he intended it only for no-

NORTH (D) 3		trump contracts and as a result the ace has become greatly undervalued for suit contracts." While Mr. Hirsch does not elaborate to show that this undervaluation is most apparent when it comes to slam contracts, his example hands make this quite clear.

The first is from a rubber bridge game in Jerusalem. The bidding in the box is what actually took place at the table. De-

Mr. Hirsch points out that although North's opening bid was minimum in high cards the two heart response improved it sufficiently so that he was fully justified in giving the immediate heart raise.

Furthermore, after South bid four clubs as a mild slam try there was no good reason why North should not have bid four diamonds. A four diamond bid would surely have been rebuffed, to be in haste to bid the four have enabled South to go to six hearts while the lion heart bid effectively stopped him from going any further.

SOLUTION MONDAY

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

If there's something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngsters who ask the first question answered each day receive a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to David Brinkley, age 11, of Indianapolis, Ind., for his question:

When did the sabre-toothed tiger live?

The tiger of Asia is a fierce and fearless character, but he might pause in his tracks if he met a sabre-toothed tiger on one of his nightly prowls through the jungle. This toothy cat that lived during the Ice Ages was more than a match for any member of the modern feline family.

Fossil remains of sabre-toothed cats date back to the Oligocene Period of the earth's history. This was some 25 million years ago when the world was enjoying a year-round climate that was mild and balmy. The dinosaurs had long since departed and life on the land was dominated by a wide variety of mammals. Many of them were the ancestors of the furry animals of today, but the cat-like sabre-toothed animals were not the ancestors of our modern lions and tigers.

Sabre-toothed tigers and other dagger-toothed cats prowled through the Old and the New World. They came in assorted sizes, but as time went on the biggest of them became bigger. They survived until the Pleistocene Period when the world climate took a sharp turn for the worse. There were huge sabre-toothed tigers during the Ice Ages when large size was fashionable among the mammals.

A million years ago the plains and the prairies of North America were populated with oversized elephants, mammoths and mastodons, with giant wolves and sloths, with lions far bigger than their modern descendants. Some 50 million years ago the dog-sized ancestor of the horse started his long climb to success. His descendants had reached perfection a million years ago when the Pleistocene Period began. With llamas and camels they were hunted by the sabre-toothed tiger.

Grew Teeth Nine Inches Long

Many of the oversized mammals of this period died out of their family trees were carried on by smaller members. There are still sloths in the world, but they are much smaller than the ox-sized sloths of the Ice Ages. The modern elephant is smaller than his extinct ancestors, the mammoth and the mastodon. Our lions and tigers are smaller than their Ice Age ancestors.

And the whopping sabre-toothed cats failed to survive to modern times. The sabre-toothed tiger was named for the pair of long curved canine teeth in his upper jaw. Some of these fossil teeth are nine inches long and must have extended a good seven inches below his lower jaw. The mighty carnivore was well on armed with dagger-teeth and terrible talons; nevertheless he became extinct.

The toothy cats that once roamed the earth have been given scientific names. One of them is known as machairodus, another as smilodon. Such names are coined from older words that refer to some outstanding feature of an animal. Machairodus means dagger-tooth. Smilodon does not refer to the toothy smile on the face of the sabre-toothed tiger, but can be translated roughly as carving-knife-teeth.

none fans in her party: Pat Kennedy Lawford, the one-time understudy to a Broadway star, and a musician who used to hold a key position in the same lady's professional life, are now making beautiful love songs together. She made them both miserable while they lasted, but the sequel is sheer Romeo and Juliet.

Looks as if Peter O'Toole, who spent the past summer in Paris shooting Charlie Feldman's "What's New, Pussycat?" will be making pictures in the City of Light for the next four years. That's all right with Peter; it's Rome he hopes to avoid indefinitely. The ruins are very nice, but he tends to clash with the paparazzi. (One does feel like shooting up an ave that they'll think of a better title for "What's New, Pussycat?" that one started out being over-joy and by now is plain out-of-date). . . . The restaurant called Le Cote Basque, now shuttered, is being readied for opening. It's been reclaimed by Henri Soule, the Pav' proprietor—good news to all who regard it as one of the world's most beautiful eating-places.

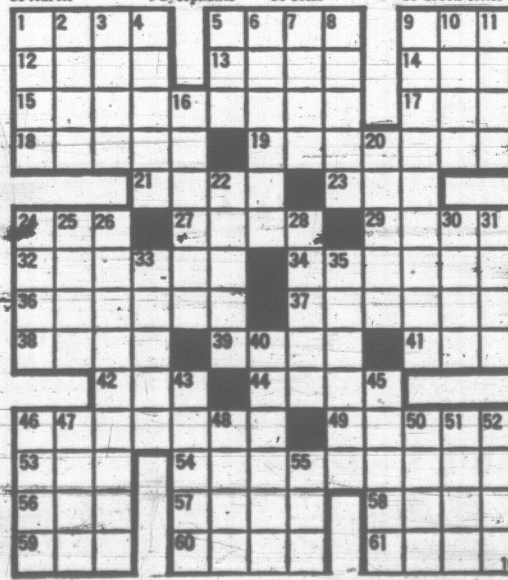

Danny Stradella, the Diamond Jim Brady of E. 45th St., went for his heaviest yet for a cafe opening at the Royal Box premiere of Nancy Ames. He's reserved a table for 66—and invited all his chums from the stage, screen and video. . . . Look for a return to zither themes for movies. The upcoming 20th Century-Fox flick, "Moriturus," starring Marlon Brando, will have a hauntingly beautiful musical thread—a zither backed by a 74-piece symphony orchestra.

One of the town's best-known call-girls has found a better means of communication than her answering service. She's become a discotheque dancer.

The Joe Levine version of "Harlow" is running on a stepped-up schedule, with the completed negative expected to be delivered by June 1, and the premiere set for about 100 strategically-located theatres all over the U.S. on June 23.

Fly-In Set By Rotary In Sidney

More than 50 aircraft are expected to participate in the Rotary Club of Sidney's May 5 "fly in."

About 100 visitors will navigate their planes to Pat Bay International Airport, some from as far as Texas. Others will come from the western United States and Canada.

The fly-in will be the first event of its kind in the history of Rotary International. It will be a regular meeting of the Sidney club "presented with a different touch," president Fred Derry says.

The planes will rendezvous at 12:30 p.m. over Pat Bay. A luncheon will be served in the lounge of the Victoria Flying Club following landings.

Mr. Derry says the club hopes to have a display of vintage flying machines at the airfield as well as military aircraft.

The program will include speakers on aviation and related subjects.

ways would be new to Greater-Victoria they are bound to be questioned and it is right that they should be.

But he felt it was an exaggerated view for anyone to think of being buried under a mass of concrete as in Los Angeles.

INCREASE INEVITABLE

An increase in traffic was inevitable and could not be met by struggling along with existing roads. Very often it was more expensive to widen existing roads than to build new ones.

He agreed with the report that it would not be economic "not even approaching economics" to think in terms of

"They can't even make buses pay more than four miles out and the first subway in Toronto was only just paying its way," he said.

He agreed freeways "very often" filled to maximum capacity but if congestion occurred because drivers preferred them, there would be less congested arterial roads.

Mr. Cox said the major problem is financing and the Capital Region Planning Board is obtaining information on cost-sharing formulas in other parts of North America and Britain.

WINNIPEG (CP)—A Thompson merchant set up camp today on the steps of the Manitoba legislative building and said he would stay there until he gets free elections for his northern nickel-mining town.

AUSSIERS GET HUGE ORDER

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Australia has sold 1,800,000 tons of wheat worth at least $107,500,000 to China and the Soviet Union, J. V. Moroney, chairman of the Australian wheat board, announced today.

The Chinese order was worth between $71,700,000 and $78,400,000 while the Russian order was valued at between $35,800,000 and $40,300,000.

So far the Chinese have spent $78,600,000 on Australian wheat.

University Construction Aids Area Building Boom

The building boom in Greater-Victoria continued last month.

Permits worth $3,630,696 were issued in March in Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt compared with $2,212,200 in the same month last year.

Biggest slice of construction was in Saanich, where 120 permits worth $1,651,148 were issued, compared with 98 permits worth $950,719 in March, 1964.

Largest of the permits was $318,077 for the student services building at the University of Victoria.

The city issued 562 permits worth $1,322,059 compared with 500 permits for $651,270 in the corresponding month.

Biggest single permit was $316,950 for a 62-suite apartment on North Douglas Street.

In Oak Bay, permits worth $551,389 were issued compared with $586,881 in the same month last year.

Esquimalt issued permits worth $106,100 compared with $23,330 in the corresponding month.

RECORD SET

March Has Never Been So Sunny

TWTMTW

That Was the Month That Was. The month with the milder, drier, sunnier, less-windy outlook.

The month guaranteed to put March 1965 on the weather map for many a rainy day.

Five records were broken.

A glut of others came near to being broken.

Wrapped up in the spring gift package were:

- 22.7 hours sunshine.
- 29 inch of rain.
- A high of 65.1 degrees.
- Below average wind speeds of 9.6 mph.

No gales were recorded, no fogs dimmed the bright outlook and snow only followed the birds as far as Sidney.

The sun set an all-time record heating the previous high of 202.3 hours recorded 60 years ago.

Temperatures were the highest on record for the fifth, 10th and 11th of the month.

FIRST PLACE

On the sixth the mercury tied for first place with the same day in 1906.

Not content with an all-time high, Victoria went onto notch up an all-time dry.

Despite some cloudy days towards the month's end the 31st passed with only .29 inch deposited on the city's doorstep.

This beat the previous low set up in 1885 by .3 inch.

March winds were 2.3 mph below normal and peak gusts on the 12th was only 40 mph.

So far the good weather has blown over into April.

April 1 notched up above average sunshine — 8.4 hours — and weatherman William Mackie forecast a mostly sunny weekend with some cloud patches.

Temperatures will rise to the lower 50s, falling to between 32 and 38 degrees overnight.

WORK TOGETHER

Municipalities could then work together and meet the provincial government to discuss cost-sharing.

He also intended to bring the matter up at a meeting of the Victoria-Vancouver Metropolitan Committee now being formed.

Reeve-Curtis welcomed the change of the Trans-Canada route because if the freeway followed the present road it would virtually isolate Town and Country Shopping Centre.

Projections of traffic loads in 1981 — the planned completion date of the report's recommendations — will be of "real help" in deciding which streets need early attention.

"I think this money or more will have to be spent and the study will help us spend it wisely," he said.

Reeve-Wurtele thought it advisable to act on the recommendations as soon as possible because "they have a habit of getting more expensive if not acted upon."

He hoped the Victoria West Freeway would be on the priority list because "we need that road."

'NOT EXCESSIVE'

The planning board's director said spending $44 million might sound high but is not excessive when compared with similar studies and requirements in other areas.

In the city of Vancouver, a recent study talked of spending between $300 million and $400 million by 1985 "which is sort of astronomical."

The study, said Mr. Roberts, pointed out an important fact — that traffic problems are regional problems and not confined to specific boundaries.

Winnipeg Newspaper Fined for Contempt

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Free Press today was found in contempt of court for two stories published during an attempted murder trial.

Mr. Justice Gordon C. Hall ordered fines of $300 against the Winnipeg Free Press Company Limited and $100 against reporter Michael Oliver. Costs were ordered against both.

In his written judgment delivered in Court of Queen's Bench, Mr. Justice Hall said there was no intention that the stories should prejudice a fair trial, "but rather a failure to achieve the standard of care which might reasonably be expected."

The stories were published Feb. 18 and 19 during the trial here of Germain Bernard of Montreal and Stanford Roy Settee of Winnipeg. The two were charged with attempted murder in the stabbing of Jean Paul Fournel, a figure in Montreal's Santa Claus bank holdup and a fellow inmate at nearby Stony Mountain Penitentiary.

DECLARES MISTRIAL

The first story said Settee had recently been discharged from Stony Mountain at the end of a two-year term for assault, and had sought unsuccessfully to have the charge against him reduced to assault causing bodily harm.

The second said Bernard had been brought to Stony Mountain from St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary in Montreal after another inmate there was killed.

After counsel for both accused objected to the stories, Mr. Justice Hall ruled both stories might have a prejudicial effect on the jury and declared a mistrial. A new trial has not yet been set.

In his judgment today, Mr. Justice Hall said both stories contained material not admissible as evidence unless introduced by the defence. They were "likely and probable to bring about a real and substantial interference with the fair trial of both the accused."

The judgment said: "Persons engaged in journalism or other media are bound to exercise a high standard of care in publishing proceedings of the court. That duty is commensurate with the risk of prejudice and the other factors which may be involved."

"In these days of rapid and instant communication, consummate care is required. A high standard of professional skill and discipline is demanded and this is especially so when the liberty of the subject is involved."

2 Die in Tug Fire Off Island Coast

Rescue Vessels Assist 4

BAMFIELD (Special to The Times)—Two men died when a flash fire swept a coastal tugboat off Cape Beale Thursday night.

Four others survived. They were brought to Bamfield Life Boat Station after rescue operations which involved navy, fisheries and coast guard vessels.

Dead are John Öberg, 50, and Raymond Howard, 53, both of Vancouver and both married. Captain Keith Hawthorne of Vancouver, and three other crewmen of the Straits Towing tug, Charlotte Straits, were awaiting air transport from here to Vancouver this morning. They were in good condition.

The fire erupted from unknown causes in the engine room at 10:30 p.m. while Charlotte Straits was towing an empty log barge north past Cape Beale, about four miles offshore.

ASPHYXIATED

The survivors said the two dead men were quickly asphyxiated in smoke from the fast burning, hot outburst of fire.

Three of the crew fought the blaze with CO2 extinguishers and with water buckets while the radio operator sent a distress signal.

It was later reported that the distraught operator called his ship by the wrong name, identifying it as the Magellan Straits, which was tied up in Vancouver at the time.

"The mixup cost us a lot of time," said a spokesman for Search and Rescue centre at Vancouver.

The Bamfield Life Boat, the fisheries vessel Laurier, coast guard ship Camell, and the destroyer-escort HMCS Yukon were all sent to the area, about 40 miles north of Tofino.

The tug crew had extinguished the blaze by the time help arrived. A doctor was transferred from HMCS Yukon. He pronounced the two victims dead. He was identified as Surgeon Lieut. J. C. Binnyere.

Cannell arrived in time to pass a resuscitator to the tug, but it was not required.

COMPANY VESSEL

Laurier put a line aboard and towed the tug to Bamfield after losing the tow which was later picked up by another company vessel.

Charlotte Straits was to be towed to Vancouver later today. Fire damage was confined to the interior of the vessel. She is a wooden tug, about 90 feet in length, and a veteran of many trips through Island waters.

HMCS Yukon left Victoria February 8 on a training cruise to Central America and was on her way back to Esquimalt when diverted by the distress call.

BATTLE NEAR SAIGON KILLS 4 AMERICANS

SAIGON (CP)—Four U.S. Army men were killed and six others were wounded in hard fighting 20 miles west of Saigon, a U.S. military spokesman reported today. Two U.S. Army helicopters were shot down.

Thirty-three U.S. jet fighters and bombers made strikes against suspected Viet Cong concentrations within South Viet Nam today. Military sources said they damaged or destroyed a number of structures.

Two of the American dead and some of the wounded were helicopter men.

By ROGER STONEBANKS

A $44 million plan to cure Greater Victoria's traffic ills was applauded this morning.

"I think it is a good report and think the general conclusions are sound," said Tony Roberts, director of the Capital Region Planning Board.

Board chairman Allan Cox, Oak Bay reeve, said it is essential to have the report to cope with problems in the next 15 or 20 years.

Saamich Reeve Hugh Curtis called it "valuable and timely" and Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele thought it was "a particularly fine report."

Mayor R. B. Wilson welcomed the plan because it will influence future zoning proposals in the city.

The report, two years in the making by a Toronto consulting company, recommended spending $30 million on freeways and $14 million on major road construction and other improvements.

15.5 MILES OF FREEWAYS

The three freeways running 15.5 miles include the Patricia Bay Highway from Telegraph Road to the Blanshard Street extension, roughly paralleling the existing road; Trans-Canada from Portage Inlet to the Patricia Bay area; and the Victoria West Freeway from the Patricia Bay at Douglas-Cloverdale across Selkirk Water and the Inner Harbour to James Bay.

Biggest question mark is raising the necessary money and municipal leaders agreed the provincial government would have to share the largest burden.

Mr. Roberts said because

Ex-Actor Held In Shooting Of Wife

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI)—Former actor Tom Neal was held without bail today on a charge of suspicion of murder after his wife was found dead from a gunshot wound in the living room of their home.

Neal has made no statement whatsoever. The case still is under investigation," said Police Chief Orest Johnson. "We have no idea what transpired out there."

Mrs. Gail Neal had been shot in the left temple with a 45 calibre automatic shortly before midnight, police said.

GOVERNMENT SOUGHT $100,000

Johnson Borrows to Pay Own Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson casually announced Thursday that he recently borrowed the money to pay $100,000 in taxes to the government.

The president didn't disclose where or how or why he borrowed the funds. And there was a bit of confusion about whether he borrowed the whole amount or part.

Then a transcript of his remarks at a White House ceremony on the first day of issue of a Crusade Against Cancer commemorative stamp showed that what he said was this:

"This year I borrowed the money the other day to pay the government a tax of $100,000."

There was no amplification from either the president or his aides.

The presidential salary is $100,000 a year, but an expense allowance increases that to $150,000. Much of Johnson's taxes are levied on non-official income received from his private investments now in trusteeship.

Johnson joked that the government has a procedure of paying the president with one hand and taking it away with the other.

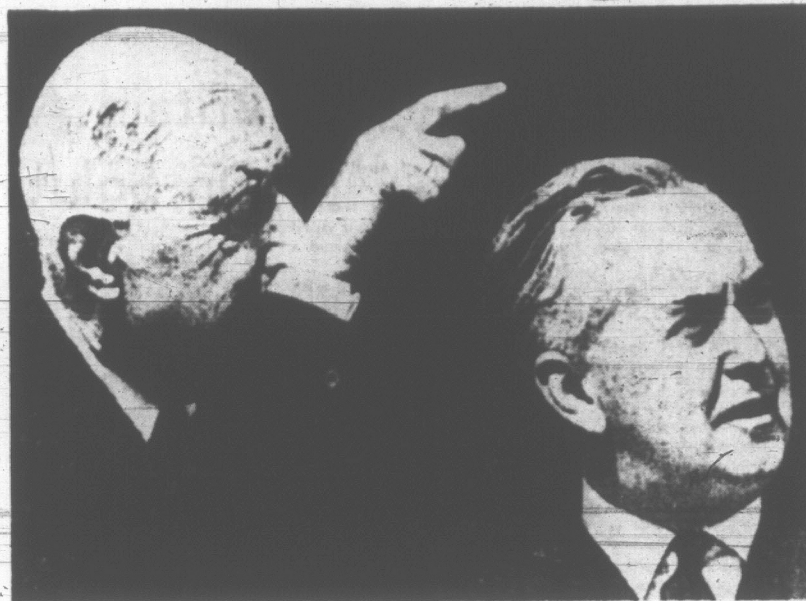

During the election campaign, Johnson made public a detailed accounting which showed his family's fortune at $3,484,098.

British, French Views 'Sharply Opposed'

PARIS (Reuters)—British and French views on the Viet Nam crisis were "diametrically opposed" today as Prime Minister Wilson, President de Gaulle and their foreign ministers conferred here.

An informed source described the de Gaulle-Wilson meeting as relaxed and friendly while a British source reported that a separate conference of their two foreign ministers showed the sharp differences over Viet Nam of the London and Paris governments.

Wilson and his foreign secretary, Michael Stewart, flew here this morning for the first top-level Anglo-French meeting since de Gaulle blocked Britain's entry to the six-nation European Common Market in January, 1963.

Stewart, who met with French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville at the foreign ministry while de Gaulle and Wilson conferred at Elysee Palace, Wilson has been supporting United States policy in Viet Nam.

SET PRECONDITION

Britain holds that South Viet Nam's Viet Cong guerrillas, helped from North Viet Nam, must stop their attacks in the south before there can be a basis for negotiating a peaceful settlement.

Couve de Murville, however, would like to see negotiations take place without preconditions.

The British source said the French government believed North Viet Nam and China would like to negotiate on Viet Nam—but could give no evidence to support this opinion.

Stewart and Couve de Murville talked for two hours on Viet Nam and other topics while de Gaulle and Wilson spent two hours and 20 minutes on East-West relations, NATO, the Middle East, Africa and other subjects.

The informed source said de Gaulle and Wilson concentrated on matters where there were constructive possibilities for co-ordination and joint action while not glossing over the fundamental differences of opinion on other questions.

De Gaulle and Wilson were

Penalty 'A Mistake' Says NHL President

(See story Page 16)

MONTREAL (CP)—President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said today a mistake was made in assessing a misconduct penalty to Montreal's Jim Roberts as the result of a second-period brawl in Thursday night's Stanley Cup playoff game.

Campbell said Roberts should have been given a major penalty for fighting, and not a misconduct. "There was no basis for a misconduct penalty that I know of," said Campbell, a spectator at the game which Montreal Canadiens won 3-2 over Toronto Maple Leafs.

He conferred briefly with referee Vern Bueff after the game.

Undoubtedly an error was made in Robert's case, but who made it, I don't know."

In the original announcement over the public address system, Roberts was assigned a major penalty only.

"Somehow the major penalty got taken away from him, and a misconduct put in its place," Campbell said.

Whether this was done on Bueff's authority, or whether the timekeeper got it confused, I don't know."

Campbell planned to meet with Bueff to go over these points.

"But a major to Roberts was the correct designation. He and Stenkowski certainly were fighting as much as anyone out there," Campbell said.

The brawling resulted in major penalties being assessed to Peter Stenkowski and Frank Mahovlich of the Leafs, and Ted Harris of the Canadiens, all for fighting.

Campbell, meanwhile, had other work out for him today—a mandatory review of the status of Leaf defenceman Kent Douglas, banished from the game with a match penalty for smashing his stick across Dave Balon's skull.

REVIEW NECESSARY

The misdemeanor calls for a review by the NHL president for possible further action. Campbell said he intends to study films of the incident and, if necessary, may arrange a meeting with the participants.

Mid-Canada Warning Line Scrapped After Six Years

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Hellyer today announced scrapping of the $227,718,302 Mid-Canada Warning Line after 6½ years of operation.

The western half of the line was shut down in January, 1964. The eastern half from Hudson Bay to Labrador ceased operations March 31, Mr. Hellyer said in a statement.

Hon. George Pearkes, former defence minister, said at that time that the line was an essential element in the North American warning system.

Decision to build the line was taken in 1954 and the network went into operation in late 1957.

A map of the air defence system published March 5 by North American Air Defence Command showed that the eastern extremity of the Mid-Canada Line at Hopedale, Labrador, had been shut down.

Closing down of the entire line is in keeping with a recent close examination by the Canadian and U.S. defence departments of resources committed to anti-bomber defences, Mr. Hellyer said.

The Mid-Canada Line, opened in 1957, ran along the 55th parallel from Labrador to Dawson Creek, B.C.

Mr. Hellyer said improvements in the Pinetree radar system to the south have made the additional coverage provided by the Mid-Canada Line no longer necessary.

Group Capt. Limbrick on his retirement from the RCAF a few years ago declared that the Mid-Canada Line had been a huge waste of money. He said radars of the type used in the Pinetree system should have been installed farther north.

The Mid-Canada Line was not radar but an electronic device which sent a beam straight up to detect any aircraft flying through the electronic "fence."

Mr. Hellyer said annual savings from shutdown of the entire line will be $13,000,000.

WARNING LINE across top of Canadian provinces will be abandoned but Distant Early Warning line in Arctic and southern Pinetree system will be retained.

Hull Back in Form But Hawks Beaten

Ullman Gives Red Wings Triumph In 4-3 Thriller

DETROIT (CP)—Norm Ullman, whose 42 goals helped Detroit Red Wings to the National Hockey championship this season, is at it again.

He thrilled a crowd of 14,927 here Thursday night by scoring the winning goal in Detroit's 4-3 Stanley Cup semifinal victory over Chicago Black Hawks.

The triumph enabled the Wings to take a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven series with the second game scheduled for here Sunday night.

Ullman's marker followed a pair by Detroit captain Alex Delvecchio and a single effort by Floyd Smith.

The loss for the Hawks had one highlight, however, in the return to form by left winger Bobby Hull. The Chicago bomber, who had missed several games because of knee injuries and was a question mark until game time, registered one goal and set up Chicago's other two.

Hull's line-mates, Phil Esposito and Chico Maki, scored the others.

The game was a see-saw battle all the way with the clubs trading the lead on four separate occasions. The count was tied 1-1 after the first period and 2-2 going into the third.

The match was rugged and fast skating throughout.

"It's good to come out of a game like that with a win," said Detroit coach Sid Abel in the dressing room.

Opposing coach Billy Reay said: "I thought we played a good game, but we just didn't have enough to win. We still have to score more goals for a victory, and I have no alibis."

Strength of Knee Pleased Bobby

Hull said: "Things just didn't go all the way I wanted, and I'm pleased the way my knee stood up."

The blond left winger, who skated hard, shot often and handed out some hefty checks, needed four stitches to close a cut on his upper lip.

Smith opened the scoring at 12:51 of the first period, jamming in a loose puck. The lead lasted only briefly as Detroit goaltender Roger Crozier made three great saves on close-in shots before Hull banged in a rebound on a power play.

ERRANT PASS

Esposito picked up an errant pass early in the second period, took advantage of a wrong turn by Red Wing defenceman Marcel Pronovost and scooted in to beat Crozier with a low drive. Elmer Vasko was sitting out a boarding penalty when the Wings tied it up on Delvecchio's first goal. The Detroit captain found the mark with a hard drive from the left point.

The Hawks wasted little time moving one up again as Maki scored at 1:01 of the third period. He shot from about 15 feet out and the puck sailed over Crozier's outstretched glove.

GOALIES BRILLIANT

Eric Nesterenko was off for elbowing when Delvecchio took his position at the point and again beat Chicago goaltender Glenn Hall with a long drive. Ullman counted the winner seconds after leaving the penalty box where he had served a minor for roughing. He cruised in front of the net and whacked in a pass from Parker MacDonald.

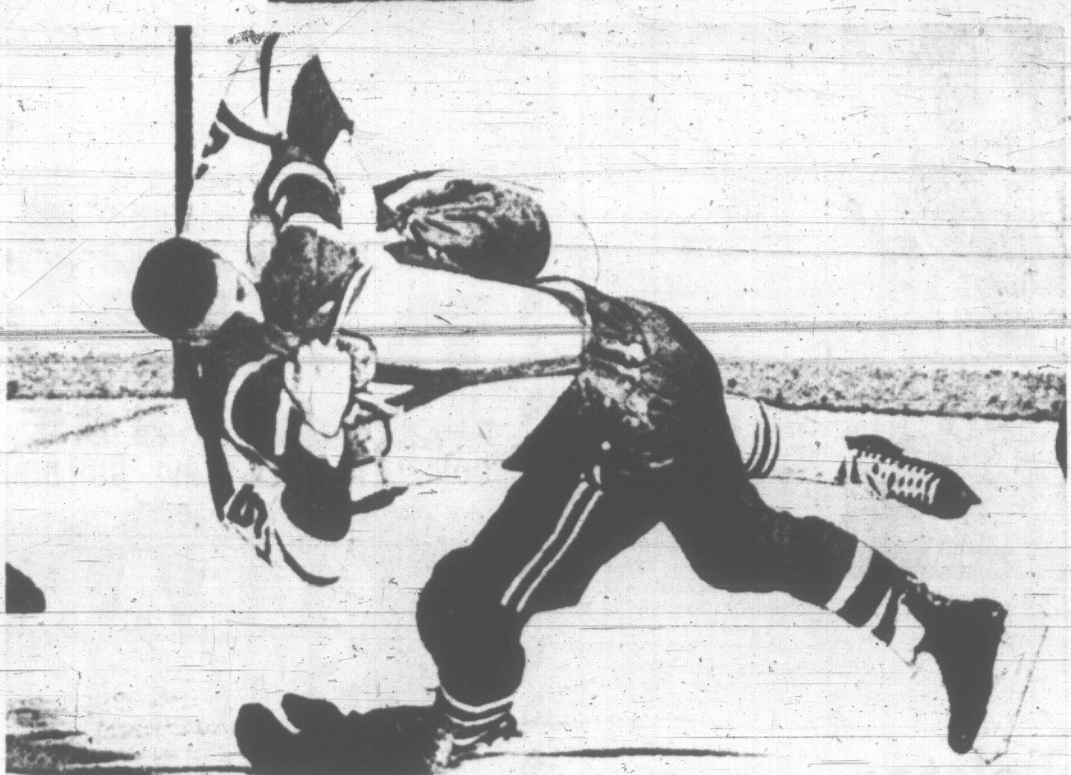

Both netminders were brilliant at times as Hall kicked out 32 shots while Crozier stopped 29.

While hard-checking throughout, the game was cleanly played and referee John Ashley called only 13 minor penalties.

seven to Detroit. Chicago's Al MacNeil received a 10-minute misconduct in the first period.

Abel said the Wings will return to their Toledo hideaway where they will remain until Sunday night.

"We're healthy, so let's go for our second straight," he told his players.

Foreigners Ever Bemused By Annual Race on Thames

LONDON (UPI)—As far as the ancient Greeks were concerned rowing was strictly for slaves, but there'll be nothing slavish about the 16 young oarsmen who will paddle a marathon for fun on Saturday with half of Britain watching them do it.

It's boat race time again—the "greatest free show on earth" they call it—with Oxford an overwhelming 4-1 favorite to beat Cambridge over four miles, 374 yards of the River Thames in the 11th meeting between the two universities.

About a million spectators will line the towpath from Putney to Mortlake. Another 20,000,000 are expected to watch it on British television, and yet another 100,000,000 will be viewing in Europe on the Eurovision network.

NO NEUTRALS

In Britain, only a handful of watchers will have been to either university. Most will never have even seen the towns of Oxford and Cambridge.

But there will be no neutrals. Cockney or Scouse, "Geordie" or Scot, they'll be for one or the other. Oxford supporters will wear huge dark blue rosettes while Cambridge's followers will sport the light blue colors.

The boat race is unique as a sporting event in that the crews are formed for one purpose only—to beat the other in this solitary race. It is one of the last truly amateur events, untouched by commercialism, left to the British public. The spectators take to it feverishly, as they have done since 1829 when Oxford won the first race.

ONE DEAD HEAT

Of the 110 races rowed, Cambridge has won 61, Oxford 48, and there's been one dead heat. Each crew has one sinking to its discredit.

Foreigners are forever bemused by the mystique of the boat race. Even though they may not understand it fully, newspapers all over the world carry reports on it, the most amusing one to date being in an Italian journal which said "The annual boat race between

Colt League Lads Must Re-Register

Officials of the Victoria Colt League baseball organization have been assured that the new diamond at Topaz Park will be ready for the new season.

Colt Leaguers begin registering tonight at Royal Athletic Park between 6:30 and 8. Registrations of potential players will continue Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Sunday, 1 to 4 p.m.

Despite an earlier announcement to the contrary, former Colt League players are required to re-register for this season.

'ANOTHER NORMIE McLEOD'

Gooding is Good for United Morale

Little men seem to have acquired a happy knack of riding tall in the Pacific Coast Soccer League saddle.

Among the more prominent are:

● Bobby Smith, the slick Columbus winger, whose 12 goals make him the giant of the PCSL's individual scoring race;

● Normie McLeod, the diminutive Canadian star, who has been the big spark of the league's second-place team;

● Peter Gooding, the Victoria United discovery, who continues to impress with each game.

Certainly, United manager Fred Magee doesn't mind putting himself down as No. 1 on the "Good for Gooding Club."

"He's another McLeod," Magee ventured.

That would, of course, cause some debate. Less argumentative is the observation that the presence of the peppy inside has been a vital factor in United's drive along the PCSL trail this season.

Magee, drumming up interest in Saturday's United-North Shore match at Royal Athletic Park, thinks Peter would be a shoo-in if the league offered a trophy to the "Find-of-the-Year."

"Peter's become something of a take-charge guy on the field," noted Magee.

"It's difficult to come to a new team and be 'accepted' right away. Peter was. The other players took to him right away. Maybe it is coincidence, but the morale has never been better."

It's like the man says, good things come in small packages.

Medics Report Yanks' Ford In Top Shape

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Following two days of blood tests and x-rays, Whitey Ford of New York Yankees was pronounced healthy Thursday.

The medical report ended speculation that Ford might have a stomach ulcer or infection that could hamper his future with the Yankees.

The veteran southpaw underwent the tests after he had been bothered by stomach problems. Two physicians who conducted the extensive examination said they found no clues to what had ailed Ford.

Who Does He Think He Is?

MONTREAL (UPI)—"Who the hell does Imlach think he is sending men out to play hockey that way?"

That was the immediate reaction of winning coach Toe Blake whose Montreal Canadiens edged the Toronto Maple Leafs, 3-2, in the opening game of the best-of-seven semi-final Stanley Cup game here last night.

Blake was referring to the rough-house tactics Imlach's Leafs used in the early going of the game which resulted in defenceman Kent Douglas being thrown out of the game for clubbing down Dave Balon in a high-sticking duel.

"If the Leafs want to play it that rough," Blake went on, "I've got some pretty rough boys I haven't even let go yet."

John Ferguson and Ted Harris, two of Montreal's bigger and more willing combatants, were singled out by Blake as his answer to rough play.

"Not only did Douglas get thrown out of the game but the Canadian Arena Company (owners of the Forum) vice-president leans over his seat and smacks Douglas on the way out."

"Maurice Richard hit Douglas right on the head."

The penalty, assessed Douglas after the NHL's "deliberate attempt to injure" rule, will cost him an automatic $100 fine. His case also will be reviewed by NHL President Clarence Campbell to see whether further punishment is in order.

The league coffers also will be enriched by $25 from Montreal's Jim Roberts for his second-period misconduct. It was one of a bevy of penalties levied after three Leafs and three Canadiens squared off in a would-be brawl that produced little more than hot words and a bit of sweater-pulling.

It ended with Balon felled by a blow from Douglas' stick and the Leaf rearguard on his way to the dressing room, a trip which Imlach charged included a fist thrown by Richard who was sitting in the crowd behind the Leaf bench.

Canadiens Nip Maple Leafs In Brawling Opening Game

MONTREAL (CP)—Call it a "miscarriage of justice" or a "well-deserved victory," but however you slice it, Montreal Canadiens hold a one-game lead in their Stanley Cup semifinal series with the defending champion Toronto Maple Leafs.

Both teams were applied Thursday night following the best-of-seven opener which more than lived up to the advance bone-rattling predictions before Canadiens emerged with a 3-2 victory. The series resumes here Saturday night.

As might be expected, the conflicting judgments came from the rival National Hockey League coaches.

Toronto's Punch Imlach was in his best playoff rage, fuming at everyone from referee Vern Buffey to former Canadiens great Maurice Richard, now a non-playing executive of the Montreal hockey club.

"These guys (the Leafs) are out there breaking their hearts to play and you get jobbed," said Imlach. "When everybody in the building is against you, it's pretty hard to win."

To which he added quickly: "But we're still going to beat them."

Montreal coach Toe Blake not surprisingly saw things in another light.

In his considered judgment, Canadiens definitely deserved to win a game which, also in his considered judgment, reflected poorly on Imlach's give-em-hell coaching tactics.

"Punch should get out there and trade some punches himself and maybe he'll see the difference," said Blake.

Both men were addressing themselves to a contest which saw Canadiens hold a 2-0 lead through 40 minutes of near-gang war, give up two quick goals to a brief Leaf resurgence and then pull out the win with the odd goal of the evening.

With Toronto's Tim Horton in the penalty box, the quick-darting Rousseau took Jean Beliveau's pass at the Leaf blue line, cut through the defence and shovelled the puck over a sprawling Johnny Bower for the goal that made all the difference. It came at 12:29 of the final period and, despite the 26th and final penalty to Canadiens' Jacques Laperriere with 43 seconds left, Toronto never really threatened to match it.

Offensively, in fact, the Leafs, seeking a fourth consecutive cup championship, were hardly in the picture except for two minutes and 42 seconds of the third period.

During that time, they got both their goals—the first on a quick effort by veteran Dickie Moore, the second on a 55-foot drive by Carl Brewer—to offset temporarily a pair of Montreal goals in the first period by Henri Richard and Ralph Backstrom.

It seemed a record-setting rate, but things cooled down during the final 20 minutes and the game ended with 26 penalties and 75 minutes, well below the playoff records of 31 and 102 respectively.

The match penalty went to Leaf defenceman Kent Douglas after the most vicious exchange of the night, a stick-swinging duel with Canadiens' Dave Balon immediately following Richard's opening goal.

It ended with Balon felled by a blow from Douglas' stick and the Leaf rearguard on his way to the dressing room, a trip which Imlach charged included a fist thrown by Richard who was sitting in the crowd behind the Leaf bench.

The penalty, assessed Douglas after the NHL's "deliberate attempt to injure" rule, will cost him an automatic $100 fine. His case also will be reviewed by NHL President Clarence Campbell to see whether further punishment is in order.

The league coffers also will be enriched by $25 from Montreal's Jim Roberts for his second-period misconduct. It was one of a bevy of penalties levied after three Leafs and three Canadiens squared off in a would-be brawl that produced little more than hot words and a bit of sweater-pulling.

Arthur Mayse

This is a month for the little streams, the brooks that slither and slide past the alder roots or burrow through the tangles, with a surprise pool here, and around the next bend, a run that makes furtive music.

The creeks of spring are narrow enough for a boy to jump, shallow enough in their miniature riffles for a man to wade casually.

Rarely do they hold trout of any size, though the wise angler is prepared for surprises when he drifts a worm under a cedar-bough canopy to the scoured hollows of a shelter.

Something just might be lurking there, to latch on with a hard pull—and more likely than not, to break loose in one heart-shocking surge and flurry.

Such encounters, however, are infrequent enough to give the creek where they happen a new legend. Man and boy are far more likely to go home well-content with a catch of eight-inch troutings, to be sizzled communally with a garnish of bacon and a dusting of commel in the frying pan.

Man and boy, I said, if the man is lucky enough to have a son. If not, perhaps he can borrow a boy; for all fishing, this of the little streams demands a young outlook.

A tidler yoyicked from his lily with an enthusiasm that lands him in a thicket of a dozen feet distant must generate excitement equal to that furnished by a six-pound Cowichan brownie or some great greyhound of a winter-run steelhead.

So take a boy by all means, or a girl if she doesn't object to wet feet and earthworms squirming on the hook. Be prepared, though, to have your junior companion outstretch you on the sort of creek I have in mind.

In this miniature world of the waterbrooks, where casting skill signifies less than youth's ability to slip quietly through where grownups crash and founder, size and weight are more handicap than advantage.

Attempt a long throw and you spend a scratchy ten minutes retrieving your rig from an ocean spray jungle. Splash about in the creek and scared fish skitter off to new hide-holes.

A boy knows better. He floats the worm down leafy tunnels—instantly a rod tip among low-sweeping branches with stealth and cunning. Impatient elsewhere, he brings to his fishing infinite patience.

The young man at our house can't spare time from a university freshman's rugged schedule for fishing the little streams this April. We had our days together when he was of an age for that sport, and came home with the trophies that load a man-and-boy creel.

Trout, if we'd been lucky. Also, frogs, queer fungi, a rock flecked with what looked mighty like gold, fern leaves to keep our fish cool, and perhaps on top of all, a noble yellow skunk cabbage bloom.

Millstream is just such a fun-creek, and from a few of its pools, we have taken cut-throat trout that needed no smallboy stretching to achieve the legal size limit.

There are other such brooks on our generous South Island, but those of my own boyhood lie farther north. Bonsul Creek in the Chemainus country, I remember so pleasantly that I will not risk an adult return.

We fished Bonsul later in the year, though. For April, I best recall a streamlet, a short haul south of Nanaimo. Some pioneer with a sense of humor dubbed it Chase River.

I don't know if it still holds plump freckle-backs, but it did then; and the best of its tarry black holes lured—as into acres dominated by a mean hulk and what Nanaimo boys believed to be a sure-enough witch.

In honesty I never encountered either of these guardians. Still, few fishing ventures since have matched the thrill of the cautious approach, the quick flip of a barbed worm, and perhaps once in a springtime, the answering tug of a saucy April trout!

E. DAVIE FULTON

PCs Huddle Tonight On Fulton

The executive councils of the B.C. federal and provincial Progressive Conservative parties will meet in Vancouver tonight to discuss the prime minister's nomination of E. Davie Fulton.

Mr. Fulton, provincial leader of the party, is expected to resign from his position to clear the way for his re-entry into federal politics.

He will announce his decision at 10:30 Saturday morning when he addresses the general assembly of council members from all over B.C.

On his last visit to Victoria in January, Mr. Fulton was asked to accept the nomination for the Victoria riding in the next federal election.

He answered at that time that though he was honored by the request his first job lay in strengthening the party position in B.C.

Since then speculation has been rife that he has changed his mind and might be eyeing the leadership of the federal party.

Dr. C. J. Wiloughby touched of a new spate of rumors a few weeks ago when he announced his retirement from political life.

He succeeded Mr. Fulton in Ottawa as MP for the Kamloops riding.

Speculation now is that Mr. Fulton will run for the Kamloops seat in a bye-election or in the next general election.

Mr. Fulton became leader of the provincial Conservatives in 1963 and ran against Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi the same year in Kamloops but was defeated at the polls.

His party failed to capture a single seat.

NAVAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

In port are HMCS Salish, Yukon, Sturgeon, and the new ship, which arrived here today from Central American waters in company with St. Therese, Ojibwa, and the warship Grille. Also in port are the destroyer Ojibwa and the Ojibwa.

HMCS Jangaruk will arrive here Saturday at 11:30 a.m. from San Francisco. HMCS Fraser is in port at Port Harbour (HMCS Ship Markham, Beacon Hill and Salsburgh left Hong Kong today for Yokohama, Japan).

Supporters of the Keep-Tilikum-Free campaign plan to picket the Maritime Museum when it opens this fall in the old courthouse.

But the picket will only be posted if the museum proceeds with plans to charge admissions to view the famous dugout, says G. R. "Rebel" Mowat.

Mr. Mowat said today the "terrific" support given his campaign has made him determined to take every possible step toward keeping the 105-year-old vessel as a free attraction.

It has been freely enjoyed by residents and visitors for 25 years. Sailed almost around the world in the early 1900s by a Victorian, John Voss, it is a source of pride to long-time residents and newcomers alike, said Mr. Mowat.

He wants it moved to the new provincial museum, to be built on Belleville at Government and protests its removal recently from Thunderbird Park by the province, without recourse to the community.

YATES AND DOUGLAS
Mr. Mowat will take names for a petition Saturday at Yates and Douglas and other supporters of his cause will work in other areas.

Here are comments from letters received by Mr. Mowat from well-wishers Thursday:

$7,500 In Loot Recovered

Kitchen Sink Listed Among Stolen Goods

City police had to call in a moving company Thursday to cart away about $7,500 worth of stolen property recovered in a raid on a Catherine Street home.

The haul included even a kitchen sink. There were several bath tubs, expensive plumbing fixtures, several mirrors, 20 large sheets of treated plywood and a large amount of power tools.

Police said the articles were stolen over the last year from numerous construction sites about the city and from homes and business premises.

ALERT CONSTABLES

Detective Sergeant Norman Bath gave credit for the recovery to two uniformed constables, Alan Archbold and William Somerville.

He said they spotted two men in a car Wednesday night and became suspicious of them. The two policemen stopped the men, checked the car and then called in detectives to continue the investigation.

Police obtained a search warrant and then carried out the raid on the Catherine Street address where the stolen property was found in the basement.

Two men have been charged with possession of stolen goods. Det-Sgt. Bath said persons who have lost tools or fixtures in the past year should visit the police station to see if their property is among the articles recovered.

Magistrate Ooster remanded Baker to April 30 for sentence.

Man 'Sorry' But Jailed

Cashing bad cheques totalling more than $500 resulted in a two-year penitentiary term this morning to Donald Bell, of Sidney.

Bell, who has a previous record for uttering and forgery, said he was "terribly sorry" for what he has done.

Magistrate William Ooster told him that writing bad cheques is like a disease such as alcoholism with some people.

"The longer it is done the greater hold it gets on a person,"

The magistrate told Bell that unless he does something to help himself break the habit no one can help him.

The magistrate said Bell's offences, in the city, Oak Bay and Saanich, show a continuing pattern.

Pair Awarded Scholarships

Two biology students at the University of Victoria have received scholarships, the university announced today.

B. J. Crawford receives a $2,500 McConnell Fellowship to study in the department of anatomy at McGill University.

Alistair MacDonald receives a McGill University graduate studies in botany.

Mr. Crawford was recently awarded a $2,500 fellowship from the National Research Council.

GAPING HOLE IN STORY ON SCRAPMAN

A city detective told in court today how he became suspicious of a man he saw walking along Queens Avenue one night last week carrying a manhole cover.

The man was William Baker, 710 Kings Road, who pleaded guilty to stealing the manhole cover.

Detective Lyle Somers said Baker told him he found the manhole cover propped up against a wall on Store Street near the site of some city construction work.

Baker told Magistrate William Ooster today, "I'm a scrap dealer, in an odd way."

He said he realized after he took the cover that "I did wrong."

The 33-year-old accused said he had decided to return the manhole cover when he discovered it had rolled off the back of his truck.

He had gone back and picked it up when he was spotted by Det. Somers.

Survey Starts On Freighter After Mishap

An underwater survey began this morning on the Greek freighter Olympic Palm after she was freed from rocks off Orcas Island in the San Juan Group Thursday evening.

The huge 24,729-ton bulk carrier came under her own power directly to the government graving dock at Esquimalt.

John Wallace, general manager of Yarrows Ltd., which will do the work, said he suspects damage to her forward plates will warrant her entering the drydock for repairs.

GROUNDED HARD

The fully-loaded freighter, carrying 11 million board feet of lumber from Island ports, grounded hard early Thursday morning.

Her water line was 10 feet above the sea when viewed by RCAF search and rescue aircraft.

Victoria-based tugs Island Mariner and Island Monarch pulled her off during a high-water period late Thursday afternoon. The job took two hours.

They were assisted during a nine-foot tide by the ship engines.

The ship was launched four weeks ago from a Japanese shipyard and was on her maiden voyage.

Most of her lumber was picked up 10 days ago in Victoria which she will later take to the eastern U.S.

New Drain Deferred As Estimates Pared

By AB KENT

Victoria aldermen ventured on to shaky ground today in trimming $162,300 from 1965 spending estimates when they decided to defer replacement of a Causeway storm drain system.

City engineer James Garnett told public works estimates committee the job valued at $70,000 should be given priority because tidal action under the Causeway into old drains presents a silting problem in the harbor.

This suggests an undermining action is taking place under the Causeway.

The drain problem also bears on a B.C. Telephone plan to place new underground cables in the area. Work has already begun. Drainage plans for the provincial government's $5-million museum-archives complex starting this summer are also involved.

Aldermen concerned about the possibility of a major tax increase decided to delay the job for a few months or up to a year—to pay for it out of tax sale land funds.

The committee faced an $865,000 spending increase—7.4 mills on the tax rate—when estimate trimming sessions started.

"This is a terrible increase," Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow remarked, suggesting the storm drain project be deferred.

Co-operation of B.C. Telephone and the provincial government will be sought, and the work could get done early in the summer.

"All I know is that it is a most unsatisfactory situation where harbor waters are coming into the drains," Mr. Garnett said.

"This bothers me," said Ald. A. W. Toome.

"We are sidestepping our responsibility," he said when the mayor supported deleting the item.

"If we take it out, next year's council is stuck with it," Mr. Garnett pointed out that the item had been deferred twice previously, once from the capital budget program.

He said if the telephone work goes ahead it would mean ripping up the streets twice, and if the job is delayed till later in the spring, "then you are in the middle of the tourist season."

NO BIDS
The project was put to tender a short time ago, but no bids were received. Contractors apparently had full programs without adding to schedules, aldermen were told.

Total trimming from estimates this morning came to $330,140, or slightly more than three mills.

Major public works items were to be studied later today, which could bring substantially more off the proposed spending.

School costs, guessed at two mills increase, will not be known for about two weeks.

Estimates cut today included $117,850 from sanitation and waste removal, $32,000 from water distribution, $12,450 from building maintenance.

CAUTION
Putting in a word of caution as consideration got under way, Mayor R. B. Wilson said:

"We all get impatient, but after all, Rome wasn't built in a day and I don't think Victoria can be rebuilt in one year."

"We are making tremendous progress, with higher extraordinary expenditures as well as $700,000 a year in the capital budget."

BACK FROM SOUTH

A 71-year-old woman was in good condition today after being in collision with a car as she crossed Cook Street Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Eileen Lemmex, 2122 Cook, suffered back injuries and is detained at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Police identified the driver of the car as Stanley Elliott, 24, of 1765 Newton.

Jack McEathron, 2532 Shelbourne, today pleaded guilty to driving while impaired and making a false declaration to obtain unemployment insurance.

He was fined $300 and lost his licence on the first charge and an additional $75 on the second.

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birckett said McEathron had a blood alcohol level of .21 per cent when tested early on the morning of March 26 at the police station. He had been arrested while sitting in a truck at Turner and Bay.

Evidence on the other charge was that McEathron told the Unemployment Insurance Commission that he had been laid off work when in fact he failed to show up and was fired.

MT. DOUGLAS, CEDAR HILL

Two Sites Eyed For New Stadium

Organized sport came out loudly Thursday for a 20,000-seat stadium as a Greater Victoria centennial project.

Two sites were proposed. They are 25-acre areas west of Mount Douglas and a similar-sized parcel comprising the north end of Cedar Hill Golf Club.

The proposal was made to Greater Victoria Confederation Centennial Committee by centennial stadium sub-committee of Greater Victoria Sports Council.

It was supported by separate briefs from Victoria Canadian Football Union, Greater Victoria Baseball Association, Little League Baseball, Victoria Rugby Union, Vancouver Island Track and Field Council, Victoria District Soccer Association, Victoria High School's Athletic Council and Oak Bay Recreation Commission.

A separate proposal for a multi-purpose stadium was made by Reeve Hugh Curtis of Saanich.

The sports council brief said the present population of the capital region area is estimated at 173,500 and within 20 years the 300,000 figure would be almost achieved.

It pointed out that lesser populated cities elsewhere in Canada far outdo Greater Victoria in sports facilities. This area has insufficient facilities for professional baseball or football and the only cinder track in the area is inadequate for even school use.

5,000 UNDER COVER
The sports council said at least 5,000 seats should be provided under cover.

"Comfort is required to attract people to sporting events," and adequate parking must be close.

The brief envisaged a stadium with ability to expand, which could be built in stages, with concession facilities, a track, training room, referee rooms and press and radio facilities.

The brief said no costs could be arrived at now.

But grants available to the Greater Victoria area (about 55 per cent of cost) would be sufficient to acquire the necessary land and make a modest beginning.

The question of sites was explored by a subcommittee of two, Norman Worley of City Hall engineering staff, and city parks superintendent Herbert Warren.

"SUN TRAP"
Their ultimate choices were: "A small valley lying between Mount Douglas and Mount Douglas Cross Road, bounded by Glenedenning in the east and Blenkinsop on the west—a sun trap, protected from the north and east and having very little wind. All-year use would be quite practical here."

Cedar Hill golf course—north end.

The report said this area is "quite high and probably moderately exposed to wind, but all-year use is quite practical."

Reeve Hugh Curtis of Saanich told the centennial planners that while Saanich council favors a sports stadium, "Saanich is not committed to this project to the exclusion of all others."

"But it is one which deserves full and complete study by individual groups," he said.

SKI REPORT
Good skiing conditions and a sunny 28 degrees were reported from Green Mountain today by the Sno-Birds Ski Club.

Seven inches of new snow covered 75 inches of old base at the area near Nanaimo Lakes.

Club officials said two tows would be in operation for weekend skiers and one snowmobile would be running to the "halfway gulley," possibly to the "alders." The access from September until they left in early February.

TOPICS of the DAY

Victoria Red Cross March Campaign has reached 73 per cent of its $82,000 goal. Late collection coming in brings the total contributions to $59,953.21.

Canvassers are still bringing collections and a recount will be made on Monday.

J. D. Wilson, volunteer campaign chairman for the B.C. Division Red Cross March drive, reports 46.71 per cent of the $653,900 quota for British Columbia already accounted for.

This sum is $50,320 more than the amount collected at this time in 1964.

Winners of the weekly game of the Altimasters Duplicate Bridge Club played Thursday at the Moose Hall were: 1. Elizabeth Warren and Les Stewart; 2. Phil Hazel and Paul Smith; 3. Jack Goldie and Mike Champion; 4. Minna Loomer and Lillian Goodwin; 5. Birdie Spotswood and Earle Dye.

Miss M. C. Melburn will lead the Victoria Natural History Society on the first field trip of the season Saturday.

The group will leave from the corner of Hillside and Douglas at 1:30 p.m. to make a tour of Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary.

Visitors will be welcome, officials said.

Battle of the Atlantic Sunday will be marked this year May 2 by ships and establishments of the RCN's Pacific Command.

Roman Catholic and Protestant services will be held in HMCS Naden. They will be open to the public.

The Sunday is set aside to pay tribute to the men lost in action in the Second World War and the Korean War.

Shops and establishments not in Victoria will arrange their own services that day.

The intermediate section of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the Monterey parking lot for a field trip to Mt. Douglas.

The Nature House at Francis Park will be open during the weekend from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

A conducted "walk" will be held at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

No Proof of Double Vote Druggist Informs Inquiry

VANCOUVER (CP) — Morland T. Brown, Coquitlam druggist, told an election commission inquiry Thursday that loop holes in the Federal Election Act permit the possibility of widespread irregularities.

Mr. Brown provided the bulk of material upon which Ormond Turner, columnist for the Vancouver morning daily newspaper, The Province, based articles which sparked the inquiry now being conducted by Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz.

Mr. Brown said he had no proof that individuals had cast ballots twice in some B.C. constituencies in the last federal election. Neither did he have evidence of fraudulent procedures and declared he did not allege any wrongdoing by the New Democratic Party.

But he said the NDP had won polls where he, in a previous one-man investigation, had found widespread double registration.

He told commission crown counsel Charles Locke that his personal investigation was begun after he had discovered apparent duplications in voters' lists while acting as a Liberal poll captain in the 1963 general election.

He said when he went through the poll of Alvin name-by-name he concluded that of the 68 voters, 29 of them were registered somewhere else in B.C. The Alvin poll is in the Burnaby-Coquitlam constituency of NDP leader T. C. Douglas.

He confirmed for commission counsel that he had written a letter, dated July 7 of last year, to Nelson Castonguay, chief electoral officer, detailing his findings. This was when he was about half-way through his personal investigation.

But Mr. Brown told the commission that he had no proof of double voting, that he did not charge that any political party was putting fictitious names on the voters' list nor did he charge that double registration could be worked through unions.

And he at no time had claimed that he could prove that illegal votes were cast in the 1963 election.

The hearing continues.

Suspected Vice Ring Rounded Up

LOS ANGELES (AP) — More than 100 persons have been arrested in a widespread raid of telephone answering services that police say have been fronts for call-girl operations.

Police and sheriff's vice officers Thursday night booked scores of alleged prostitutes, male solicitors and operators of seven telephone answering services on felony charges of conspiracy to corrupt public morals.

The raids, coming after four months of vice squad investigations, were described as the largest in Los Angeles history. They centred on Hollywood, West Hollywood and Beverly Hills, officers said.

Officers said they are convinced that the operators of the seven telephone answering services—the Los Angeles area has more than 250—knew their firms were fronts for prostitution rings and actively participated for monetary gain.

The girls arrested were described by officers as "high class" and "high priced," charging from $25 to $150 an assignment. In turn, officers said, they paid the answering services from $15 to $40 a month.

One girl, they said, was only 12 years old. She and several of her clients were arrested.

Supermarket Charged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver police have charged Dominion Stores Limited, a national supermarket chain, with operating an illegal lottery.

A summons was served on officials of the company's main store here. The company is charged with conducting a lottery scheme since Feb. 4 with its "four of a kind or four in a row" promotion.

A company official said the promotion is "one of the type we have run repeatedly" for years and that its legal implications on a federal, provincial and local level were investigated before it was begun Feb. 1.

He said the promotion extends across Canada, with the exception of Alberta, where any giveaway is illegal under provincial law.

Contrast Lacking In Play

KELOWNA (CP) — A difficult play on folk morality drew a mixed response here Thursday night in the second day of the four-day British Columbia Regional Finals of the Dominion Drama Festival.

Adjudicator Walter Massey of Montreal thanked the White Rock players for presenting The Dark of the Moon, written by Howard Richardson and William Berner.

But, he said in a 45-minute adjudication, the cast could learn much from it.

The presentation, directed by Franklin Johnson, unfolds a tale of the mountain peoples of the southern United States, and included elements of witchcraft, bible-thumping and rape.

Mr. Massey told the 500 spectators that the play lacked contrast, although there were three good scenes—the revival, the birth scene and the witches scene near the end.

"These scenes showed inner life with the actors believing in themselves," he said.

"Much more could have been done with this play," which he termed "a classic in itself."

Only at times "was there full awareness of the playwright's intention."

He criticized the staging, which at times conflicted with the dialogue.

The final play of the regional finals, Arms and The Man, by George Bernard Shaw, will be presented Saturday night by the Dawson Creek Choral and Dramatic Society.

Court Upholds School Ban

MONTREAL (CP) — A Supreme Court justice threw out a petition Wednesday for a writ to allow five children of a doctor who opposes vaccination to attend school in suburban St. Laurent.

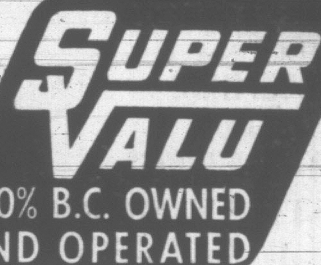

Mr. Justice Maurice Archaibault said the admission of the children to school would expose other children to the danger of disease.

Dr. Paul-Emile Chevreuil told the court he regards vaccination as a superstition equivalent to jungle sorcery in Africa.

Poison Arrow Force

JAKARTA (Reuters) — A unit of Borneo natives equipped with blow pipes for shooting poisoned arrows has been stationed near the Malaysian border, Indonesia's official Antara news agency said Wednesday. Antara said the natives had expressed their determination to help Indonesia's President Sukarno crush Malaysia.

British, French Views
'Sharply Opposed'

PARIS (Reuters) — British and French views on the Viet Nam crisis were "diametrically opposed" today as Prime Minister Wilson, President de Gaulle and their foreign ministers conferred here.

An informed source described the de Gaulle-Wilson meeting as relaxed and friendly while a British source reported that the two foreign ministers showed sharp differences over Viet Nam of the London and Paris governments.

Wilson and his foreign secretary, Michael Stewart, flew here this morning for the first top-level Anglo-French meeting since de Gaulle blocked Britain's entry to the six-nation European Common Market in January, 1963.

Stewart held talks with French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville at the foreign ministry while de Gaulle and Wilson conferred at Elysee Palace. Wilson has been supporting United States policy in Viet Nam.

SET PRECONDITION Britain holds that South Viet Nam's Viet Cong guerrillas, helped from North Viet Nam, must stop their attacks in the south before there can be a basis for negotiating a peaceful settlement.

Couve de Murville, however, would like to see negotiations take place without preconditions.

The British source said the French government believed North Viet Nam and China would like to negotiate on Viet Nam—but could give no evidence to support this opinion.

Stewart and Couve de Murville talked for two hours on Viet Nam and other topics while de Gaulle and Wilson spent two hours and 20 minutes on East-West relations, NATO, the Middle East, Africa and other subjects.

The informed source said de Gaulle and Wilson concentrated on matters where there were constructive possibilities for co-ordination and joint action while not glossing over the fundamental differences of opinion on other questions.

GOVERNMENT SOUGHT $100,000

Johnson Borrows to Pay Own Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson casually announced Thursday that he recently borrowed the money to pay $100,000 in taxes to the government.

The president didn't disclose where or how or why he borrowed the funds. And there was a bit of confusion about whether he borrowed the whole amount or part.

Then a transcript of his remarks at a White House ceremony on the first day of issue of a Crusade Against Cancer commemorative stamp showed that what he said was this:

"This year I borrowed the money the other day to pay the government a tax of $100,000."

There was no amplification from either the president or his aides.

The presidential salary is $200,000 a year, but an expense allowance increases that to $250,000. Much of Johnson's taxes are levied on non-official income received from his private investments in trusts.

Johnson joked that the government has a procedure of paying the president with one hand and taking it away with the other.

During the election campaign, Johnson made public a detailed accounting which showed his family's fortune at $3,484,098.

BATTLE NEAR SAIGON
KILLS 4 AMERICANS

SAIGON (CP)—Four U.S. Army men were killed and six others were wounded in hard fighting 20 miles west of Saigon, a U.S. military spokesman reported today. Two U.S. Army helicopters were shot down.

Thirty-three U.S. jet fighters and bombers made strikes against suspected Viet Cong concentrations within South Viet Nam today. Military sources said they damaged or destroyed a number of structures.

Two of the American dead and some of the wounded were helicopter men.

'Pray-In' Staged

CAMDEN, Ala. (UPI)—A group of about 65 Negroes, most of them youngsters, staged a singing, swaying "pray-in" today three blocks from the Wilcox County courthouse.

They sprawled in the street, a main thoroughfare in this rural town, after a brief confrontation with Mayor Reg Albritton and Sheriff J. P. Jenkins. They left only one narrow lane for traffic.

Send More Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—Maxwell D. Taylor, U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam, wound up consultations with President Johnson today, saying more American men and equipment will be sent to South Viet Nam, but not a large number.

Flee Flames

VANCOUVER (CP)—Four children fled across rooftops to escape their burning home here early today. Their parents and another child escaped through a bedroom window.

Sheryl Wickham, 16, stood on the roof of her burning home and passed her two younger sisters, Joanne, 7, and Nancy, 6, to her brother Robby, 14, who was standing on the roof of a neighboring house three feet away.

Stress Blamed

Two Seamen
Die in Fire

Four Rescued From Towing Tug
As Ships Answer Cape Beale Call

BAMFIELD (Special to The Times)—Two men died when a flash fire swept a coastal tugboat off Cape Beale Thursday night.

Four others survived. They were brought to Bamfield Life Boat Station after rescue operations which involved navy, fisheries and coast guard vessels.

Dead are John Oberg, 50, and Raymond Howard, 53, both of Vancouver and both married. Captain Keith Hawthorne of Vancouver, and three other crewmen of the Straits Towing tug, Charlotte Straits, were awaiting air transport from here to Vancouver this morning. They were in good condition.

The fire erupted from unknown causes in the engine room at 10:30 p.m. while Charlotte Straits was towing an empty log barge north past Cape Beale, about four miles off shore.

ASPHYXIATED

The survivors said the two dead men were quickly asphyxiated in smoke from the fast burning, hot outburst of fire.

Three of the crew fought the blaze with CO2 extinguishers and with water buckets while the radio operator sent a distress signal.

(It was later reported that the distraught operator called his ship by the wrong name, identifying it as the Magellan Straits, which was tied up in Vancouver at the time.)

"The mixup cost us a lot of time," said a spokesman for Search and Rescue centre at Vancouver.

(This was later denied by Charlotte Strait's captain. He said a Tofino operator relaying the distress call, made the mistake, but corrected it immediately and assistance was on the way within four minutes.)

The Bamfield Life Boat, the fisheries vessel Laurier, coast guard ship Camell, and the destroyer-escort HMCS Yukon were all sent to the area, about 40 miles north of Tofino.

Radar Beam
'Outdated'

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Hellyer today announced scrapping of the $227,718,302 Mid-Canada Warning Line after 6½ years of operation.

The western half of the line was shut down in January, 1964. The eastern half from Hudson Bay to Labrador ceased operations March 31, Mr. Hellyer said in a statement.

Decision to build the line was taken in 1954 and the network went into operation in late 1957.

Hon. George Pearkes, former defence minister, said at that time that the line was an essential element in the North American warning system.

A map of the air defence system published March 5 by North American Air Defence Command showed that the eastern extremity of the Mid-Canada Line at Hopedale, Labrador, had been shut down.

Closing down of the entire line is in keeping with a recent close examination by the Canadian and U.S. defence departments of resources committed to anti-bomber defences, Mr. Hellyer said.

The Mid-Canada Line ran along the 55th parallel from Labrador to Dawson Creek, B.C.

Mr. Hellyer said improvements in the Pinetree radar system to the south have made the additional coverage provided by the Mid-Canada Line no longer necessary.

Group Capt. Limbrick on his retirement from the RCAF a few years ago declared that the Mid-Canada Line had been a huge waste of money. He said radars of the type used in the Pinetree system should have been installed farther north.

The Mid-Canada Line was not radar but an electronic device which sent a beam straight up to detect any aircraft flying through the electronic "fence."

Mr. Hellyer said annual savings from shutdown of the entire line will be $13,000,000.

Penalty 'A Mistake'
Says NHL President

(See story Page 16)

MONTREAL (CP)—President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said today a mistake was made in assessing a misconduct penalty to Montreal's Jim Roberts as the result of a second-period brawl in Thursday night's Stanley Cup playoff game.

Campbell said Roberts should have been given a major penalty for fighting, and not a misconduct. "There was no basis for a misconduct penalty that I know of," said Campbell, a spectator at the game which Montreal Canadiens won 3-2 over Toronto Maple Leafs.

He conferred briefly with referee Vern Bennett after the game.

"Undoubtedly an error was made in Robert's case, but who made it, I don't know."

In the original announcement over the public address system, Roberts was assigned a major penalty only.

"Somehow the major penalty got taken away from him, and a misconduct put in its place," Campbell said.

REVIEW NECESSARY

"The misdeedman calls for a review by the NHL president for possible further action. Campbell said he intends to study films of the incident and, if necessary, may arrange a meeting with the participants."

Traffic Plan Lauded
As Timely, Valuable

By ROGER STONEBANKS

A $44 million plan to cure Greater Victoria's traffic ills was applauded this morning.

"I think it is a good report and I think the general conclusions are sound," said Tony Roberts, director of the Capital Region Planning Board.

Board chairman Allan Cox, Oak Bay reeve, said it is essential to have the report to cope with problems in the next 15 or 20 years.

Saatchi-Reeve-Hugh Curtis called it "valuable and timely" and Esquimalt Reeve A. C.

Wurtele thought it was "a particularly fine report."

Mayor R. B. Wilson welcomed the plan because it will influence future zoning proposals in the city.

The report, two years in the making by a Toronto consulting company, recommended spending $30 million on freeways and $14 million on major road construction and other improvements.

The three freeways running 15.5 miles include the Patricia Bay Highway from Telegraph Road to the Blanshard Street extension, roughly paralleling the existing road; Trans-Canada from Portage Inlet to the Patricia Bay; and the Douglas-McKenzie area; and the Victoria West Freeway from the Patricia Bay to Douglas-Cloverdale across Selkirk Water and the Inner Harbor to James Bay.

Biggest question mark is raising the necessary money and municipal leaders agreed the provincial government would have to share the largest burden.

Mr. Roberts said because Continued on Page 37

ITU Mailers Want to Go Back to Work

TORONTO (CP)—Robert Earles, president of the Toronto Mailers' local of the International Typographical Union (ITU), said today he has notified the publishers of the three Toronto daily newspapers that the "vast majority" of mailers who quit work when ITU printers went on strike last July 9 want to go back to work.

The 220 employees of the papers' mailing department left the job under a contract clause allowing them to do this when printers strike. The papers have continued to publish since the ITU printers struck.

Spokesmen for the two Toronto afternoon papers—the Star and the Telegram—said today they are willing to discuss the matter with the mailers.

There was no immediate comment from the morning Globe and Mail.

Since the mailers left work, their jobs have been taken over by new personnel.

Mr. Earles said there was no membership vote among the mailers on the back-to-work proposal, but that most of the men—whose walkout was at individual discretion—had asked him to take it up with management.

Anti-Strike Legislation Postponed

REGINA (CP)—The Saskatchewan government will not proceed with anti-strike legislation "at this time," Premier Thatcher said Thursday.

Mr. Thatcher told the annual convention of the Saskatchewan Urban Municipalities Association, there had been suggestions the measure should be enacted in which all labor disagreements involving public utilities would have to be submitted to binding arbitration.

"We have decided after long thought and consideration not to proceed with such labor legislation at this time," he said. The government believes the goodwill and common sense of Saskatchewan Power Corporation employees and their concern for the well-being of the people will prevail, Mr. Thatcher said.

"We are confident the voice of labor will continue to be a moderate one and good relations can be maintained between the people of Saskatchewan and the members of the union at the SPC."

Magistrate William Ostler set bail at $500 each for Janos Puskas and Mihaly Molnar, both of 1020 Catherine St.

They are alleged to have stolen four 5-gallon drums of acoustic adhesive valued over $50 from the shed of contractor G. H. Wheaton, 880 Broughton.

The location is the site of the YM-YWCA building now under construction.

Mayor to Join Kitimat Flight

Mayor R. B. Wilson will join the one-day "Know B.C. Better" flight to Kitimat June 9.

The flight, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce is almost a sell-out with two months left to go before departure day.

Of the 80 seats on the aircraft 70 have been booked.

Those making the trip will leave Victoria early on the morning of June 9 and return late the same evening.

The trip includes visits to Terrace and the giant aluminum plant at Kitimat.

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—With only the formality of royal assent remaining, the Canada Pension Plan is about to become a fact—and it's doubtful whether any other piece of legislation has required so much effort to bring it into effect.

And now that it has cleared its final parliamentary hurdle, what have Canadians got for themselves?

The short answer is that most Canadians will have a wage-related pension scheme, compulsory in nature, that will provide a maximum benefit of $104.17 plus the $75 monthly old-age pension—a month when a contributor reaches 65.

A longer answer is that the plan is so complicated, a mathematician could probably earn a doctorate by figuring out a simple method of explaining how much each contributor will give and take.

HOW IT WORKS

In the simplest sense, it works like this:

For contributions of 3.6 per cent of income—half paid by employees and half by employers—persons will qualify at age 65 for a pension of about one-quarter of their previous earnings. Contributions are made on earnings between $600 and $5,000 a year, and self-employed persons, who must pay the entire 3.6 per cent contribution themselves, enter the scheme when they earn $800 or more a year.

The minimum and maximum limits of $600 and $5,000 mean that persons earning less than the minimum will not make any contributions or receive any benefits, and persons earning more than the maximum will not make any contributions on income above $5,000.

Based on average earnings of $600, minimum benefits under the scheme will be $150 a year, and the maximum for a $5,000 income will be $1,250.

Contributions will start next Jan. 1, and the first benefits will be paid out a year later. But these benefits will be on a graduated scale until the plan reaches maturity in 1976.

During this 10-year maturity period a person now 55 can contribute until he is 65 and then draw the same pension as if he contributed for 40 years. Thus for a 10-year period he would be contributing $79.20 a year—1.8 per cent of earnings between $600 and $5,000—for a total of $792 and he would then draw a pension of $104.17 a month. Within eight months of retirement, he would be ahead of the game.

These windfalls would be drastically reduced if the ma-
